Newsmen Believe Ike Has Even Chance To Win In "Solid South"

Both Candidates Woo Dixie With Personal Tours

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — Dixie newsmen regard Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as an even money bet to break into the "Solid South."

Editors and political correspondents taking part in a second mid-October survey for The Associated Press can't see the general and the GOP as making any titanic sweep of 14 Southern and border states.

For Dixie, this is a political year with out parellel. The Southland has been wooed ardently, in person, for the first time, by both presidential candidates.

Flirt With Eisenhower

In return, Southerners are carrying on a heavy flirtation with Republican nominee Eisenhower, and probably will reward him with the biggest outpouring of votes ever accorded the GOP below the Mason and Dixon Line. At the same time, they evidently are going to hold out enough ballots to make sure most of Dixie and the border states stick to their traditional love of the Democratic party.

At this point it is by no means sure that Eisenhower can take a single state in this group. But if the election were held today newsmen from the area think he would have just about a 50-50 chance at Texas, Louisiana and Florida and their 44 electoral votes. Those three states are rated a toss-up as they were in an earlier survey around Labor Day.

Virginia still is considered tilted slightly toward Democratic nominee Adlai E. Stevenson, but is more doubtful than ever as a result of Sen. Harry Byrd's refusal to endorse the Illinois governor.

Once shaky Kentucky, now expected to go Democratic, has been replaced in the doubtful column by neighboring Tennessee. The 23 electoral votes of Virginia and Tennessee thus are listed as question marks leaning toward Stevenson.

In addition to Kentucky, newsmen believe Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Oklahoma and West Virginia — with a total of 87 votes — are about as sure for Stevenson as anything can be in politics.

When this lineup is combined with survey results from five Middle Atlantic and 11 Western and Rocky Mountain states, the estimates are that Eisenhower is leading in or likely to take 13 states with 167 electoral votes while Stevenson has an edge in or is expected to capture 14 states with 127 votes. Three states with 44 votes are on the fence. It takes 266 to win the election.

Ike Made Hit

In the South, editors and political writers say Eisenhower unquestionably has made a hit with his personal sparkle and his hammering on the issues of communism, corruption and time-for-a-change.

Many of them think the backlash from the drubbing he has been taking from President Truman is helping the GOP.

Most newsmen say, too, the general got a lift from the airing of the financial status of his vice presidential team mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California.

What it adds up to is that Eisenhower is credited with making anywhere from slight to substantial headway in at least nine of the Southern and border states since the first survey was made around the beginning of September.

UN Wrangle Delays Speech By Acheson

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 23 (AP)—The United States asked the U. N. Assembly today to endorse the principles for peace in Korea as laid dawn by the Allied command at Panmunjom. It also urged the Communists to accept an armistice on those terms.

The U. S. resolution was circulated as the 60-nation political committee batted down an angry request by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky to invite the Red North Koreans here for the Korean debates. The vote was 38 to 11 against the Russian proposal.

Those voting to invite the Reds were the Soviet bloc plus Pakistan, India, Indonesia, Burma, Iran and Yemen. Eight countries abstained: Chile, Bolivia, Argentina, Syria, Israel, Mexico, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Acheson Speech Delayed

The committee voted 54 to 5 (Soviet bloc) to invite to the table the delegation of the U. N.-sponsored republic of Korea. Yugoslavia also abstained on this vote.

A two-hour wrangle on the invitations put off a scheduled speech by Secretary of State Dean Acheson. His staff said he planned to talk three hours on the entire Korean situation. Acheson's spokesman said the address would be a "full and frank accounting" of the Korean negotiations and would disclose facts not previously made public.

Other diplomatic sources said "very high" American and Allied officials had appealed to India to do what it could for an armistice in Korea. These sources said the appeal was made before the assembly convened October 14 and again after the session had started. The appeal was relayed to Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi but nothing has been heard so far.

The British annonuced they would co-sponsor the U. S. resolution. Other countries are expected to be listed as sponsors by 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow when Acheson begins his speech.

The resolution would have the assembly:

1. Note with approval the efforts of the U N. negotiators to achieve a just and honorable armistice.

Calls For Armistice

2. Note with approval the principles followed by the U. N. command against forced repatriation of prisoners.

3. Call on the Central People's Government of the People's Republic of China and upon the North Korean authorities "to avert further bloodshed by having their negotiators agree to an armistice which recognizes the rights of all prisoners of war to an unrestricted opportunity to be repatriated and avoid the use of force in their repatriation."

4. Request the president of the U. N. assembly, Lester B. Pearson, Canadian foreign secretary, to transmit the resolution to the Communists and to make a report to the assembly as soon as he deems appropriate during the present session of the assembly on the result of his action.

Wind-Whipped Fire Destroys 18 Homes

LELAND, Miss., Oct. 22 (AP)—A wind-whipped fire destroyed 18 homes, a motion picture theater and two cafes here today, leaving from 75 to 100 persons homeless.

The fire wiped out an entire block then leaped a street to burn out part of a Negro business district.

A woman, identified by hospital attendants as Mrs. J. T. Laird suffered first and second degree burns.

All but one of the houses destroyed were occupied by Negro tenants whose household goods and clothing, for the most part, were destroyed.

Movie On Rommel Causes Berlin Riot

BERLIN, Oct. 23 (AP)—Riot police were called out tonight when a crowd of young Germans stoned a theater showing the motion picture, "Desert Fox" which portrays the late Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in a heroic light. Several youths were arrested.

It was not clear whether the youths were protesting the showing of Rommel in a good light or objecting to the part where Hitler charged the field marshal with participating in the anti-Nazi putsch of 1944.

Hard Coal Owners Balk At Pay Hike

Walkout Expected In Any Eventuality

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Hard coal mine owners balked today at giving John L. Lewis the same $1.90 daily wage boost which the government already has partly shaved down in the soft coal industry.

Lewis was reported trying to get the anthracite or hard coal industry to grant the same wage raise in order to test the government's Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) again.

Raise Is Inflationary

The WSB has ruled that 40 cents of the $1.90 soft coal raise would be inflationary and cannot be paid. This has led to a nationwide walkout of the 350,000 soft coal miners.

Neither Lewis nor the anthracite industry negotiators would discuss what happened in their bargaining sessions. However, it was reliably reported the industry men had refused a demand from United Mine Workers Union President Lewis to match the $1.90 soft coal raise.

Hard coal operators contended to Lewis that they probably would face a strike of the 65,000 Pennsylvania anthracite diggers no matter what happened. Refusing Lewis the $1.90 would probably mean a strike. Granting the demand probably would lead to another partial veto from the WSB, and thus a walkout too.

The prospect was that the soft coal strike would continue for some time, perhaps until after the Nov. 4 national elections, and perhaps with the hard coal miners joining the walkout before very long.

Meanwhile it was learned that some question had been raised regarding government approval of the 10 cent a ton increase in the coal production royalty which Lewis negotiated with the soft coal industry. The boost brought to 40 cents a ton the amount paid by mine owners to the union's welfare fund to finance pensions and other benefits for miners.

Benefits Are Added

The WSB has a rule that its approval is unnecessary when additional welfare money won't be used to finance new benefits or increase the level of benefits from what they were in January, 1951.

Some additional benefits have been put into effect in the soft coal welfare program since that date, but other benefits have been reduced and some dropped altogether. So it was a question whether specific WSB approval of the 10-cent royalty increase still is needed.

The WSB has given its tentative approval to the royalty boost. But some soft coal industry leaders were known to be doubtful whether they can pay out the new royalty without a more specific clearance from the WSB.

Gas Cylinder Breaks At Army Chemical Center

EDGEWOOD, Md., Oct. 23 (AP) — Twenty-seven soldiers and civilian workers narrowly missed serious injury today when a cylinder of phosgene broke open and the deadly war gas spread through the chemical and radiological laboratories at the Army Chemical Center.

All were rushed to the station dispensary, examined, and released when it was found they had no ill effects.

An emergency squad donned gas masks, carried the cylinder outside, and got it shut off.

Discoverer Of Streptomycin Awarded 1952 Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 23 (AP)—Dr. Selman A. Waksman, a Russian-born American scientist, was awarded the 1952 Nobel Prize in medicine tonight for unlocking from earth mold the wonder drug streptomycin, the first effective antibiotic against tuberculosis.

Dr. Waksman, 64, is director of the Institute of Microbiology at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J. He is the co-discoverer of the drug, which was made known to the medical world in 1943.

The soft-spoken scientist, informed in New Brunswick of the top award for his years of research said he felt proud in "justifying the ancient saying: 'And from the earth shall come their salvation.'"

The award "is the culminating point of my life's work, begun in 1915 with the study of a humble group of soil micro-organisms, the actinomycetes, which have yielded in recent years some of the greatest benefits to mankind," he said.

The prize is worth $33,037 in cash, but it also puts Dr. Waksman into the immortal ranks of scientists who have, in the words of Alfred Nobel's will establishing the award, "conferred the greatest benefit upon mankind."

It was the 43rd prize in medicine from the Caroline Institute of Medicine in accord with the will of Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, establishing the award in 1901. Dr. Waksman is the 15th American so honored.

King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden will award the prize to Dr. Waksman at the traditionally colorful Nobel ceremonies in Stockholm Dec. 10 The Nobel winners in literature, physics and chemistry will be announced Nov 6. There is no Nobel peace prize this year—the second time since World War II it has been skipped.

Grammer Is Guilty Of Murder

Sentence Not Passed Upon Wife Slayer

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP) — George Edward Grammer, 35-year-old father of three children, was convicted today of deliberately killing his wife—and trying to make her death look like an accident—so he could marry a pretty New York secretary.

The first degree murder verdict carries either a death penalty — hanging in Maryland — or a life prison term. Sentence was not pronounced immediately.

Grammer heard Judge Herman M. Moser deliver the verdict without the bat of an eye. His face was expressionless. He still wore the grim, gray look he maintained throughout the nine-day trial.

"Criminal Homicide"

"This court has no difficulty in determining that Mrs. Grammer's death was criminal homicide," the judge said. "It has no difficulty in determining that the defendant was responsible for and did commit that unlawful act. . ."

The woman the judge referred to was Mathilda Mizibrocky, 28, a Canadian who worked at the United Nations headquarters in New York.

She testified that she and Grammer had fallen in love after their first meeting last November and were planning to marry. She said she learned he had a wife only after Dorothy May Grammer's death.

"He was in love with another woman," said the judge, hearing the case without a jury at Grammer's request. "Even if his wife were willing for a divorce, this wouldn't have solved his difficulties."

Miss Mizibrocky, he explained, "was not ready to accept a divorced man as a husband." She is a Catholic. So he had to do something.

"He turned from a loving father into a violator of all these God-given commandments . . .

"The defendant did not murder his wife because he had a few drinks or because his wife said something about his liking his job more than he liked her. He hadn't reached the stage of blind rage but to quote his own statement, 'I was a little mad . . .'"

Moser said Grammer struck his wife on the head with a piece of pipe in such a way that if their car were demolished in a collision, the injuries would appear to have resulted from the impact.

Found By Policemen

Grammer put a pebble under the accelerator of his car, Moser added, to hold down the gas pedal, and then sent the automobile carrying the body of his wife racing down the sloping road toward a street intersection and a concrete wall beyond.

Mrs. Grammer's body was found in the car the night of Aug. 19 by two policemen. The car had veered in front of them as it raced down the North Baltimore road, rammed up an embankment and overturned.

They reached the car while the motor was still running and the wheels spinning. On Mrs. Grammer's head were several deep gashes. Her hair was matted with blood. She had no pulse.

The first newspaper accounts carried her death as the result of an automobile accident. After an autopsy, however, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, state medical examiner, said she had been killed by someone who tried to make her death appear the result of an auto mishap.

Navy Tug Explodes, 29 Are Missing

VALPARAISO, Chile, Oct. 23 (AP) —The Chilean Navy tug Brito with 33 aboard exploded and sank today within three minutes.

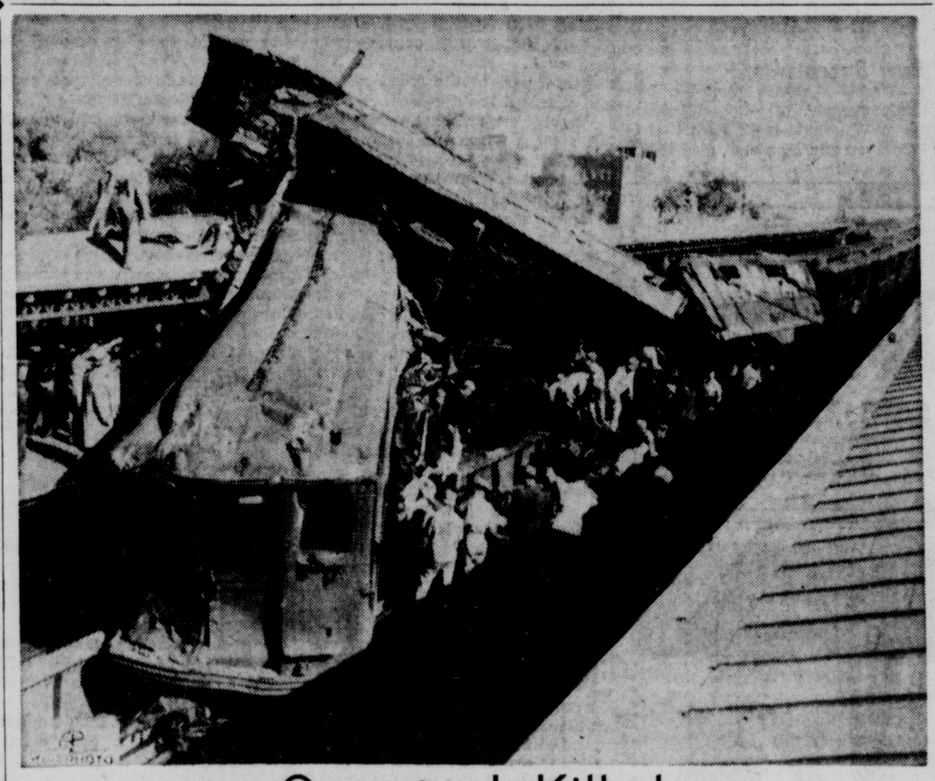

Among four known survivors was Foster Jarvis, petty officer attached to the U. S. Naval mission in Valparaiso.

The 320-ton tug rammed into a Pacific headland cliff off Quintero north of here last night during a heavy fog. It radioed for help at 8 p. m. and two rescue craft were sent from Valparaiso. At dawn today the tug listed heavily and exploded when water flooded the boilers.

Iran Parliament Split By Majlis

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 23 (AP)—The lower house of Iran's parliament voted the upper house out of office today.

Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi denied the Majlis (lower house) move was inspired by a desire to remove the parliamentary immunity from arrest of some Senators on charges of conspiring against the government.

Operator Is Killed

Henry Grunewald Indicted On 22 Contempt Counts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — Henry W. Grunewald, Washington mystery man and wirepuller, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on 22 counts of contempt of Congress.

If convicted, he would be liable to a maximum sentence of 22 years in prison or a $22,000 fine or both. However, such maximum penalties are rarely imposed.

Grunewald, known as "the Dutchman" and once described as a man who could "walk into senators' offices with his hat on," was cited for contempt by the House last April 9.

He was accused of "willful and deliberate" refusal to tell a tax investigating committee anything about his relations with high officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The House Ways and Means Committee tried five times to get Grunewald to tell them about his Washington activities. His friendship with those in high places and his interest in five-and-six-figure tax cases.

"Not only was Grunewald's failure to answer contumacious," Rep. King, D-Calif., chairman of the inquiry group, reported to the House, "but he even refused at one session to acknowledge the fact that members were speaking to him."

Grunewald has figured several times in sensational investigatons on Capitol Hill. In 1950 he refused to answer some questions by a Senate committee which was digging into alleged wire-tapping in Washington. The committee recommended that the Senate cite him for contempt, but the Senate never acted on the recommendation.

Insurance Exec Accuses Safety Men Of Creating Hazards

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (INS) — Twelve thousand delegates attending the 40th National Safety Congress in Chicago took a verbal punch on the chin today from an insurance executive.

Harold P. Jackson, president of the Bankers Indemnity Insurance Co., of Newark, N. J., exonerated the general public and put the blame on professional traffic safety men for the nation's traffic toll.

Jackson said: "the public is not apathetic, disinterested, unconcerned, calloused, indifferent, hyprocritical, blase, stupid, lazy or onery — the public is only groping for concrete answers.

"It is you people — the professionals in traffic safety — who have created the bewilderment and confusion out of a criss-cross of do's and dont's, out of a morass of indecision and out of jealousies and bickering which have obscured the objective of saving human lives."

Farouk Signs Lease

Stevenson Group Manhandled By Cleveland Police

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23 (INS)— Cleveland policemen manhandled members of Gov. Adlai Stevenson's official party tonight, one officer hitting William McCormick Blair, Jr., Stevenson's administrative assistant.

Blair was trying to follow the Democratic presidential candidate into the Cleveland arena where Stevenson spoke.

Reporters traveling with the candidate also were pushed and shoved by policemen.

Taft Denies Leading Ike

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. (INS) —Senator Robert A. Taft denied tonight that General Eisenhower had "surrendered" to him and said he and the general share the same fundamental opinions about government.

The Ohio senator, in a broadcast and televised speech, said of the general:

"His ideas of the principles of what government should be, and what government should not be, are fundamentally the same as mine."

Taft told his union league audience:

"I have complete confidence that when Dwight Eisenhower is elected we will see a Republican administration inspired by the same principles of liberty in which we believe.

"Today we have agreed that we will surrender our differences on lesser issues in order to combine those people who believe in the same philosophy of government behind a campaign which will give effective strength to that philosophy and place that form of government at the service of the people."

Taft paid President Truman a back-handed compliment, confessing he had a "sneaking admiration for Mr. Truman because he is such an extremely expert demagogue."

Kidnap Terror Gang Sought In Tennessee

SPARTA, Tenn., Oct. 23 (AP)— Police fanned out tonight from this middle Tennessee town in search for four armed bandits who kidnapped at least 14 terrorized victims during the past two days and escaped in one of three stolen automobiles.

The search shifted late today toward Lebanon, 50 miles northwest of here, after a brazen daylight theft of an automobile from the public square. Police said a group of men stole the automobile from its parking place, but it was abandoned a short distance away.

Although the search centered in the Cumberland Mountain plateau area around here, it extended also into Georgia and Kentucky. All the persons kidnaped at various points along U. S. Highway 41 were released or escaped.

The victims, including a recently married couple from Maine, were robbed, threatened and three of the victims had their automobiles taken from them.

The kidnaping and robbing spree broke out north of Chattanooga yesterday, when 10 persons were victimized, then released or escaped.

But in Valdosta, Ga., Sheriff J. L. Futch said he believes the bandits are the same group which kidnaped, robbed and tied up four tourists from Hastings, Mich., and Toronto, Canada, Tuesday night.

Probe Committee Told U. N. Official Is Communist Agent

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — Whittaker Chambers testified today that the publications director of the United Nations was a member of the Communist underground in 1936.

Chambers, former underground spy ring courier, told a Senate Internal Security subcommittee the U. N. official, David Zablodowsky, had Communist leanings as far back as their college days together at Columbia University.

"He was a member of the Soviet underground in the United States that's your best recollection?" asked Sen. Eastland (D-Miss), presiding at the hearings.

"Yes," Chambers replied, and later added, "without a doubt."

The committee also sought testimony about David Weintraub, director of Economic Stability and Development for the U. N.

Chambers could only say that he had heard the name in the underground and had some reason to think it was the same David Weintraub.

It was another in a long series of appearances at anti-Communist probes by Chambers, the man whose testimony convicted Alger Hiss.

Hiss went to prison for perjury, after denying he ever passed State Department secrets to Chambers for the prewar Soviet spy ring.

Chambers told the subcommittee, which has been looking into communism among American employes of the U. N:

'I would like the record to show clearly that I testified solely in response to the subpoena of the committee and solicited in no way this unpleasant privilege.

"I raised my point because of current smears against me, one of which is that I am continually naming new names and continuing in creating headlines."

The subcommittee scheduled Zablodowsky as its first witness for tomorrow.

Demos Create Disunity Ike Tells Buffalo

Stevenson Defends Stand On Alger Hiss

[By The Associated Press]

Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower swapped sharply worded charges last night on the tactics being used in their contest for the presidency.

"I resent — and I resent bitterly — the sly insinuations and the innuendoes of the campaign that is being waged in behalf of the general," Stevenson said in a speech prepared for a Cleveland audience.

"And I am deeply shocked that the general would lead a so-called 'crusade' which accepts calumny and the big doubt as its instruments."

Eisenhower, campaigning before big crowds in New York State, said in a speech prepared for a Buffalo rally that his political opponents speak with "the power mad voices of the rabble rousers."

All Out To Deliver

"Every boss of the administration party," he said, "will go all out and down the line to deliver. They will deliver by fair means and foul."

Eisenhower declared that the Democrats deliberately brought about disunity in the United States and sapped the sources of the nation's strength.

"Year after year they have sought to make political profit by setting group against group, special interest against special interest, section against section," Eisenhower said.

"We hear shrill voices today creating distrust, disunity and bigotry by falsely accusing others — including myself — of these evil things."

Stevenson took out after Eisenhower's running mate, Sen Richard M. Nixon, who has been attacking the governor for his action in the case of Alger Hiss, former state department official serving a prison term for perjury.

Stevenson reiterated that he had testified only that Hiss' reputation for character and veracity, when they both served in the State Department, was good.

Never Doubted Verdict

"At no time did I testify on the issue of the guilt or innocence of Alger Hiss," the governor said. "As I have repeatedly said, I have never doubted the verdict of the jury which convicted him."

Hiss was convicted of lying when he denied ever having passed government documents to a courier for Russia.

Earlier, the two presidential candidates had traded oratorical blows on foreign policy. Eisenhower said the Truman Administration has "a sorry record" in foreign affairs but that Stevenson has refused to say

Typhoon Death Total Hits 370

MANILA, Friday, Oct. 24 (AP) — At least 370 persons were killed and hundreds were injured or missing in a typhoon of almost unheard of violence that tore through the Central Philippines Tuesday and Wednesday.

The great storm — whose winds of unknown velocity whipped tree trunks through the air like matchsticks — destroyed at least two cities with a combined population of more than 113,000 on Southeast Luzon.

The storm today was bearing down on the eastern shores of Indochina, which still had not recovered from a typhoon and tidal wave that killed hundreds earlier this week.

Government agencies and the Philippines Red Cross sped relief to the stricken area of splintered homes and buildings, flattened crops and flooded towns and villages.

The Red Cross made the preliminary tabulation of 370 killed, 2,000 missing, and hundreds injured.

Hardest hit were the once thriving port of Legaspi, a city of 80,000 population 210 miles southeast of Manila, and Tabaco, a center of 33,000 population 20 miles north of Legaspi.

Red Cross reports listed 118 killed in Tabaco. This was said to be the largest typhoon casualty figure ever recorded in a single Philippines town.

Government officials said damage to property and crops would run into millions of dollars. They had no way of knowing the total until communications were restored.

Raise Is Inflationary

The WSB has ruled that 40 cents of the $1.90 soft coal raise would be inflationary and cannot be paid. This has led to a nationwide walkout of the 350,000 soft coal miners.

Neither Lewis nor the anthracite industry negotiators would discuss what happened in their bargaining sessions. However, it was reliably reported the industry men had refused a demand from United Mine Workers Union President Lewis to match the $1.90 soft coal raise.

Hard coal operators contended to Lewis that they probably would face a strike of the 65,000 Pennsylvania anthracite diggers no matter what happened. Refusing Lewis the $1.90 would probably mean a strike. Granting the demand probably would lead to another partial veto from the WSB, and thus a walkout too.

The prospect was that the soft coal strike would continue for some time, perhaps until after the Nov. 4 national elections, and perhaps with the hard coal miners joining the walkout before very long.

Meanwhile it was learned that some question had been raised regarding government approval of the 10 cent a ton increase in the coal production royalty which Lewis negotiated with the soft coal industry. The boost brought to 40 cents a ton the amount paid by mine owners to the union's welfare fund to finance pensions and other benefits for miners.

Benefits Are Added

The WSB has a rule that its approval is unnecessary when additional welfare money won't be used to finance new benefits or increase the level of benefits from what they were in January, 1951.

Some additional benefits have been put into effect in the soft coal welfare program since that date, but other benefits have been reduced and some dropped altogether. So it was a question whether specific WSB approval of the 10-cent royalty increase still is needed.

The WSB has given its tentative approval to the royalty boost. But some soft coal industry leaders were known to be doubtful whether they can pay out the new royalty without a more specific clearance from the WSB.

Gas Cylinder Breaks At Army Chemical Center

EDGEWOOD, Md., Oct. 23 (AP) — Twenty-seven soldiers and civilian workers narrowly missed serious injury today when a cylinder of phosgene broke open and the deadly war gas spread through the chemical and radiological laboratories at the Army Chemical Center.

All were rushed to the station dispensary, examined, and released when it was found they had no ill effects.

Discoverer Of Streptomycin Awarded 1952 Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 23 (AP)—Dr. Selman A. Waksman, a Russian-born American scientist, was awarded the 1952 Nobel Prize in medicine tonight for unlocking from earth mold the wonder drug streptomycin, the first effective antibiotic against tuberculosis.

Dr. Waksman, 64, is director of the Institute of Microbiology at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J. He is the co-discoverer of the drug, which was made known to the medical world in 1943.

The soft-spoken scientist, informed in New Brunswick of the top award for his years of research said he felt proud in "justifying the ancient saying: 'And from the earth shall come their salvation.'"

The award "is the culminating point of my life's work, begun in 1915 with the study of a humble group of soil micro-organisms, the actinomycetes, which have yielded in recent years some of the greatest benefits to mankind," he said.

The prize is worth $33,037 in cash, but it also puts Dr. Waksman into the immortal ranks of scientists who have, in the words of Alfred Nobel's will establishing the award, "conferred the greatest benefit upon mankind."

It was the 43rd prize in medicine from the Caroline Institute of Medicine in accord with the will of Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, establishing the award in 1901. Dr. Waksman is the 15th American so honored.

King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden will award the prize to Dr. Waksman at the traditionally colorful Nobel ceremonies in Stockholm Dec. 10. The Nobel winners in literature, physics and chemistry will be announced Nov 6. There is no Nobel peace prize this year—the second time since World War II it has been skipped.

Grammer Is Guilty Of Murder

Sentence Not Passed Upon Wife Slayer

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP) — George Edward Grammer, 35-year-old father of three children, was convicted today of deliberately killing his wife—and trying to make her death look like an accident—so he could marry a pretty New York secretary.

The first degree murder verdict carries either a death penalty — hanging in Maryland — or a life prison term. Sentence was not pronounced immediately.

Grammer heard Judge Herman M. Moser deliver the verdict without the bat of an eye. His face was expressionless. He still wore the grim, gray look he maintained throughout the nine-day trial.

"Criminal Homicide"

"This court has no difficulty in determining that Mrs. Grammer's death was criminal homicide," the judge said. "It has no difficulty in determining that the defendant was responsible for and did commit that unlawful act. . ."

The woman the judge referred to was Mathilda Mizibrocky, 28, a Canadian who worked at the United Nations headquarters in New York.

She testified that she and Grammer had fallen in love after their first meeting last November and were planning to marry. She said she learned he had a wife only after Dorothy May Grammer's death.

"He was in love with another woman," said the judge, hearing the case without a jury at Grammer's request. "Even if his wife were willing for a divorce, this wouldn't have solved his difficulties."

Miss Mizibrocky, he explained, "was not ready to accept a divorced man as a husband." She is a Catholic. So he had to do something.

"He turned from a loving father into a violator of all these God-given commandments . . .

"The defendant did not murder his wife because he had a few drinks or because his wife said something about his liking his job more than he liked her. He hadn't reached the stage of blind rage but to quote his own statement, 'I was a little mad . . .'"

Moser said Grammer struck his wife on the head with a piece of pipe in such a way that if their car were demolished in a collision, the injuries would appear to have resulted from the impact.

Found By Policemen

Grammer put a pebble under the accelerator of his car, Moser added, to hold down the gas pedal, and then sent the automobile carrying the body of his wife racing down the sloping road toward a street intersection and a concrete wall beyond.

Mrs. Grammer's body was found in the car the night of Aug. 19 by two policemen. The car had veered in front of them as it raced down the North Baltimore road, rammed up an embankment and overturned.

They reached the car while the motor was still running and the wheels spinning. On Mrs. Grammer's head were several deep gashes. Her hair was matted with blood. She had no pulse.

The first newspaper accounts carried her death as the result of an automobile accident. After an autopsy, however, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, state medical examiner, said she had been killed by someone who tried to make her death appear the result of an auto mishap.

Navy Tug Explodes, 29 Are Missing

VALPARAISO, Chile, Oct. 23 (AP) —The Chilean Navy tug Brito with 33 aboard exploded and sank today within three minutes.

Among four known survivors was Foster Jarvis, petty officer attached to the U. S. Naval mission in Valparaiso.

The 320-ton tug rammed into a Pacific headland cliff off Quintero north of here last night during a heavy fog. It radioed for help at 8 p. m. and two rescue craft were sent from Valparaiso. At dawn today the tug listed heavily and exploded when water flooded the boilers.

Iran Parliament Split By Majlis

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 23 (AP)—The lower house of Iran's parliament voted the upper house out of office today.

Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi denied the Majlis (lower house) move was inspired by a desire to remove the parliamentary immunity from arrest of some Senators on charges of conspiring against the government.

Henry Grunewald Indicted On 22 Contempt Counts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — Henry W. Grunewald, Washington mystery man and wirepuller, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on 22 counts of contempt of Congress.

If convicted, he would be liable to a maximum sentence of 22 years in prison or a $22,000 fine or both. However, such maximum penalties are rarely imposed.

Grunewald, known as "the Dutchman" and once described as a man who could "walk into senators' offices with his hat on," was cited for contempt by the House last April 9.

He was accused of "willful and deliberate" refusal to tell a tax investigating committee anything about his relations with high officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The House Ways and Means Committee tried five times to get Grunewald to tell them about his Washington activities. His friendship with those in high places and his interest in five-and-six-figure tax cases.

"Not only was Grunewald's failure to answer contumacious," Rep. King, D-Calif., chairman of the inquiry group, reported to the House, "but he even refused at one session to acknowledge the fact that members were speaking to him."

Grunewald has figured several times in sensational investigatons on Capitol Hill. In 1950 he refused to answer some questions by a Senate committee which was digging into alleged wire-tapping in Washington. The committee recommended that the Senate cite him for contempt, but the Senate never acted on the recommendation.

Insurance Exec Accuses Safety Men Of Creating Hazards

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (INS) — Twelve thousand delegates attending the 40th National Safety Congress in Chicago took a verbal punch on the chin today from an insurance executive.

Harold P. Jackson, president of the Bankers Indemnity Insurance Co., of Newark, N. J., exonerated the general public and put the blame on professional traffic safety men for the nation's traffic toll.

Jackson said: "the public is not apathetic, disinterested, unconcerned, calloused, indifferent, hyprocritical, blase, stupid, lazy or onery — the public is only groping for concrete answers.

"It is you people — the professionals in traffic safety — who have created the bewilderment and confusion out of a criss-cross of do's and dont's, out of a morass of indecision and out of jealousies and bickering which have obscured the objective of saving human lives."

Farouk Signs Lease

Stevenson Group Manhandled By Cleveland Police

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23 (INS)—Cleveland policemen manhandled members of Gov. Adlai Stevenson's official party tonight, one officer hitting William McCormick Blair, Jr., Stevenson's administrative assistant.

Blair was trying to follow the Democratic presidential candidate into the Cleveland arena where Stevenson spoke.

Reporters traveling with the candidate also were pushed and shoved by policemen.

Taft Denies Leading Ike

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. (INS) —Senator Robert A. Taft denied tonight that General Eisenhower had "surrendered" to him and said he and the general share the same fundamental opinions about government.

The Ohio senator, in a broadcast and televised speech, said of the general:

"His ideas of the principles of what government should be, and what government should not be, are fundamentally the same as mine."

Taft told his union league audience:

"I have complete confidence that when Dwight Eisenhower is elected we will see a Republican administration inspired by the same principles of liberty in which we believe.

"Today we have agreed that we will surrender our differences on lesser issues in order to combine those people who believe in the same philosophy of government behind a campaign which will give effective strength to that philosophy and place that form of government at the service of the people."

Taft paid President Truman a back-handed compliment, confessing he had a "sneaking admiration for Mr. Truman because he is such an extremely expert demagogue."

Kidnap Terror Gang Sought In Tennessee

SPARTA, Tenn., Oct. 23 (AP)—Police fanned out tonight from this middle Tennessee town in search for four armed bandits who kidnapped at least 14 terrorized victims during the past two days and escaped in one of three stolen automobiles.

The search shifted late today toward Lebanon, 50 miles northwest of here, after a brazen daylight theft of an automobile from the public square. Police said a group of men stole the automobile from its parking place, but it was abandoned a short distance away.

Although the search centered in the Cumberland Mountain plateau area around here, it extended also into Georgia and Kentucky. All the persons kidnaped at various points along U. S. Highway 41 were released or escaped.

The victims, including a recently married couple from Maine, were robbed, threatened and three of the victims had their automobiles taken from them.

The kidnaping and robbing spree broke out north of Chattanooga yesterday, when 10 persons were victimized, then released or escaped.

But in Valdosta, Ga., Sheriff J. L. Futch said he believes the bandits are the same group which kidnaped, robbed and tied up four tourists from Hastings, Mich., and Toronto, Canada, Tuesday night.

Final Rites Held For Ireland Envoy

R. Gerald Patrick O'Hara, Papal Nuncio and Bishop of Savannah, Ga., celebrated the mass in the Dublin Cathedral.

Probe Committee Told U. N. Official Is Communist Agent

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — Whittaker Chambers testified today that the publications director of the United Nations was a member of the Communist underground in 1936.

Chambers, former underground spy ring courier, told a Senate Internal Security subcommittee the U. N. official, David Zablodowsky, had Communist leanings as far back as their college days together at Columbia University.

"He was a member of the Soviet underground in the United States, that's your best recollection?" asked Sen. Eastland (D-Miss), presiding at the hearings.

"Yes," Chambers replied, and later added, "without a doubt."

The committee also sought testimony about David Weintraub, director of Economic Stability and Development for the U. N.

Chambers could only say that he had heard the name in the underground and had some reason to think it was the same David Weintraub.

It was another in a long series of appearances at anti-Communist probes by Chambers, the man whose testimony convicted Alger Hiss.

Hiss went to prison for perjury, after denying he ever passed State Department secrets to Chambers for the prewar Soviet spy ring.

Chambers told the subcommittee, which has been looking into communism among American employes of the U. N:

'I would like the record to show clearly that I testified solely in response to the subpoena of the committee and solicited in no way this unpleasant privilege.

"I raised my point because of current smears against me, one of which is that I am continually naming new names and continuing in creating headlines."

The subcommittee scheduled Zablodowsky as its first witness for tomorrow.

Demos Create Disunity Ike Tells Buffalo

Stevenson Defends Stand On Alger Hiss

[By The Associated Press]

Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower swapped sharply worded charges last night on the tactics being used in their contest for the presidency.

"I resent — and I resent bitterly — the sly insinuations and the innuendoes of the campaign that is being waged in behalf of the general," Stevenson said in a speech prepared for a Cleveland audience.

"And I am deeply shocked that the general would lead a so-called 'crusade' which accepts calumny and the big doubt as its instruments."

Eisenhower, campaigning before big crowds in New York State, said in a speech prepared for a Buffalo rally that his political opponents speak with "the power mad voices of the rabble rousers."

All Out To Deliver

"Every boss of the administration party," he said, "will go all out and down the line to deliver. They will deliver by fair means and foul."

Eisenhower declared that the Democrats deliberately brought about disunity in the United States and sapped the sources of the nation's strength.

"Year after year they have sought to make political profit by setting group against group, special interest against special interest, section against section," Eisenhower said.

"We hear shrill voices today creating distrust, disunity and bigotry by falsely accusing others — including myself — of these evil things."

Stevenson took out after Eisenhower's running mate, Sen Richard M. Nixon, who has been attacking the governor for his action in the case of Alger Hiss, former state department official serving a prison term for perjury.

Stevenson reiterated that he had testified only that Hiss' reputation for character and veracity, when they both served in the State Department, was good.

Never Doubted Verdict

"At no time did I testify on the issue of the guilt or innocence of Alger Hiss," the governor said. "As I have repeatedly said, I have never doubted the verdict of the jury which convicted him."

Hiss was convicted of lying when he denied ever having passed government documents to a courier for Russia.

Earlier, the two presidential candidates had traded oratorical blows on foreign policy. Eisenhower said the Truman Administration has "a sorry record" in foreign affairs but that Stevenson has refused to say

Typhoon Death Total Hits 370

MANILA, Friday, Oct. 24 (AP) — At least 370 persons were killed and hundreds were injured or missing in a typhoon of almost unheard of violence that tore through the Central Philippines Tuesday and Wednesday.

The great storm — whose winds of unknown velocity whipped tree trunks through the air like matchsticks — destroyed at least two cities with a combined population of more than 113,000 on Southeast Luzon.

The storm today was bearing down on the eastern shores of Indochina, which still had not recovered from a typhoon and tidal wave that killed hundreds earlier this week.

Government agencies and the Philippines Red Cross sped relief to the stricken area of splintered homes and buildings, flattened crops and flooded towns and villages.

The Red Cross made the preliminary tabulation of 370 killed, 2,000 missing, and hundreds injured.

Hardest hit were the once thriving port of Legaspi, a city of 80,000 population 210 miles southeast of Manila, and Tabaco, a center of 33,000 population 20 miles north of Legaspi.

Red Cross reports listed 118 killed in Tabaco. This was said to be the largest typhoon casualty figure ever recorded in a single Philippines town.

Government officials said damage to property and crops would run into millions of dollars. They had no way of knowing the total until communications were restored.

Price Ceiling On Pork Chops Raised Two Cents

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — The government tonight cleared the way for butcher shops to raise their ceiling one to two cents a pound for better pork cuts, such as center chops, bacon and hams.

The Office of Price Stabilization said its action will mean slightly lower ceilings on cheaper or less sought-after cuts, such as bellies, spareribs and loin and roasts.

The shifts in ceilings will be brought about by changes in the method by which meat retailers recalculate their pork products prices.

Effective Oct. 28 retailers buying fabricated or ready-cut pork can refigure their ceilings on the basis of percentage changes in their wholesale costs.

Second African Chieftain Slain, Manhunt Is Ordered

NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 23 (AP)—The slaughter of a senior Kikuyu chief who tried to break up a secret ceremony of anti-white Mau Mau terrorists sparked a gigantic manhunt today.

Chief Nderi, 70 was hacked to death last night by the knives of frenzied tribesmen. One policeman of his three-man bodyguard was butchered with him. The other two are missing.

Twenty-one persons, mainly old men and women, were rounded up swiftly by British troops and police who launched only Tuesday a colony-wide campaign to crush the Mau Mau.

Nderi's position in the Kikuyu tribe, which totals a million of Kenya's 5½ million population, was similar to that of Chief Waruhiu, who was shot to death on a highway last week. Nderi controlled the northern part of the tribal reserve and Waruhui the southern.

The only senior Kikuyu chief now left alive is Njiri, who controls the Fort Hall area. He has received a death notice from the Mau Mau, blamed for the killing of more than 40 native foes of its fire-and-blood campaign to drive out the whites.

Police gave this account of Nderi's last hours:

The old chief sent a message to police headquarters saying he had received information that about 500 members of the Mau Mau were to gather in his district for a secret ceremonial.

Nderi summoned an escort of one African colonial and two tribal policemen and headed for the meeting, firing shots in the air.

The Mau Mau gathering broke up, but the tribesmen were incensed.

Nderi then, "very bravely but foolishly," strode through their ranks. The tribesmen drew knives and slashed him and the African policemen to pieces.

An official spokesman described the situation in all the three main Kikuyu districts as disturbing.

The Cruiser Kenya, fresh from Korean waters, docked today at Mombasa and 200 armed seamen and marines marched through that Indian Ocean port to warn the Mau Mau that the British mean business. Thousands of residents of all races lined the streets to watch the show of force.

Allies Retain Hold On Hills

SEOUL, Friday Oct. 24 (AP)—Allied troops threw the Chinese Reds off the top of Iron Horse Mountain Thursday and 20 miles to the east crushed new but weaker attacks on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge.

The battle for these strategic Central Korean heights waxed hottest at Iron Horse. Front reports said the Chinese refused to concede its loss and were beating against South Korean lines with furious counterblows.

As ground fighting dropped in intensity, the Allies stepped up their aerial attacks and carried them close to the Manchurian border.

Fighter-bombers chopped up rail lines 40 miles from the border, and destroyed or damaged 15 buildings in a raid on a transformer and mining area near the Chongchon River north of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

They were following up 10 Superforts which by night drove through Communist anti-aircraft barrages and interceptors and dumped 100 tons of bombs on a lead and zinc plant at Okung. This is only 25 miles east of the Red jet base at Antung, Manchuria. All B29s returned.

College Student Is "Kidnapped"

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (INS) — A bedraggled but smiling Columbia University freshman, victim of a "legal kidnapping" by university sophomores, returned to the campus today, hazed but unfazed.

H. Gordon Butler, 20, of Providence, R. I., who was spirited off to Chicago by 10 rampaging sophomores, explained on his return to New York that the abduction was all part of Columbia's annual rush week.

He said the sophs, allegedly led by Peter Douglas, son of actor Melvyn Douglas, kidnapped him from his dormitory, covered his face with bandages and put him on a Chicago-bound plane, telling the stewardess that he had been horribly burned.

Butler said he managed to free himself en route to Chicago but arrived at the city's airport broke. He said he hitchhiked into the city, then tried to persuade newspaper reporters and police that the story he told was true. He said they finally telephoned Columbia and plane fare was wired him for the return trip.

None the worse for his experience Butler said it was all in fun. He'll be a soph next fall and the shoe will be on the other foot.

whether he would get rid of Secretary of State Acheson.

Stevenson, whistle stopping across Pennsylvania and Ohio toward a major speaking date at Cleveland, told a crowd at Erie, Pa.:

"The old men who are in control of the Republican Party today — the men of the Old Guard who have captured the Republican candidate x x x — have learned little in these intervening decades (since 1932).

"They are apparently willing even today to let Europe collapse. But something more than blustering words is necessary to block the Kremlin plan for world dominion."

Couldn't Answer Query

Eisenhower read what he said was a newspaper report about Stevenson's visit in South Bend, Ind., on Wednesday. He said that when a man in the crowd asked the Illinois governor whether, if elected, he would fire Acheson, Stevenson replied he would answer such questions after the election.

"It is the only answer the poor man could make," Eisenhower said. "He has this sorry record of the last seven years to defend, and here is one he can't defend.

"I say this crusade in which I am engaged does repudiate that record of error, and we are ready to replace, from top to bottom."

The general said the first thing to do in foreign affairs is to find for government service "those men and women who, by their character, their performance in public and private life, their business brains, and their abilities, qualify for these great positions of policy making."

Iowa Dean Dies

Volunteer firemen at Frostburg were kept busy yesterday with four grass fires and a slight explosion.

At 7 p. m. yesterday an explosion occurred at the home of Mrs. Esther Cashline, 103 Frost Avenue, home economics teacher at Beall High School. A loose connection in a gas stove, according to John Sleeman of the fire department, caused the early morning explosion. When firemen arrived, Mrs. Cashline had thrown blankets over the blaze. Slight damage was reported.

Grass fires were extinguished at West Mechanic Street, rear of Mayer Ice Plant, South Water Street, and at the city dump.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — The government tonight cleared the way for butcher shops to raise their ceiling one to two cents a pound for better pork cuts, such as center chops, bacon and hams.

The Office of Price Stabilization said its action will mean slightly lower ceilings on cheaper or less sought-after cuts, such as bellies, spareribs and loin and roasts.

The shifts in ceilings will be brought about by changes in the method by which meat retailers recalculate their pork products prices.

Earl Succumbs

ADARE MANOR, Limerick, Ireland, Oct. 23 (AP)—Col. Windham Hesry Wyndham-Quin, fifth Earl of Dunraven and Montearl, died today. He was 95.

Second African Chieftain Slain, Manhunt Is Ordered

NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 23 (AP)—The slaughter of a senior Kikuyu chief who tried to break up a secret ceremony of anti-white Mau Mau terrorists sparked a gigantic manhunt today.

Chief Nderi, 70 was hacked to death last night by the knives of frenzied tribesmen. One policeman of his three-man bodyguard was butchered with him. The other two are missing.

Twenty-one persons, mainly old men and women, were rounded up swiftly by British troops and police who launched only Tuesday a colony-wide campaign to crush the Mau Mau.

Nderi's position in the Kikuyu tribe, which totals a million of Kenya's 5½ million population, was similar to that of Chief Waruhiu, who was shot to death on a highway last week. Nderi controlled the northern part of the tribal reserve and Waruhui the southern.

The only senior Kikuyu chief now left alive is Njiri, who controls the Fort Hall area. He has received a death notice from the Mau Mau, blamed for the killing of more than 40 native foes of its fire-and-blood campaign to drive out the whites.

Police gave this account of Nderi's last hours:

The old chief sent a message to police headquarters saying he had received information that about 500 members of the Mau Mau were to gather in his district for a secret ceremonial.

Nderi summoned an escort of one African colonial and two tribal policemen and headed for the meeting, firing shots in the air.

The Mau Mau gathering broke up, but the tribesmen were incensed.

Nderi then, "very bravely but foolishly," strode through their ranks. The tribesmen drew knives and slashed him and the African policemen to pieces.

An official spokesman described the situation in all the three main Kikuyu districts as disturbing.

The Cruiser Kenya, fresh from Korean waters, docked today at Mombasa and 200 armed seamen and marines marched through that Indian Ocean port to warn the Mau Mau that the British mean business. Thousands of residents of all races lined the streets to watch the show of force.

Allies Retain Hold On Hills

SEOUL, Friday Oct. 24 (AP)—Allied troops threw the Chinese Reds off the top of Iron Horse Mountain Thursday and 20 miles to the east crushed new but weaker attacks on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge.

The battle for these strategic Central Korean heights waxed hottest at Iron Horse. Front reports said the Chinese refused to concede its loss and were beating against South Korean lines with furious counterblows.

As ground fighting dropped in intensity, the Allies stepped up their aerial attacks and carried them close to the Manchurian border.

Fighter-bombers chopped up rail lines 40 miles from the border, and destroyed or damaged 15 buildings in a raid on a transformer and mining area near the Chongchon River north of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

They were following up 10 Superforts which by night drove through Communist anti-aircraft barrages and interceptors and dumped 100 tons of bombs on a lead and zinc plant at Okung. This is only 25 miles east of the Red jet base at Antung, Manchuria. All B29s returned.

Japan Extends Uruguay Pact

TOKYO, Oct. 23 (INS) — The Japanese government announced today it was extending for another six months a trade and payments agreement with Uruguay.

The accord, concluded between the allied occupation authorities and Uruguay in June, 1949, is due to expire Oct. 27.

It provides for 5 million annual two-way trade on a cash dollar settlement basis.

Frostburg Firemen Kept Busy With Afternoon Blazes

Volunteer firemen at Frostburg were kept busy yesterday with four grass fires and a slight explosion.

At 7 p. m. yesterday an explosion occurred at the home of Mrs. Esther Cashline, 103 Frost Avenue, home economics teacher at Beall High School. A loose connection in a gas stove, according to John Sleeman of the fire department, caused the early morning explosion. When firemen arrived, Mrs. Cashline had thrown blankets over the blaze. Slight damage was reported.

Grass fires were extinguished at West Mechanic Street, rear of Mayer Ice Plant, South Water Street, and at the city dump.

Elizabeth Brode was divorced from John Brode and she was awarded custody of minor children. Roy R. Rhodes was divorced from Ubanna J. Rhodes and he was awarded custody of an infant child. Louis Robert Smith was divorced from Betty W. Smith.

Purse-Snatcher Gives Self Up

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (INS) — A Chicagoan whose conscience hurt him less than his ulcers, confessed today that purse snatching had netted him an estimated $2,000 in two years.

Keith Dishno, 32, a hamburger chef, used the money for ulcer treatments. He admitted some conscience pangs by revealing that he kept the victims names, intending some day to return the money.

College Student Is "Kidnapped"

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (INS) — A bedraggled but smiling Columbia University freshman, victim of a "legal kidnapping" by university sophomores, returned to the campus today, hazed but unfazed.

H. Gordon Butler, 20, of Providence, R. I., who was spirited off to Chicago by 10 rampaging sophomores, explained on his return to New York that the abduction was all part of Columbia's annual rush week.

He said the sophs, allegedly led by Peter Douglas, son of actor Melvyn Douglas, kidnapped him from his dormitory, covered his face with bandages and put him on a Chicago-bound plane, telling the stewardess that he had been horribly burned.

Butler said he managed to free himself en route to Chicago but arrived at the city's airport broke. He said he hitchhiked into the city, then tried to persuade newspaper reporters and police that the story he told was true. He said they finally telephoned Columbia and plane fare was wired him for the return trip.

None the worse for his experience Butler said it was all in fun. He'll be a soph next fall and the shoe will be on the other foot.

whether he would get rid of Secretary of State Acheson.

Stevenson, whistie stopping across Pennsylvania and Ohio toward a major speaking date at Cleveland, told a crowd at Erie, Pa.:

"The old men who are in control of the Republican Party today — the men of the Old Guard who have captured the Republican candidate x x x — have learned little in these intervening decades (since 1932).

"They are apparently willing even today to let Europe collapse. But something more than blustering words is necessary to block the Kremlin plan for world dominion."

Couldn't Answer Query

Eisenhower read what he said was a newspaper report about Stevenson's visit in South Bend, Ind., on Wednesday. He said that when a man in the crowd asked the Illinois governor whether, if elected, he would fire Acheson, Stevenson replied he would answer such questions after the election.

"It is the only answer the poor man could make," Eisenhower said. "He has this sorry record of the last seven years to defend, and here is one he can't defend.

"I say this crusade in which I am engaged does repudiate that record of error, and we are ready to replace, from top to bottom."

The general said the first thing to do in foreign affairs is to find for government service "those men and women who, by their character, their performance in public and private life, their business brains, and their abilities, qualify for these great positions of policy making."

Bill Cullen, Radio And TV M.C., Is On, And In, The Air

By MEL HEIMER
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK—It is stretching a point a trifle, but Bill Cullen likes to think of himself as the happiest taxicab driver in Manhattan. He hasn't a woman driver, a traffic light or a low tipper to violate the monotonous peace of his days. It could be because his cab is an airborne one.

At 32, the amiable, good-looking Cullen is president of Appointment Airlines, a private service comprising four airplanes that will pick you up, deliver you to your destination, wait and then ferry you home again. The only thing different from a taxi is that there's no meter ticking. "And you don't have to worry about parking space," adds Cullen, a whimsical soul.

The sort of thing Cullen does is this: a short time back, a ship in Norfolk, Va., was unable to sail with a perishable cargo because a small engine part had to be replaced. The part was available only from a sister ship berthed in Jersey City—so a tug fetched the part, a taxi (ground type) brought it to Newark Airport, and Bill Cullen flew it to Norfolk. Less than four hours after the hurry call came from Virginia, the ship was hoisting anchor.

Just as a cabbie has to be prepared to take a horse player out to Belmont Park or a Bowery bum to the Plaza Hotel, Cullen's chores have been odd, almost bizarre on occasion.

Bill has flown uranium prospectors to wherever they thought there was uranium, and duck-hunters to where they thought there were ducks. He even flew one New York Romeo up to Boston on a long lunch hour, just to see his fiancee.

Just the other afternoon one of Bill's pilots—there are three, counting himself — took an American Anthracite Company executive from New York (at 8 a. m.) to Pottstown, Pa., thence to Baltimore, thence to Elkins, W. Va., and finally back to New York (at 7:30 p. m.) in time for dinner.

From time to time he has hurry calls to ferry merchandise cargoes. "One time, for instance," he says, "I was asked to carry a load of foundation garments for women. It was, I suppose, what you'd call an airlift."

Actually, Bill's an occupational schizophrenic; in addition to being an air cabbie, he works in radio and TV as m. c., panelist, actor and announcer, doing three or four shows a week. You might say, thus, that when he's not on the air he's up in it. Then again, you might not care to say it, at that.

Cullen is a native of Pittsburgh. He used to hang around his father's garage there, fooling around with a Model T Ford, after which he was graduated to taking flying lessons in a cow-pasture airfield when he was 17.

Inside of a year he had a pilot's license and just before World War II he was an instructor in the civilian pilot-training program. Now he has more than 4,000 air hours logged. He's accomplished all this in spite of a polio attack, that struck him when he was two and left him with a permanent limp.

Bill got involved in the air-taxi business chiefly because he wanted to own his own plane and it cost a lot of money. In 1948 he put a down payment on an Avion and then discovered he had to scrape together some money to meet the maintenance cost. Appointment Airlines sprang suddenly, almost desperately, into being.

Now Cullen owns two Beechcrafts and he leases two others, giving him a fleet of four planes. They're all based at LaGuardia Airport on Long Island and serviced in Cullen's own shop and facilities on Staten Island. Both of his pilot employes also are mechanics, which also cuts down the overhead a trifle.

Still very much interested in radio as a writer for Arthur Godfrey, for example, and now Godfrey, an intrepid air traveler, is one of his most frequent and best clients. "One way or another," says the waggish Cullen, "I've been helping him to stay on the air for years."

Hes never wearied of flying. "It can be pretty exciting, I tell you," he says, "what with the possibility of flying saucers, meteors, lightning, storms, fogs, high-flying birds and whatnot. However, it's still a lot safer than getting behind an automobile containing a woman driver."

Money-Maker Finds Bag Of Cash In Auto

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Wilbur R. Gordon started home from his job — printing money at the Treasury — and found a bag of the stuff on the roof of his automobile.

He took the bag, containing about $500, to police who located the owner.

Raymond Naylor, restaurant owner, explained that he had placed the bag on Gordon's car while unlocking his own automobile on a parking lot and had driven away without it.

Gen. Dorn Denies He Alone Opposed Book

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23 (AP) — Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn has denied that he was a "one-general barrier" against publication of "Korean Tales," a book by a former Army censor about the Korean War.

The author, Lt. Col. Melvin B. Voorhees of Seattle, faces a military investigation for not clearing the book with the Army before it was published.

Gen. Dorn, deputy information officer at the Pentagon, told a newsman yesterday that Voorhees' charge that he alone opposed the book "is not correct."

"The book was studied carefully in Washington by my entire office," he said. "Members of my staff spent three days going over it with Voorhees and I met with him twice myself. We explained that certain parts were not suitable and would have to be revised."

U. S. Seen Setting Off First H-Bomb In Near Future

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — An atomic energy expert predicts that the United States will explode the world's first hydrogen bomb within a few months.

But Dr Ralph Lapp said Russia will be closed behind.

In a Saturday Evening Post article written with Columnist Stewart Alsop, the atomic energy specialist also predicted:

(1) That the H-bomb will deliver its tremendous punch over a limited area and will not — as most people believe—be able to destroy 50 times the area covered by an atomic bomb;

(2) That H-bombs will cost an estimated 20 million dollars apiece;

(3) That Russia has not yet developed the extra-powerful A-bomb needed to trigger the explosion of a hydrogen bomb; and

(4) That when Russia does explode a test hydrogen bomb, the blast "cannot be hidden from the rest of the world."

Dr. Lapp warned that U. S. development of the H-bomb, hindered by a five-year delay in research, is only a few steps ahead of Russian advances in the field.

American research on the H-bomb, he explained, was delayed by the need to concentrate on an extra-large A-bomb "trigger" and by the doubtful military economics of the super-weapon.

The authors explained that although the H-bomb might have 50 times the explosive force of the largest uranium bomb, it would not destroy 50 times the area but would waste much of its force in "overdestroying" the center of the target.

This fact—coupled with the H-bomb's tremendous cost—was cited as one reason for delay in President Truman's decision to go ahead with development of the weapon.

In Russia, the authors noted, there is far less concentration of population than in the U. S. and the super-weapon would not be practical for anti-personnel attacks.

Dr. Lapp and Alsop, in defining the reasons why President Truman delayed for four and one-half years in giving our atomic scientists the green light on the hydrogen bomb development posed the economic and military drawbacks against what they termed "stronger" arguments in favor of building the H-weapon.

The real strategic significance to holding such a bomb, they said, would be in the destruction of an enemy airbase, atomic plant installation, or other highly-concentrated strategic force centers.

In such a case, the authors explained, a near miss at a vital target by an A-bomb might leave the installation virtually unscathed, while an H-bomb scoring a near miss on the same target could wipe out the objective.

For this overriding reason, they said, Mr. Truman finally gave his approval to the H-bomb plans, his decision augmented by the limitations and scarcity of the highly complicated and expensive intercontinental bombers needed to strike with either of the bombs in defense of America.

The article said the moral problem of such a powerful weapon must be considered not only by the authorities who control its development, but by the scientists who hold the key to the bomb, and by the strategic military planners.

The authors report that Winston Churchill's prediction of a world living in a "peace of mutual terror" may become a reality, since the Soviet Union is presumed to be hard at work on its own H-bomb.

Truman Speaks

There are political gangsters in Maryland, said President Truman yesterday as he addressed Cumberlanders from the rear of his campaign special at Queen City Station.

He went to considerable lengths to lambast the Republican party and accused it of defamation and faking. He accused some Republicans of slander, lies and fear, and said that freedom of thought and speech are under attack in this nation.

Has he forgotten that a little more than a year ago he tried to limit freedom of speech by executive order when he extended military censorship to civilian agencies and denied the press of the nation the right to use this information until it had been cleared by the White House?

Nobody objected to censorship where security was concerned, but who thought it might help the enemy for the Department of Agriculture to issue instructions on how to grow cabbage, for instance?

And Harry Truman made no mention, either, of the fact that he was brought up in the dirty Kansas City politics of Tom Pendergast who eventually went to prison. Harry Truman thought so much of Tom Pendergast that he flew to Kansas City in an Army bomber for his funeral.

One of his first acts when he became President seven years ago was to pardon 15 of Pendergast's henchmen who had been sentenced to prison on charges of stuffing ballot boxes in a Kansas City election.

In 1946, Harry Truman sent orders to Missouri for the defeat of Rep. Roger Slaughter. Again election fraud charges turned up, but the impounded ballots were stolen from the Democratic-machine controlled Court House.

So Harry Truman comes to Cumberland to talk about political gangsters, and to tell the people of this city not to entrust the Bill of Rights to backstreet campaigners.

Harry Truman admitted yesterday he believes General Eisenhower is a great military man, but decried the fact that "he doesn't know the first thing about politics." Politics, said Harry, is government.

But how, we ask again, can Truman have thought Eisenhower was the man for the Presidency in 1948, as a Democrat, and believe today, four years later, that he is not the man for the job?

Maybe Harry thought he could teach him politics his way and continue to run the country from behind the scenes, just as he probably will direct Adlai Stevenson.

Then President Truman mentioned something about needing a man in the White House with courage and principle, indicating that Eisenhower lacks both.

Certainly every American must know that Eisenhower, who led American and other Allied forces to victory in World War II, can't possibly lack either one.

But we wonder just where vindictive Harry Truman stands. Give him credit for having courage but how about his principles?

Subversive Board Finding

The Subversive Activities Control Board will issue within the next few weeks an order requiring the Communist party in the United States to register under the McCarran Act as dominated by Soviet Russia, as the result of a finding of a two-man panel of the Subversive Activities Control Board announced at noon on October 20. The order will come after the two other members of the board concur in the finding.

President Truman named the board on October 23, 1950, with Seth W. Richardson, Republican, as chairman. Richardson, who had been chairman of the Federal Loyalty Review Board, served less than a year, retiring in June 1951 to undergo an operation. He was succeeded as chairman by Peter Campbell Brown, Democrat, a member of the original board.

Other members are David J. Coddaire, Republican, and Dr. Kathryn McHale, Democrat, original members of the board, and Watson B. Miller, Democrat. An original appointee, former Representative Charles La-Follette (R., Ind.), failed to win Senate confirmation. President Truman on July 5 nominated Chester F. Stovall, Republican, to the board, but the nomination was not acted upon.

In his message vetoing the Internal Security Act, President Truman had predicted that Communists would not register. Their prosecution on that count would take two to four years, he said, at the end of which the groups could change their names and continue functioning.

The Supreme Court refused on March 26, 1951, to issue to the Communist party a preliminary injunction for delaying its registration. A district court in Washington denied a second injunction on February 5, 1952. Hearings began in Washington on April 23, 1951. Former Congressman Marcantonio (A.L., N.Y.) and John J. Abt represented the Communist party. Hearings closed July 1 of this year, after evidence and argument which fill almost 15,000 pages.

The Communist party in the United States "never knowingly has deviated from the views and policies of the government and Communist party of the Soviet Union, the Communist International, the Communist Information Bureau and other leaders of the world Communist movement," the government charged in its brief to the board, made public on August 3. The Marcantonio-Abt brief said the government had failed to prove that the party was not "directed and controlled by its own members" or that its objectives were not "to further and promote the best interests of the American people." Only party activities after enactment of the McCarran Act were relevant, the brief held.

A number of the 22 government witnesses at the SACB hearings had testified previously at the New York trial under the Smith Act which resulted in the conviction in October 1949 of 11 top U. S. Communists. The SACB should not be confused with the federal Loyalty Review Board, which rules on the loyalty of government employes.

The Croup Attack

A decade ago, physicians began to wonder whether croup was becoming extinct. The disorder was on the wane and cases were so few and far between that most mothers thought the name referred only to a special type of kettle. A few years ago the condition became more prevalent and in some sections of the country it reached epidemic proportions among youngsters of pre-school age.

Croup is a form of laryngitis in which the voice box goes into spasm, inducing a peculiar type of cough. Because the respiratory passageways extend from the mouth to the far end of the lungs, inflammation rarely is confined to the larynx. For this reason, bronchitis and occasionally pneumonia may co-exist.

The more usual cases generally are so mild, parents scarcely are aware that the child is ill. There may be "running" nose or huskiness of the voice during the day but at night the first clew appears. Shortly after the child falls asleep the family is awakened by the sound of a terrific bout of coughing with a characteristic barking, brassy, hollow sound. On entering the room, they find the little one sitting up in bed struggling for breath, frightened, and grasping the throat. These spells are as typical of croup as the whoop is in whooping cough.

As spasm increases the air makes a sharp, rasping sound on passing through the narrowed larynx. The cause of the difficulty is obstruction and the noise produced is so loud it can be heard for a considerable distance. During the paroxysm the face becomes red, the lips blue, and the veins in the forehead distended. Between spells the tike can hardly talk except in painful whispers. The siege may last for an hour or more unless something is done to relax the obstruction and when this finally occurs the little one falls asleep exhausted. The next morning he awakens tired and with an intermittent barking cough but otherwise well. Other attacks may develop on succeeding nights but there is a tendency for each to become milder.

Although the cause of croup is not known, the amount of spasm is out of proportion to the infection. At any rate, the attacks generally come on at night, when the room begins to chill and cool air strikes the larynx. No one knows why cold is troublesome to some and not to others except that croup seems to run in families, suggesting that this is an inherent characteristic. Nervous children are more predisposed. On the other hand, infection does play a role and is more evident in certain cases. A variety of organisms have been blamed and when infection is severe, the physician may administer not one but several antibiotics simultaneously. Aureomycin is reported to help and in some instances has turned the tide when other medicines failed. Now and then vomiting is induced, after which the sufferer is able to breathe more easily.

However, despite our modern remedies, the inhalation of steam remains the favored aid because it can be counted upon to give relief. These good results explain why we still call the steam inhalator or vaporizer a "croup kettle" even though it is used in treating bronchitis and other respiratory diseases. An ordinary kettle works just as well as the fancy devices seen in hospitals. In may be placed on a hot plate and steam is inhaled while the water is boiling. The moisture can be directed to the desired area by attaching a funnel made of newspaper with the smaller end over the spout. When this maneuver fails and laryngeal spasm becomes tighter and tighter, emergency operation may be needed to open the bronchi.

NEW TB DRUGS

C. G. writes: Could the new drugs for tuberculosis be used on non-tuberculous persons to improve appetite and underweight?

REPLY

This is possible but why not give a break to victims of tuberculosis by letting them have the supply of these drugs now available. After all, underweight is hardly comparable with a disease like tuberculosis. Furthermore, the new drugs have not yet been evaluated thoroughly. We are aware of their good effects but time will be needed to determine the bad effects. Some reactions along this line have been described.

MISDIRECTED LASH

P. L. writes: What can be done about an ingrown lash that irritates the eyeball?

REPLY

Have it removed with tweezers. If there is a recurrence, a more permanent form of epilation, such as electrolysis, may be needed to destroy the hair follicle, which is pointing in instead of out.

FALLACIES ABOUT BATHING

Mrs. K. writes: I take a bath every evening before going to bed. Will this habit soften my body and dry my bones in later years?

REPLY

If you had asked this question 75 years ago, a fiery discussion might have ensued. Bathing has neither of the effects you mention. They will come with age but not from bathing.

Justice Frankfurter Supplied Ike With Boston Banker; Ford And G. M. Ante Up For GOP; Private Taft Memo Explains Loss Of Nomination

WASHINGTON — Some Republicans have blamed Sen. Cabot Lodge for putting Robert Cutler, the busybody Boston banker, aboard General Eisenhower's train. Cutler is the would-be speech-writer who demanded that other Eisenhower ghost-writers get up at 4 a. m. to write another speech when they hit their berths only after midnight.

However, Senator Lodge is in no way to blame. The man who put Cutler on the Eisenhower train, believe it or not, is none other than Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Only a few people know it, but Frankfurter, who is considered a product of the New Deal, and who was elevated by FDR to the highest court in the land, has been flirting with the Republicans. In fact, he's been more than flirting.

Never happy unless he has his finger in politics—despite his position on the Supreme Court—Felix has been an expert in putting his men in key positions in government. And following this pattern, he put his man on the Eisenhower train.

Frankfurter's flirting with Eisenhower came about largely through the fact that two of his key friends —Kenneth Royall, former secretary of War; and Jack McCloy, former commissioner to Germany, are now working for Eisenhower.

NOTE—Some Republicans fear that Frankfurter's dabbling in the Eisenhower campaign will boomerang. They recall that he not only testified for Alger Hiss, but was the man who brought Hiss to Washington in the first place.

Taft And Ike

Vice President Barkley, whose wit is famous, has a new story on General Eisenhower, Senator Taft, and who is running the Republican party.

"A young lady," according to the Veep, "was fishing for catfish down near Paducah. She got a big one on the line—so big that it pulled her into the river.

"A colored man came by and, watching the young lady's battle to bring her catfish into shore, he exclaimed: 'Is that girl a 'cattin'' or is that fish a 'girlin'?'

"And that," says the Veep, "reminds me of the big Republican question is Ike Taftin' or is Taft Ikein'?"

Autos And Politics

Ford auto dealers aren't the only ones who have been ordered to ante up for the Republicans. And the Midwest as recently revealed in this column, isn't the only place where the squeeze is being put on.

Despite what happened in Michigan in 1948 where 18 auto dealers were convicted for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, word now has been passed down by both Ford and General Motors to Michigan dealers to go all out for Congressman Charles Potter, the GOP candidate against Sen. Blair Moody.

The money collections follow somewhat the same pattern as that put across in earlier years by Arthur Summerfield, now chairman of the Republican National Committee. This time, however, the political collection are not based on the number of autos sold, but on cash quotas. Bigger dealers are told they must contribute around $1,000. Smaller dealers are given quotas nearer $200. And it is made clear that the number of cars they receive in the future will depend on the gifts they give to the GOP now.

Details of the money raising are left to branch managers. However, John Bugas, right-hand man to Henry Ford II, has been contact man for the branch managers, while Harry Anderson, vice president of General Motors, has been doing the same for G. M.

Harlowe Curtice, executive vice president of General Motors, and the man expected to take over the G. M. presidency, is close to Arthur Summerfield, who in addition to being national chairman is the biggest Chevrolet dealer in the world. Summerfield is sometimes described among Michigan politicians as Curtice's messenger boy, and it was General Motors that switched him from Taft to Ike just before the Chicago convention.

Taft's Private Memo

Politicans are mystified as to why Senator Taft should have let a confidential memo critical of Eisenhower's supporters leak to the press at this time.

The memo was written by Taft to his backers right after he lost the GOP nomination, and in it he blamed his defeat on New York financial interests and the pro-Eisenhower press. The memo was given to a few newspapermen, and states:

"First, it was the power of the New York financial interests and a large number of businessmen subject to New York influence, who had selected General Eisenhower as their candidate at least a year ago.

"Four-fifths of the influential newspapers in the country were opposed to me continuously and vociferously," Taft declared, "and many turned themselves into propaganda sheets for my opponent. . . .

"The control of the press enabled the Eisenhower people to do many things which otherwise could not have been done," Taft continued bitterly. "The making of a moral issue out of the Texas case was only possible because every international-alist paper sent special writers to blow up a contest which ordinarily would have been settled fairly by the national committee and the credentials committee."

Taft added that the Eisenhower strategy was to reverse the convention rules and garner enough votes "to steal all the contested delegates." He claimed that he would have been "glad (to withdraw) in favor of some other candidate holding my own general views," but that he could not bow out in favor of Gen. Douglas MacArthur before the first ballot, because this would have been "a surrender of principle and a betrayal of thousands of workers and voters who supported me."

Taft also had a barb for Republican governors.

"Like the editors," he complained, "the majority of Republican governors were sold on Eisenhower support."

Trumanism

Trumanism is not a movement in this country. It has no broad base among the people. It is a state of mind, a reflex to a habit of partisan loyalty. It is a broadening of what we, who live in New York, knew as the attitude of Tammany Hall that the party comes first, above city, state and country. It is a renunciation of every moral quality in favor of partisanship.

When applied on the ward level, this attitude wins a measure of approval, just as the gang spirit does, because personal loyalty is a commendable quality. When applied to national affairs, it thins out into a reprehensible quality because it subordinates the nation to the party, the common good to the necessities of pals and cronies.

The President of the United States is a Constitutional officer responsible to and for all the people, those of his party as well as those of the opposition party and of no party whatsoever. Unlike the British prime minister, he does not speak for his party but for the nation. Unlike Stalin, he does not represent a dictatorship of a particular class but performs tasks designated by the Constitution or delegated to him by Congress.

Few Presidents have used this high office strictly for partisan purposes and none with the vindictive tenacity of Harry Truman. He has rejected every criticism of events as a personal affront. Incapable of self-examination, he has rejected examination by Congress, by the press by the people as an indignity.

For instance, his reference to the Alger Hiss case as a "red herring," was not a defense of Hiss but a normal reaction to any discovery of administrative error. His hatred for Senators McCarthy, McCarran, Jenner, Revercomb, Cain and his constant attack on Senator Taft are not due as much to a vast difference over policies as to a refusal to recognize that anything can be right which originates among those who oppose him.

He lives not in a world of principles and ideas but in a world peopled by those who are his friends and those who are his enemies. It is impossible for him to believe that one may like him personally, as Senator Taft does, and oppose him on measures for the country. His violence against General Eisenhower is due to the fact that Eisenhower was once associated with him and no longer chooses to be. He offered Eisenhower the Presidency; to him it is galling that one so honored should have chosen to go his own way.

Despite the peril of Communist infiltration, admitted by both the FBI and the CIA, he has refused aid to the committees of Congress investigating the subject, not because he is even remotely pro-Communist but because the investigations did not originate with him. Out of loyalty to Dean Acheson, he preferred the Tydings Committee whitewash to the McCarran Committee probe.

He has stood by the corruptionists in his administration as long as he could, not because he is corrupt or because he likes corruption but because they are of his party and his clique within the party. If corruptionists are discovered, he must do it—not Congress, not the press, not organs of the people. He must do it because only he can ease them out of government without tarnishing his party.

Truman is not a candidate for office; yet, he has interjected himself into the campaign, making speeches of vilification, introducing false issues, damaging national unity —because he must lead the party, he must win the victory if it is to be won. He has even split his own party and imperilled Stevenson's chances of success, because his judgment on every question must prevail.

That is Trumanism and it has developed into a dangerous egoism No man can be so vituperative, so vindictive, so hating, so self-centered without bringing the evil of his disunity to this nation. Surely his message to the Jewish Welfare Board, his charge that important Americans, including General Eisenhower, are anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic, is the lowest point in American politics and it is to be expected that Adlai Stevenson, a gentleman, bred, will repudiate such boorishness.

Does not Harry Truman know that Pat McCarran is a Roman Catholic whose family is devoted to his church? Does he not know that McCarran's daughter is a nun? Does he really believe Pat McCarran is anti-Catholic?

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Under whose administration — Eisenhower's or Stevenson's — is there more likely to be a third world war?

This question is asked in many letters from readers, and the answer to it does not mean that either man would do anything to precipitate war—in fact, it can be confidently assumed that each would do everything he can to avoid a war.

But this writer is convinced that the conditions which would drag the United States into a large-scale war are much more likely to develop if Stevenson is elected than if Eisenhower becomes President.

In many respects the 1952 election is as vital in world history as was the 1916 election, which the Democrats won on a "peace and prosperity" slogan only to have the German government misconstrue this as a sign that the United States would not come to the aid of Europe. America found herself compelled to enter World War I within six months after the Democrats won that election. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1940 campaign pledged that he would not send American boys to fight overseas except in case of attack. The Democrats won the election, and within 13 months America found herself compelled to enter World War II. Hitler misconstrued American policy as weak and irresolute. He thought he could win Europe before American aid could be effective.

Russia Is Watching

Stalin and the entire politburo are watching the American elections. They know that America is weak at the top command—that the outbreak of the Korean War, for example, caught the United States with no naval strength of consequence in the Far East, no forces of marines there to make landings to assure air bases, no combat army equipped with tanks or trained for an expeditionary operation, and no adequate air force on hand capable of protecting our troops or bombing enemy bases.

The military breakdown in June 1950 was due to faulty policy on the part of the President and secretary of State, who had been advised secretly by General Eisenhower that in the event of general war Korea could not be defended. Mr. Truman had cut the defense budget drastically. Although Congress in 1949, by overwhelming vote, had appropriated $750,000,000 for the Air Force, this was deliberately impounded by the President even as he ordered nearly all the Navy's air power to be put in "mothballs." On top of this, the secretary of State told the Russians publicly in January 1950 that Korea would not be defended by the United States.

General Eisenhower knows better than any man alive today that failure of international policy to be co-ordinated with military capability is the main reason why America was caught unprepared when the Korean aggression occurred.

There is a lack of co-ordination at the top in Washington today which needs someone of experience to grapple with it, and Governor Stevenson would take years to learn what co-ordination is really required. A secretary of Defense is powerless to achieve this co-ordination because he has no authority over the secretary of State — and, of course, shouldn't have. It's the commander-in-chief who must do the co-ordinating, and Mr. Truman has been a tragic failure in this all-important function of leadership.

When Russia is ready to march in Europe, she will do so if she thinks America is weak at the top command and weak in her alliances.

General Eisenhower knows intimately the critical problem of European alliances, since he was the one man all nations in the free world chose to command the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It would take Governor Stevenson months and months to learn the rudiments of this intricate business of Allied armies and Allied co-operation. If Russia intends war, the next few months will give her the best opportunity. For already Europe is dragging along without the unity that an intelligent American leadership can furnish.

Objective Makes Sense

General Eisenhower, if triumphant at the polls, can count on the support of a big majority of Republicans and Democrats in both houses of Congress. The aid-to-Europe program would be strengthened, there would be a better allocation of funds, the alliances would be forged more strongly than ever, especially with France, and Russia would be put on notice that America has elected a commander-in-chief of its armed services who knows how to unite the free world and its forces to deter and discourage enemy aggression. The general favors a program of psychological warfare to weaken the hold of the Kremlin on satellite states, and his objective — self-liberation of the peoples behind the Iron Curtain— makes sense. Democratic spokesmen, in distorting this peace plan both here and abroad, have shown clearly that they do not understand moral force. While they threaten with physical force through an armament build-up, they nevertheless appease. The Munich appeasement in 1938 brought World War II.

Already "left wing' periodicals supporting Stevenson are predicting that he will "negotiate" with Russia and they hint that he will be ready to favor admission of Red China into the UN after a truce in Korea is consummated. This is the same kind of dangerous course that preceded American entry into two world wars—an assumption that "negotiation" would not be misconstrued by the aggressor as weakness. Then America was compelled actually to fight in order to disprove the erroneous assumption.

This correspondent, who is a registered Democrat voting in Virginia, has supported unwavering policies of international co-operation since the days of Woodrow Wilson. General Eisenhower is this year the very exponent of international co-operation. It may be hoped that under his leadership, the 10,000,000 American boys who, Secretary of the Army Pace says, will "experience military duty in the foreseeable future," will never have to cross the seas to fight a third world war. But if they must fight a war — and Russia alone will decide that—it would be better to have the experienced Eisenhower than the inexperienced Stevenson at the helm in what could be the greatest crisis of our entire history.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

"What's Wrong With McCarthy?"

WASHINGTON

Next Monday, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy will "reluctantly' tell what he calls "The Stevenson Story" over a natonal radio and television hookup. The first thing to note about this forthcoming performance, which will undoubtedly be the low-water mark of this not very high level campaign, is that it will be strictly McCarthy's own show.

Neither Gen. Eisenhower's close advisers nor Eisenhower himself were consulted by McCarthy before he announced his intention to "expose" Eisenhower's opponent. The Republican National Committee is not sponsoring the McCarthy speech, and has not contributed to the cost of the performance. Instead, a group of McCarthy admirers, headed by Gen. Robert Wood, of Sears Roebuck and America First fame, is collecting the needed money — more than $50,000, according to the best guesses.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to play his little game in his own way, without regard to the head of his ticket. McCarthy has, indeed, been playing a lone hand throughout this campaign. And many observers, Republicans included, have become convinced that the prize he is playing for is nothing less than the Republican Presidential nomination in 1956.

Good Or Bad

Nothing is more likely to increase McCarthy's chance to gain this prize than the defeat of Gen. Eisenhower (whom McCarthy has often attacked obliquely), since Eisenhower's defeat might well cause a stampede to the right in the frustrated Republican party. And the second point to note about the forthcoming McCarthy performance is the fact that it has placed Eisenhower, through no fault of his own, in an extraordinarily difficult position. If McCarthy's speech lives up—or down—to its original billing, it is likely to alienate many independent voters who have swung to Eisenhower. If Eisenhower demands the right to review the speech before it is delivered, this will make it seem that he has endorsed whatever McCarthy subsequently says. And under any circumstances, many voters will tend to identify what McCarthy says with the Eisenhower candidacy.

There are those, to be sure, like Republican National Chairman Arthur Summerfield, who think that this is all to the good, and that McCarthy is an "asset" to Eisenhower. There is, in truth, some superficial evidence to support this view. Any political observer travelling about this country often hears a twin pair of questions: "What's wrong with Joe McCarthy anyway? He got the Communists out of the State Department, didn't he?"

The second question is easy enough to answer, since McCarthy has yet to identify a single Communist in the State Department. But the first question is more difficult. One way to try to answer it is to quote the climactic peroration of McCarthy's only pre-primary speech in Wisconsin, at which one of these reporters was present. McCarthy spoke as follows:

"There are those who say that there are no longer Communists in the government. I am not going to ask you to take my word for that. I have in my hands a brief prepared by seven lawyers of the Justice Department, dated July 28, 1952: 'Illegal passports have been used to expedite travel in foreign countries by members of the Communist party. Plans have been discussed by leading members of the Soviet secret police to obtain blank passports from the U. S. State Department from Communists employed in the State Department.'"

Occurred In 1928

This sounds—as it was meant to sound—like complete vindication of all McCarthy's gravest charges. For if the English language means anything at all, these words mean that there are now, in 1952, Communists in the State Department, working hand in glove with the Soviet secret police.

The words McCarthy quoted were indeed taken from a report of the Justice Department. The Justice De-

Truman Speaks

There are political gangsters in Maryland, said President Truman yesterday as he addressed Cumberlanders from the rear of his campaign special at Queen City Station.

He went to considerable lengths to lambast the Republican party and accused it of defamation and faking. He accused some Republicans of slander, lies and fear, and said that freedom of thought and speech are under attack in this nation.

Has he forgotten that a little more than a year ago he tried to limit freedom of speech by executive order when he extended military censorship to civilian agencies and denied the press of the nation the right to use this information until it had been cleared by the White House?

Nobody objected to censorship where security was concerned, but who thought it might help the enemy for the Department of Agriculture to issue instructions on how to grow cabbage, for instance?

And Harry Truman made no mention, either, of the fact that he was brought up in the dirty Kansas City politics of Tom Pendergast who eventually went to prison. Harry Truman thought so much of Tom Pendergast that he flew to Kansas City in an Army bomber for his funeral.

One of his first acts when he became President seven years ago was to pardon 15 of Pendergast's henchmen who had been sentenced to prison on charges of stuffing ballot boxes in a Kansas City election.

In 1946, Harry Truman sent orders to Missouri for the defeat of Rep. Roger Slaughter. Again election fraud charges turned up, but the impounded ballots were stolen from the Democratic-machine controlled Court House.

So Harry Truman comes to Cumberland to talk about political gangsters, and to tell the people of this city not to entrust the Bill of Rights to backstreet campaigners.

Harry Truman admitted yesterday he believes General Eisenhower is a great military man, but decried the fact that "he doesn't know the first thing about politics." Politics, said Harry, is government.

But how, we ask again, can Truman have thought Eisenhower was the man for the Presidency in 1948, as a Democrat, and believe today, four years later, that he is not the man for the job?

Maybe Harry thought he could teach him politics his way and continue to run the country from behind the scenes, just as he probably will direct Adlai Stevenson.

Then President Truman mentioned something about needing a man in the White House with courage and principle, indicating that Eisenhower lacks both.

Certainly every American must know that Eisenhower, who led American and other Allied forces to victory in World War II, can't possibly lack either one.

But we wonder just where vindictive Harry Truman stands. Give him credit for having courage but how about his principles?

Subversive Board Finding

The Subversive Activities Control Board will issue within the next few weeks an order requiring the Communist party in the United States to register under the McCarran Act as dominated by Soviet Russia, as the result of a finding of a two-man panel of the Subversive Activities Control Board announced at noon on October 20. The order will come after the two other members of the board concur in the finding.

President Truman named the board on October 23, 1950, with Seth W. Richardson, Republican, as chairman. Richardson, who had been chairman of the Federal Loyalty Review Board, served less than a year, retiring in June 1951 to undergo an operation. He was succeeded as chairman by Peter Campbell Brown, Democrat, a member of the original board.

Other members are David J. Coddaire, Republican, and Dr. Kathryn McHale, Democrat, original members of the board, and Watson B. Miller, Democrat. An original appointee, former Representative Charles LaFollette (R., Ind.), failed to win Senate confirmation. President Truman on July 5 nominated Chester F. Stovall, Republican, to the board, but the nomination was not acted upon.

In his message vetoing the Internal Security Act, President Truman had predicted that Communists would not register. Their prosecution on that count would take two to four years, he said, at the end of which the groups could change their names and continue functioning.

The Supreme Court refused on March 26, 1951, to issue to the Communist party a preliminary injunction for delaying its registration. A district court in Washington denied a second injunction on February 5, 1952. Hearings began in Washington on April 23, 1951. Former Congressman Marcantonio (A.L., N.Y.) and John J. Abt represented the Communist party. Hearings closed July 1 of this year, after evidence and argument which fill almost 15,000 pages.

The Communist party in the United States "never knowingly has deviated from the views and policies of the government and Communist party of the Soviet Union, the Communist International, the Communist Information Bureau and other leaders of the world Communist movement," the government charged in its brief to the board, made public on August 3. The Marcantonio-Abt brief said the government had failed to prove that the party was not "directed and controlled by its own members" or that its objectives were not "to further and promote the best interests of the American people." Only party activities after enactment of the McCarran Act were relevant, the brief held.

A number of the 22 government witnesses at the SACB hearings had testified previously at the New York trial under the Smith Act which resulted in the conviction in October 1949 of 11 top U. S. Communists. The SACB should not be confused with the federal Loyalty Review Board, which rules on the loyalty of government employes.

The Croup Attack

A decade ago, physicians began to wonder whether croup was becoming extinct. The disorder was on the wane and cases were so few and far between that most mothers thought the name referred only to a special type of kettle. A few years ago the condition became more prevalent and in some sections of the country it reached epidemic proportions among youngsters of pre-school age.

Croup is a form of laryngitis in which the voice box goes into spasm, inducing a peculiar type of cough. Because the respiratory passageways extend from the mouth to the far end of the lungs, inflammation rarely is confined to the larynx. For this reason, bronchitis and occasionally pneumonia may co-exist.

The more usual cases generally are so mild, parents scarcely are aware that the child is ill. There may be "running" nose or huskiness of the voice during the day but at night the first clew appears. Shortly after the child falls asleep the family is awakened by the sound of a terrific bout of coughing with a characteristic barking, brassy, hollow sound. On entering the room, they find the little one sitting up in bed struggling for breath, frightened, and grasping the throat. These spells are as typical of croup as the whoop is in whooping cough.

As spasm increases the air makes a sharp, rasping sound on passing through the narrowed larynx. The cause of the difficulty is obstruction and the noise produced is so loud it can be heard for a considerable distance. During the paroxysm the face becomes red, the lips blue, and the veins in the forehead distended. Between spells the tike can hardly talk except in painful whispers. The siege may last for an hour or more unless something is done to relax the obstruction and when this finally occurs the little one falls asleep exhausted. The next morning he awakens tired and with an intermittent barking cough but otherwise well. Other attacks may develop on succeeding nights but there is a tendency for each to become milder.

Although the cause of croup is not known, the amount of spasm is out of proportion to the infection. At any rate, the attacks generally come on at night, when the room begins to chill and cool air strikes the larynx. No one knows why cold is troublesome to some and not to others except that croup seems to run in families, suggesting that this is an inherent characteristic. Nervous children are more predisposed. On the other hand, infection does play a role and is more evident in certain cases. A variety of organisms have been blamed and when infection is severe, the physician may administer not one but several antibiotics simultaneously. Aureomycin is reported to help and in some instances has turned the tide when other medicines failed. Now and then vomiting is induced, after which the sufferer is able to breathe more easily.

However, despite our modern remedies, the inhalation of steam remains the favored aid because it can be counted upon to give relief. These good results explain why we still call the steam inhalator or vaporizer a "croup kettle" even though it is used in treating bronchitis and other respiratory diseases. An ordinary kettle works just as well as the fancy devices seen in hospitals. In may be placed on a hot plate and steam is inhaled while the water is boiling. The moisture can be directed to the desired area by attaching a funnel made of newspaper with the smaller end over the spout. When this maneuver fails and laryngeal spasm becomes tighter and tighter, emergency operation may be needed to open the bronchi.

TOMORROW: When skepticism pays.

NEW TB DRUGS

C. G. writes: Could the new drugs for tuberculosis be used on non-tuberculous persons to improve appetite and underweight?

REPLY

This is possible but why not give a break to victims of tuberculosis by letting them have the supply of these drugs now available. After all, underweight is hardly comparable with a disease like tuberculosis. Furthermore, the new drugs have not yet been evaluated thoroughly. We are aware of their good effects but time will be needed to determine the bad effects. Some reactions along this line have been described.

MISDIRECTED LASH

P. L. writes: What can be done about an ingrown lash that irritates the eyeball?

REPLY

Have it removed with tweezers. If there is a recurrence, a more permanent form of epilation, such as electrolysis, may be needed to destroy the hair follicle, which is pointing in instead of out.

FALLACIES ABOUT BATHING

Mrs. K. writes: I take a bath every evening before going to bed. Will this habit soften my body and dry my bones in later years?

REPLY

If you had asked this question 75 years ago, a fiery discussion might have ensued. Bathing has neither of the effects you mention. They will come with age but not from bathing.

Justice Frankfurter Supplied Ike With Boston Banker; Ford And G. M. Ante Up For GOP; Private Taft Memo Explains Loss Of Nomination

WASHINGTON — Some Republicans have blamed Sen. Cabot Lodge for putting Robert Cutler, the busybody Boston banker, aboard General Eisenhower's train. Cutler is the would-be speech-writer who demanded that other Eisenhower ghost-writers get up at 4 a. m. to write another speech when they hit their berths only after midnight.

However, Senator Lodge is in no way to blame. The man who put Cutler on the Eisenhower train, believe it or not, is none other than Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Only a few people know it, but Frankfurter, who is considered a product of the New Deal, and who was elevated by FDR to the highest court in the land, has been flirting with the Republicans. In fact, he's been more than flirting.

Never happy unless he has his finger in politics—despite his position on the Supreme Court—Felix has been an expert in putting his men in key positions in government. And following this pattern, he put his man on the Eisenhower train.

Frankfurter's flirting with Eisenhower came about largely through the fact that two of his key friends —Kenneth Royall, former secretary of War; and Jack McCloy, former commissioner to Germany, are now working for Eisenhower.

NOTE—Some Republicans fear that Frankfurter's dabbling in the Eisenhower campaign will boomerang. They recall that he not only testified for Alger Hiss, but was the man who brought Hiss to Washington in the first place.

Taft And Ike

Vice President Barkley, whose wit is famous, has a new story on General Eisenhower, Senator Taft, and who is running the Republican party.

"A young lady," according to the Veep, "was fishing for catfish down near Paducah. She got a big one on the line—so big that it pulled her into the river.

"A colored man came by and, watching the young lady's battle to bring her catfish into shore, he exclaimed: 'Is that girl a 'cattin'' or is that fish a 'girlin'?'

"And that," says the Veep, "reminds me of the big Republican question is Ike Taftin' or is Taft Ikein'?"

Autos And Politics

Ford auto dealers aren't the only ones who have been ordered to ante up for the Republicans. And the Midwest as recently revealed in this column, isn't the only place where the squeeze is being put on.

Despite what happened in Michigan in 1948 where 18 auto dealers were convicted for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, word now has been passed down by both Ford and General Motors to Michigan dealers to go all out for Congressman Charles Potter, the GOP candidate against Sen. Blair Moody.

The money collections follow somewhat the same pattern as that put across in earlier years by Arthur Summerfield, now chairman of the Republican National Committee. This time, however, the political collection are not based on the number of autos sold, but on cash quotas. Bigger dealers are told they must contribute around $1,000. Smaller dealers are given quotas nearer $200. And it is made clear that the number of cars they receive in the future will depend on the gifts they give to the GOP now.

Details of the money raising are left to branch managers. However, John Bugas, right-hand man to Henry Ford II, has been contact man for the branch managers, while Harry Anderson, vice president of General Motors, has been doing the same for G. M.

Harlowe Curtice, executive vice president of General Motors, and the man expected to take over the G. M. presidency, is close to Arthur Summerfield, who in addition to being national chairman is the biggest Chevrolet dealer in the world. Summerfield is sometimes described among Michigan politicians as Curtice's messenger boy, and it was General Motors that switched him from Taft to Ike just before the Chicago convention.

Taft's Private Memo

Politicans are mystified as to why Senator Taft should have let a confidential memo critical of Eisenhower's supporters leak to the press at this time.

The memo was written by Taft to his backers right after he lost the GOP nomination, and in it he blamed his defeat on New York financial interests and the pro-Eisenhower press. The memo was given to a few newspapermen, and states:

"First, it was the power of the New York financial interests and a large number of businessmen subject to New York influence, who had selected General Eisenhower as their candidate at least a year ago.

"Four-fifths of the influential newspapers in the country were opposed to me continuously and vociferously," Taft declared, "and many turned themselves into propaganda sheets for my opponent. . . .

"The control of the press enabled the Eisenhower people to do many things which otherwise could not have been done," Taft continued bitterly. "The making of a moral issue out of the Texas case was only possible because every internationalist paper sent special writers to blow up a contest which ordinarily would have been settled fairly by the national committee and the credentials committee."

Taft added that the Eisenhower strategy was to reverse the convention rules and garner enough votes "to steal all the contested delegates." He claimed that he would have been "glad (to withdraw) in favor of some other candidate holding my own general views," but that he could not bow out in favor of Gen. Douglas MacArthur before the first ballot, because this would have been "a surrender of prinicple and a betrayal of thousands of workers and voters who supported me."

Taft also had a barb for Republican governors.

Trumanism

Trumanism is not a movement in this country. It has no broad base among the people. It is a state of mind, a reflex to a habit of partisan loyalty. It is a broadening of what we, who live in New York, knew as the attitude of Tammany Hall that the party comes first, above city, state and country. It is a renunciation of every moral quality in favor of partisanship.

When applied on the ward level, this attitude wins a measure of approval, just as the gang spirit does, because personal loyalty is a commendable quality. When applied to national affairs, it thins out into a reprehensible quality because it subordinates the nation to the party, the common good to the necessities of pals and cronies.

The President of the United States is a Constitutional officer responsible to and for all the people, those of his party as well as those of the opposition party and of no party whatsoever. Unlike the British prime minister, he does not speak for his party but for the nation. Unlike Stalin, he does not represent a dictatorship of a particular class but performs tasks designated by the Constitution or delegated to him by Congress.

Few Presidents have used this high office strictly for partisan purposes and none with the vindictive tenacity of Harry Truman. He has rejected every criticism of events as a personal affront. Incapable of self-examination, he has rejected examination by Congress, by the press by the people as an indignity.

For instance, his reference to the Alger Hiss case as a "red herring," was not a defense of Hiss but a normal reaction to any discovery of administrative error. His hatred for Senators McCarthy, McCarran, Jenner, Revercomb, Cain and his constant attack on Senator Taft are not due as much to a vast difference over policies as to a refusal to recognize that anything can be right which originates among those who oppose him.

He lives not in a world of principles and ideas but in a world peopled by those who are his friends and those who are his enemies. It is impossible for him to believe that one may like him personally, as Senator Taft does, and oppose him on measures for the country. His violence against General Eisenhower is due to the fact that Eisenhower was once associated with him and no longer chooses to be. He offered Eisenhower the Presidency; to him it is galling that one so honored should have chosen to go his own way.

Despite the peril of Communist infiltration, admitted by both the FBI and the CIA, he has refused aid to the committees of Congress investigating the subject, not because he is even remotely pro-Communist but because the investigations did not originate with him. Out of loyalty to Dean Acheson, he preferred the Tydings Committee whitewash to the McCarran Committee probe.

He has stood by the corruptionists in his administration as long as he could, not because he is corrupt or because he likes corruption but because they are of his party and his clique within the party. If corruptionists are discovered, he must do it—not Congress, not the press, not organs of the people. He must do it because only he can ease them out of government without tarnishing his party.

Truman is not a candidate for office; yet, he has interjected himself into the campaign, making speeches of vilification, introducing false issues, damaging national unity —because he must lead the party, he must win the victory if it is to be won. He has even split his own party and imperilled Stevenson's chances of success, because his judgment on every question must prevail.

That is Trumanism and it has developed into a dangerous egoism No man can be so vituperative, so vindictive, so hating, so self-centered without bringing the evil of his disunity to this nation. Surely his message to the Jewish Welfare Board, his charge that important Americans, including General Eisenhower, are anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic, is the lowest point in American politics and it is to be expected that Adlai Stevenson, a gentleman, bred, will repudiate such boorishness.

Does not Harry Truman know that Pat McCarran is a Roman Catholic whose family is devoted to his church? Does he not know that McCarran's daughter is a nun? Does he really believe Pat McCarran is anti-Catholic?

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Under whose administration — Eisenhower's or Stevenson's — is there more likely to be a third world war?

This question is asked in many letters from readers, and the answer to it does not mean that either man would do anything to precipitate war—in fact, it can be confidently assumed that each would do everything he can to avoid a war.

But this writer is convinced that the conditions which would drag the United States into a large-scale war are much more likely to develop if Stevenson is elected than if Eisenhower becomes President.

In many respects the 1952 election is as vital in world history as was the 1916 election, which the Democrats won on a "peace and prosperity" slogan only to have the German government misconstrue this as a sign that the United States would not come to the aid of Europe. America found herself compelled to enter World War I within six months after the Democrats won that election. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1940 campaign pledged that he would not send American boys to fight overseas except in case of attack. The Democrats won the election, and within 13 months America found herself compelled to enter World War II. Hitler misconstrued American policy as weak and irresolute. He thought he could win Europe before American aid could be effective.

Russia Is Watching

Stalin and the entire politburo are watching the American elections. They know that America is weak at the top command—that the outbreak of the Korean War, for example, caught the United States with no naval strength of consequence in the Far East, no forces of marines there to make landings to assure air bases, no combat army equipped with tanks or trained for an expeditionary operation, and no adequate air force on hand capable of protecting our troops or bombing enemy bases.

The military breakdown in June 1950 was due to faulty policy on the part of the President and secretary of State, who had been advised secretly by General Eisenhower that in the event of general war Korea could not be defended. Mr. Truman had cut the defense budget drastically. Although Congress in 1949, by overwhelming vote, had appropriated $750,000,000 for the Air Force, this was deliberately impounded by the President even as he ordered nearly all the Navy's air power to be put in "mothballs." On top of this, the secretary of State told the Russians publicly in January 1950 that Korea would not be defended by the United States.

General Eisenhower knows better than any man alive today that failure of international policy to be co-ordinated with military capability is the main reason why America was caught unprepared when the Korean aggression occurred.

There is a lack of co-ordination at the top in Washington today which needs someone of experience to grapple with it, and Governor Stevenson would take years to learn what co-ordination is really required. A secretary of Defense is powerless to achieve this co-ordination because he has no authority over the secretary of State — and, of course, shouldn't have. It's the commander-in-chief who must do the co-ordinating, and Mr. Truman has been a tragic failure in this all-important function of leadership.

When Russia is ready to march in Europe, she will do so if she thinks America is weak at the top command and weak in her alliances.

General Eisenhower knows intimately the critical problem of European alliances, since he was the one man all nations in the free world chose to command the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It would take Governor Stevenson months and months to learn the rudiments of this intricate business of Allied armies and Allied co-operation. If Russia intends war, the next few months will give her the best opportunity. For already Europe is dragging along without the unity that an intelligent American leadership can furnish.

Objective Makes Sense

General Eisenhower, if triumphant at the polls, can count on the support of a big majority of Republicans and Democrats in both houses of Congress. The aid-to-Europe program would be strengthened, there would be a better allocation of funds, the alliances would be forged more strongly than ever, especially with France, and Russia would be put on notice that America has elected a commander-in-chief of its armed services who knows how to unite the free world and its forces to deter and discourage enemy aggression. The general favors a program of psychological warfare to weaken the hold of the Kremlin on satellite states, and his objective — self-liberation of the peoples behind the Iron Curtain—makes sense. Democratic spokesmen, in distorting this peace plan both here and abroad, have shown clearly that they do not understand moral force. While they threaten with physical force through an armament build-up, they nevertheless appease. The Munich appeasement in 1938 brought World War II.

Already "left wing' periodicals supporting Stevenson are predicting that he will "negotiate" with Russia and they hint that he will be ready to favor admission of Red China into the UN after a truce in Korea is consummated. This is the same kind of dangerous course that preceded American entry into two world wars—an assumption that "negotiation" would not be misconstrued by the aggressor as weakness. Then America was compelled actually to fight in order to disprove the erroneous assumption.

This correspondent, who is a registered Democrat voting in Virginia, has supported unwavering policies of international co-operation since the days of Woodrow Wilson. General Eisenhower is this year the very exponent of international co-operation. It may be hoped that under his leadership, the 10,000,000 American boys who, Secretary of the Army Pace says, will "experience military duty in the foreseeable future," will never have to cross the seas to fight a third world war. But if they must fight a war — and Russia alone will decide that—it would be better to have the experienced Eisenhower than the inexperienced Stevenson at the helm in what could be the greatest crisis of our entire history.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

"What's Wrong With McCarthy?"

WASHINGTON

Next Monday, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy will "reluctantly' tell what he calls "The Stevenson Story" over a natonal radio and television hookup. The first thing to note about this forthcoming performance, which will undoubtedly be the low-water mark of this not very high level campaign, is that it will be strictly McCarthy's own show.

Neither Gen. Eisenhower's close advisers nor Eisenhower himself were consulted by McCarthy before he announced his intention to "expose" Eisenhower's opponent. The Republican National Committee is not sponsoring the McCarthy speech, and has not contributed to the cost of the performance. Instead, a group of McCarthy admirers, headed by Gen. Robert Wood, of Sears Roebuck and America First fame, is collecting the needed money — more than $50,000, according to the best guesses.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to play his little game in his own way, without regard to the head of his ticket. McCarthy has, indeed, been playing a lone hand throughout this campaign. And many observers, Republicans included, have become convinced that the prize he is playing for is nothing less than the Republican Presidential nomination in 1956.

Good Or Bad

Nothing is more likely to increase McCarthy's chance to gain this prize than the defeat of Gen. Eisenhower (whom McCarthy has often attacked obliquely), since Eisenhower's defeat might well cause a stampede to the right in the frustrated Republican party. And the second point to note about the forthcoming McCarthy performance is the fact that it has placed Eisenhower, through no fault of his own, in an extraordinarily difficult position. If McCarthy's speech lives up—or down—to its original billing, it is likely to alienate many independent voters who have swung to Eisenhower. If Eisenhower demands the right to review the speech before it is delivered, this will make it seem that he has endorsed whatever McCarthy subsequently says. And under any circumstances, many voters will tend to identify what McCarthy says with the Eisenhower candidacy.

There are those, to be sure, like Republican National Chairman Arthur Summerfield, who think that this is all to the good, and that McCarthy is an "asset" to Eisenhower. There is, in truth, some superficial evidence to support this view. Any political observer travelling about this country often hears a twin pair of questions: "What's wrong with Joe McCarthy anyway? He got the Communists out of the State Department, didn't he?"

The second question is easy enough to answer, since McCarthy has yet to identify a single Communist in the State Department. But the first question is more difficult. One way to try to answer it is to quote the climactic peroration of McCarthy's only pre-primary speech in Wisconsin, at which one of these reporters was present. McCarthy spoke as follows:

"There are those who say that there are no longer Communists in the government. I am not going to ask you to take my word for that. I have in my hands a brief prepared by seven lawyers of the Justice Department, dated July 28, 1952: 'Illegal passports have been used to expedite travel in foreign countries by members of the Communist party. Plans have been discussed by leading members of the Soviet secret police to obtain blank passports from the U. S. State Department from Communists employed in the State Department.'"

Occurred In 1928

This sounds—as it was meant to sound—like complete vindication of all McCarthy's gravest charges. For if the English language means anything at all, these words mean that there are now, in 1952, Communists in the State Department, working hand in glove with the Soviet secret police.

The words McCarthy quoted were indeed taken from a report of the Justice Department. The Justice De-

Naval Reserve Seeks Recruits

Capt. Joseph P. Blundon, commanding officer of the local CB Company, announced yesterday that the Naval Reserve is seeking construction tradesmen for openings in the famous "Seabee Reserve," the Navy's Construction Battalion here.

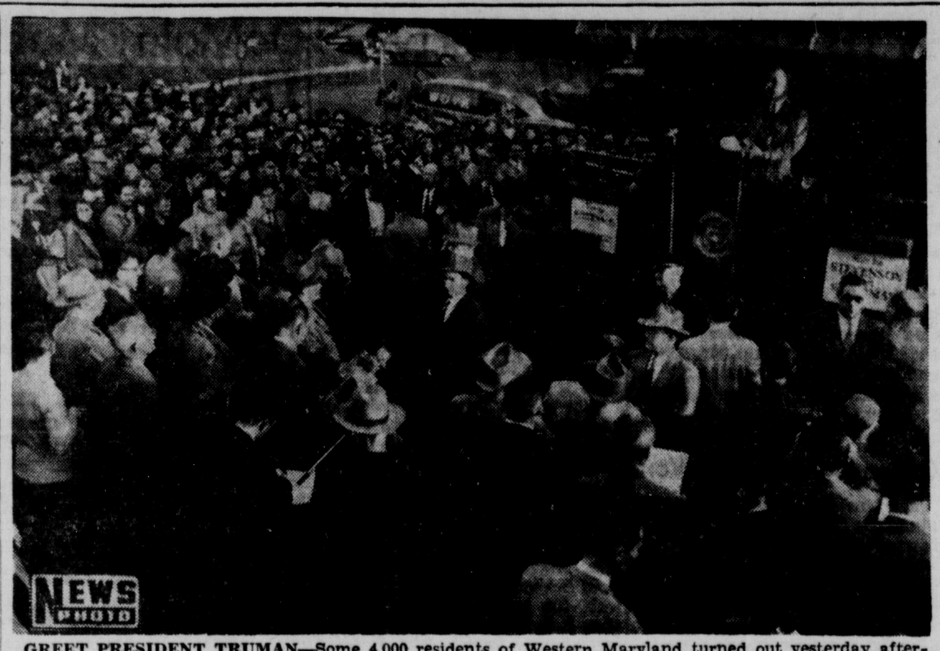

As a result of a current recruiting campaign, the local Navy Reserve have enlisted three area men.

They are Clarence J. Bittle, Cresaptown, formerly a Navy Petty Officer and a Korean veteran; Joseph Edward Ott, Ridgeley, who served in the Army during World War II, and Donald Robert Walters, 514 Marshall Street, recently discharged from the Marine Corps.

Donald R. McCleaf, 604 Elm Street, who served in the Air Force during the last war, has filed application for enlistment and is expected to become a member of the CB Company soon.

Capt. Blundon said the local CB unit is planning a dinner party at the Cumberland Country Club for Tuesday evening following a brief meeting at the Navy Reserve Armory.

For additional information on the Seabee Reserve, interested persons may call 5273 or visit the Navy Training Center, McKaig's Hill.

GREET PRESIDENT TRUMAN—Some 4,000 residents of Western Maryland turned out yesterday afternoon to greet the president at Queen City Station. The crowd heard Truman lash out at the Republicans for using what he termed "back street" politics on a national scale. The reception was the best put on by the city for the parade of candidates seeking favor in Western Maryland.

plan to bring industry into the Cumberland area. Chamber officials searched two months for the right man to handle Cumberland's prospects for industry.

The Chamber first launched its long-range idea several months ago when it began its first phase, that of raising funds for the new director of the promotion department.

The Industrial Promotion Fund Drive's goal of $100,000 was oversubscribed within two weeks with area business and professional men anxious to help in improving the economic condition of the area.

After three weeks, business and industrial leaders pledging to the drive in sums from $5 to $15,000, made possible $165,000 for the director's work in industrial promotion.

Will Live Here

Hargreaves was born in 1915 in Paterson, N. J., is married and has three sons of school age. He and his family will make their home in Cumberland as soon as housing facilities can be located.

The new director attended the Syracuse University School of Business Administration and was an instructor at the University of Baltimore in night school for three years.

Hargreaves was district manager of cargo sales for Trans Canada Airlines for two years and from May 1941 to August, 1946, he was procedure analyst for American Airlines. From September 1937, to May 1941, he was special representative of the American Express Company.

In Baltimore, Hargreaves has been active in Civil Defense, Red Cross, Community Fund, Parent-Teachers Association work, Kiwanis Club, Association of Scheduled Airlines of Baltimore, National Defense Transportation Association, Baltimore Public Relations Council, Baltimore Yacht Club and Delta Nu Alpha Fraternity.

plan to bring industry into the Cumberland area. Chamber officials searched two months for the right man to handle Cumberland's prospects for industry.

The Chamber first launched its long-range idea several months ago when it began its first phase, that of raising funds for the new director of the promotion department.

The Industrial Promotion Fund Drive's goal of $100,000 was oversubscribed within two weeks with area business and professional men anxious to help in improving the economic condition of the area.

After three weeks, business and industrial leaders pledging to the drive in sums from $5 to $15,000, made possible $165,000 for the director's work in industrial promotion.

Will Live Here

Hargreaves was born in 1915 in Paterson, N. J., is married and has three sons of school age. He and his family will make their home in Cumberland as soon as housing facilities can be located.

The new director attended the Syracuse University School of Business Administration and was an instructor at the University of Baltimore in night school for three years.

Hargreaves was district manager of cargo sales for Trans Canada Airlines for two years and from May 1941 to August, 1946, he was procedure analyst for American Airlines. From September 1937, to May 1941, he was special representative of the American Express Company.

In Baltimore, Hargreaves has been active in Civil Defense, Red Cross, Community Fund, Parent-Teachers Association work, Kiwanis Club, Association of Scheduled Airlines of Baltimore, National Defense Transportation Association, Baltimore Public Relations Council, Baltimore Yacht Club and Delta Nu Alpha Fraternity.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK — "And what is it that impresses you most about Manhattan?" is a question I am wont to ask distinguished visitors to this rag-bag city of mine. The customary answers are the Empire State Building, the Washington Bridge, Times Square or the good-looking dames—but to Priscilla Pote-Hunt, this is the one place where a girl can buy those wide elastic belts that are the thing to wear this season and that do so much for a small-waisted wench.

I guess Mrs. Pote-Hunt's answer is a pretty typical feminine answer, which is a reasonable thing, since Mrs. Pote-Hunt is a pretty typical feminine. Aged somewhere in the 30s and looking somewhere in the 20s, Mrs. P-H is program director in Hong Kong for Rediffusion, Ltd., the Muza-type radio that Hong Kongians pay $10 or so a month for, rather than be subjected to listening to the BBC station in that Far East hotbed of intrigue.

The attractive Mrs. Hunt (let's settle for that, shall we?) was in New York partly on business, partly on vacation and partly on a kind of wistful pilgrimage to the city of her birth. She was born in New York of English parents and has kept her American citizenship all through the years, although, as she explains, her British ancestry and the British environment in Hong Kong have made her a pretty strong defender of the faith and unofficial subject of the queen.

These are precarious, uncertain days in Hong Kong—which Mrs. Hunt looks on as a last outpost of democracy in the Far East—and there is, I guess, no real reason why she should stay there . . . except money. She is a sizeable wheel in H.K.—indeed, she's the only feminine executive in all 33 of Rediffusion's stations through the world—and much as she'd like to come back to New York and work, it might be a bit tough to get a comparable position and income.

Any involved discussion of Hong Kong, its politics and its machinations, can be a ticklish thing these days and Priscilla is of no mind to get into one. All she will say is that, generally speaking, people talk more in New York about the Korean War than they do in H-K. The British, as you know, have made peace with the Red Chinese government, feeling that the most important thing is to keep Hong Kong as a last free frontier, and so the big, sprawling, poverty-stricken glamorous city goes on its merry way.

A woman gets to be program director for a radio station in a peculiar way. "I was home listening to Rediffusion one afternoon," Priscilla told me, "when I heard a record program featuring a Brahms symphony. There was one thing wrong. They played the third movement before the second. I was so upset I rang up the station and lectured somebody there, after which somebody finally said, 'Why don't you come on in?' Next thing I knew, I was writing program material and notes—and pretty soon I was program director."

Priscilla's husband is a stockbroker who was interned for years during the war in a Japanese prison camp; during those years she was in New York working energetically for the British War Relief Society and making out so well that she was awarded the order of Officer of the British Empire, one of the youngest ever to win it.

Rediffusion is piped directly into the homes in Hong Kong—and, indeed, into 800,000 homes in England. Its programs are given in both English and Chinese and it specializes in music, just like Muzak; thus, if you take the service, you are spared some of the ponderously dull programs that mark the BBC broadcasts. On the other hand, you get commercials, and that gives the BBC a six-length lead turning into the homestretch. The dullest radio program in the world can be bearable just so long as it is not interrupted each five minutes with warnings to brush your teeth with high-grade beer.

There are two-and-a-half million Chinese in Hong Kong today. "They live in incredible squalor," Mrs. Hunt said sadly, "but they always have—and sometimes it seems they always will. When I first went among them, I was appalled. But if you are to live with them, you must steel yourself and force yourself to become used to their ways. I did, long ago."

To look smart in evening attire, always choose your foundation before your new frock!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

As fashion goes, so go foundations — and so yours had better go if you pride yourself on fashionable looks. How important it is to your soingee appearance to be wearing the proper foundation when you select a new costume is attested to by the fact that some stores now offer the service of a corsetiere right in their ready-to-wear fitting rooms.

For smooth results, evening underpinnings without fail, must be purchased before and not after your evening frock because they must be worn at try-ons and fittings. Since matching the right foundation to the evening-dress silhouette you select is the clever gambit that makes your looks worth looking at, here's a review of what's new to simplify the doing:

As you may have discovered, the new evening sheaths are so slim that some even appear to be plastered to the figure. But equal to the challenge are the strapless corselets with lacy, wired bras and beribboned firm panels.

A less figure-revealing gown is one with a snug bodice and flowing skirt. To bring out its special appeal, special control is usually needed only in the rib and waist areas. This is provided for small or trim figures by either a waistlet that extends upward into a strapless, cuffed bra and downward into a hip-hugging garter belt. An alternate is the combination of a longline bra and high girdle. Larger figures, however, will find an evening corselet the wiser choice.

For those who have a preference and the figure for an evening pantiegirdle, many styles offer the "plus" control of vertical stretch and fabric panels as well as above the waist extensions . . . . two to four inches above!

Special effects can be catered to by bras with halter straps, back and front plunges, cuffed necklines and flowered appliques that peek-a-boo above a decolletage or through a sheer fabric.

The scarcity of boning and bulk in evening foundations is a tribute to the wizardry of today's foundation designers. For all the light, dainty and luxurious qualities, through inspired cutting and shaping, these underpinnings provide beauteous molding and control for your looks!

Lovely Year For It

Fellow put the almost perfect elimination on his wife and his lawyer pleaded with sobs in his brief case, "Judge, we plead nullius gumbo, it's a presidenial year."

There's more to that than meets the 5.15 local. Something happens during a presidential year that brackets the details with earthquakes, forest fire and capers beyond the control of corporations.

Why, the minute I get on a crosstown bus or street car I rush to the back platform to make a speech.

Put an umbrella under a man's arm and he will walk by a prominent building liket he office is seeking the janitor.

Yesterday a stranger looked at me as if his vote hadn't been counted. I didn't know whether to pull in my neck or wear a higher collar.

You can steal sheep during a presidential year and blame it on the two-party system. Nobody is ever arrested because the lid was off the garbage can in 1940, '44, '48 or '52. But try it in 1941 or 1949 and you are a passenger pigeon.

The Indus river, which bounds India on the west, is more than 1,800 miles long.

Webster Lists Basic Factors Of Good Schools

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools, spoke at a fellowship dinner, sponsored by the Allegany County Council of Parent-Teacher Association, Tuesday night in the dining hall of Frostburg State Teachers College.

Webster discussed basic factors for making a good school, related facts about Allegany County schools and discussed improvement problems now facing the teachers and parents.

According to Webster, in a recent county-wide survey entitled, "What Do You Want The School To Do For Your Child," the answer was not the three R's, reading, writing and arithmetic, but the parents stressed courtesy, honesty and respect for authority as the main items.

Webster added that the teachers today are sponsoring special talent development tests such as music and public speaking in order to prepare students for active roles as good citizens.

Webster added that the school housing problem in Allegany County is inadequate.

There is only one vacant room in Allegany County, and that room will be filled next year", Webster stated.

Joseph E. Grindle, president of the Allegany County Teachers Council, spoke on teacher welfare and pointed out that it is only human for a teacher to want adequate compensation to meet his family's living needs.

In the past, teachers have been leaving the county for larger salaries in other counties, Grindle said. He added that by offering teachers fair salaries for fair living standard, the result will be better students and better citizens.

Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers College, stated that in June Maryland will graduate 300 teachers, which is less than half of the number needed. She encouraged instructors and principals to recommend the teaching profession to pupils whom they think are eligible.

Miss Compton added that more men are enrolled at the college now, than in any time during their 51 years of existance in Frostburg, and that the county unit has received national recognition for the cultured, well informed teachers which received instruction here.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, recently offered congratulations for an Allegany County teacher education job, "well done."

Committee members in charge of the dinner were Mrs. Ralph Isiminger, reservations; Mrs. Adam Baer; music, Mrs. Robert Lord; publicity, Mrs. LeRoy McGill; invitations, Mrs. Stanley Buckley; tables, Mrs. L. H. Shaffer.

Dr. Adam Baer, president of the county council, served as master of ceremonies.

Recreation Needs Listed In Report To City Council

The physical needs and accomplishments of the Cumberland Recreation Department is contained in its fourth annual report to the Mayor and Council.

Compiled by Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, the things needed include a truck, building for winter program, proper fencing for Thomas Post, Mapleside, North End and Pine Avenue playgrounds.

Also sought is lighting for all playgrounds, warehouse, blacktopping of Penn Avenue and Lamont Street playgrounds, grading and seeding of Thomas Post, Slitcher Field and Penn Avenue fields.

Backstops are deemed necessary for Thomas Post, Rolling Mill and Taylor fields, while bulldozing is required at Slitcher Field and Lamont Street Playground.

The shower house for Penn Avenue Field should be completed, Pence said, along with pool improvements at Pine Avenue, tennis courts at North End Playground.

There should be horseshoe courts at all playgrounds, new bleachers for Thomas Post, East Side and Slitcher fields; new movie projector, and playground shelters for Lamont Street and Mapleside playgrounds.

Improvements during the past year listed by Pence are: Graded sides of municipal pool, built backstops at various ball fields, erected bleachers.

Installed fountains at playgrounds, blacktopped Pine Avenue Playground, drained Penn Avenue Field, painted and repaired all playground equipment, built new basketball goals at playgrounds.

Bought new movie projector, put in new flag pole at West Side Playground, painted Pine Avenue Pool and made new field at Thomas Post Playground.

Officials Meet On Frederick St. Project

Various aspects of the paving and sewering of Frederick Street were discussed yesterday at a meeting in the Office of Mayor Roy W. Eves between city officials and a representative of the State Roads Commission.

Participating were Mayor Eves, Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and Herbert C. Bowers, federal aid project engineer for the SRC.

Nuzum is scheduled to prepare an estimated cost of construction and prepare plans and specifications for the project. A tentative agreement, which will be approved by the Mayor and Council, will be forwarded to the state roads group with Nuzum's information.

Bowers said the commission will advertise for bids on the project, award the contract and supervise the construction work.

Mayor Eves stated the approved agreement will make Bedford and Frederick streets one way and will also regulate parking to one side of each street.

Dirt In Gas Lines Causes Heat Shutdown

A "normal amount of dirt" in gas lines has caused a temporary "shutdown" of heating units in some sections.

Henry C. Convery, chief clerk of the Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company, said dust collected in the outlets had to be cleaned by servicemen who relit furnaces and other units.

The situation is prevalent at the beginning of winter months, Convery said, adding that there was no low pressure involved yesterday.

Convery said the C&A office received the usual number of inquiries about the "shutdown".

SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS — Thrifty dish.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

National Macaroni Week is just coming to a close. To celebrate it there will be sales on macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodles, and foods used in combination with them, during the ten-day period — October 16-25.

Here's a recipe that will make that good old thrift dish, spaghetti and meat balls, glamorous. Serve a salad and crusty bread with this main dish. For dessert we nominate baked pears, clusters of fresh grapes, and filbert bar cookies.

SPECIAL SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS

Ingredients: 1 pound ground beef, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup olive oil, 1 cup chopped onions, 1 clove garlic (peeled and minced), one 3-ounce can sliced mushrooms (drained), ½ cup sliced pitted ripe olives, 3 cups tomato juice, one 6-ounce can tomato paste, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne pepper, 1 tablespoon salt, 3 quarts boiling water, 8 ounces spaghetti, grated Parmesan cheese.

Method: Mix beef, ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Shape half the beef into 4 meat balls. In a large skillet, heat olive oil over moderate heat. Add meat balls and brown lightly on all sides; remove meat balls. Add remaining seasoned meat, onions and garlic; brown meat, breaking it up with a fork so it is crumbly. Add mushrooms, olives, tomato juice, tomato paste, 1 teaspoon salt and cayenne; stir well. Add meat balls. Cover and cook over low heat 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove cover and cook 10 more minutes. Meanwhile add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Arrange cooked spaghetti in deep platter; top with meat balls and sauce. Serve with grated Parmesan. Makes 4 servings.

ROSY BAKED PEARS

Ingredients: 6 Bartlett pears, 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, red food coloring.

Method: Wash and core the pears from the blossom end, leaving the stem in place. Heat and stir sugar, water and lemon juice together until sugar is dissolved. Pour into baking pan that can be covered. Stand pears upright in baking pan. Bake in moderate (350 degree F.) oven, with pan covered, for 10 minutes. Bake for an additional 5 to 10 minutes, uncovered, basting a few times. Cool. Carefully remove the peel from the baked pears. With red food coloring put a pink blush on one side of the pear. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

School Lunch Ideas

School bells mean that many mothers will be packing lunch boxes again. Sandwiches made with a variety of breads and fillings add interest to luncheon menus for hungry young scholars. Here are sandwich suggestions that are appetizing and nutritious: Softened cream cheese and chopped seedless raisins on enriched bread; grated carrots, chopped dates, and mayonnaise on whole wheat bread; liver sausage, sliced dill pickles, and mayonnaise on rye bread. For a special treat, cut the sandwiches into attractive figures with cookie cutters.

WHAT'S COOKING — Students at Mt. Holyoke mix up a batch of cookies in the school's modern kitchen. Virginia Barbour, Somerville, N. J., does the mixing; Marguerite Betts, Coconut Grove, Fla., kneels to replace a bowl; Lorraine Springer, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., heats water for tea.

AP Newsfeatures

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. — The most popular spot at Mount Holyoke College these days is the kitchen.

Opened last year in the new gymnasium, Kendall Hall, it has already catered to more than 5,000 students. Everything, from fingerpaints for use in the college nursery, to steaks and fancy pies and cakes have been cooked on the kitchen range.

In addition to getting some practice before setting up housekeeping, the college students agree that entertaining their dates at supper parties in Kendall Hall is an effective way to solve the problem of today's high cost of living. Coed supper parties, ranging in number of guests from two to 20, and varying in degree of formality, are popular among the undergraduates.

Last year, an enterprising senior at college, Patricia Reeve of Aqueboque, N. Y., agreed to cook a duck if her date would go out and shoot one. He did. A week later they enjoyed a duck dinner. A less ambitious couple was accustomed to heating soup on the range for a quick Saturday lunch. Others use the kitchen to bake cookies and cakes for their boy-friends in the service. Others make a batch of cookies before going away to men's colleges for the weekend. With something good to eat in their suitcases, the girls are popular dates.

The kitchen and adjoining lounge are open at all times to the girls. In addition to coed supper parties, campus groups and organizations hold meetings there. Birthday parties rank high; showers and teas, too. Faculty members with small apartments enjoy the spacious facilities of Kendall Hall, where they entertain large groups of students. Foreign students, homesick for their own country's cuisine, come and prepare their national dishes in the kitchen.

Colorfully decorated with yellow cabinets and black-topped counters, the kitchen has an electric stove, large refrigerator and aluminum double sink among its equipment. Gay early American print curtains make it an attractive place to work in and Mt. Holyoke girls are taking advantage of the opportunity to prepare for homemaking as well as a career while at college.

HOW CRANBERRIES GOT THEIR NAME

It is generally believed that the cranberry got its name from an early variation of "crane berry" so named because blossoms (appearing on the slender, curved stems of the vine) are shaped like a crane's neck and head.

Lettuce leaves open and separate easily if you'll cut out the core an inch deep and force cold running water through the cut core.

College Girls Love Kitchen

AP Newsfeatures

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. — The most popular spot at Mount Holyoke College these days is the kitchen.

Opened last year in the new gymnasium, Kendall Hall, it has already catered to more than 5,000 students. Everything, from fingerpaints for use in the college nursery, to steaks and fancy pies and cakes have been cooked on the kitchen range.

In addition to getting some practice before setting up housekeeping, the college students agree that entertaining their dates at supper parties in Kendall Hall is an effective way to solve the problem of today's high cost of living. Coed supper parties, ranging in number of guests from two to 20, and varying in degree of formality, are popular among the undergraduates.

Last year, an enterprising senior at college, Patricia Reeve of Aqueboque, N. Y., agreed to cook a duck if her date would go out and shoot one. He did. A week later they enjoyed a duck dinner. A less ambitious couple was accustomed to heating soup on the range for a quick Saturday lunch. Others use the kitchen to bake cookies and cakes for their boy-friends in the service. Others make a batch of cookies before going away to men's colleges for the weekend. With something good to eat in their suitcases, the girls are popular dates.

The kitchen and adjoining lounge are open at all times to the girls. In addition to coed supper parties, campus groups and organizations hold meetings there. Birthday parties rank high; showers and teas, too. Faculty members with small apartments enjoy the spacious facilities of Kendall Hall, where they entertain large groups of students. Foreign students, homesick for their own country's cuisine, come and prepare their national dishes in the kitchen.

Colorfully decorated with yellow cabinets and black-topped counters, the kitchen has an electric stove, large refrigerator and aluminum double sink among its equipment. Gay early American print curtains make it an attractive place to work in and Mt. Holyoke girls are taking advantage of the opportunity to prepare for homemaking as well as a career while at college.

HOW CRANBERRIES GOT THEIR NAME

It is generally believed that the cranberry got its name from an early variation of "crane berry" so named because blossoms (appearing on the slender, curved stems of the vine) are shaped like a crane's neck and head.

Lettuce leaves open and separate easily if you'll cut out the core an inch deep and force cold running water through the cut core.

Another unusual combination of two familiar foods is malted milk waffles. These are delightful served for breakfast or luncheon. Besides adding a new, unexpected flavor to your waffles, the malted milk provides a big bonus of body-building nutrition, too.

Chocolate Malted Milk Frosting

½ cup butter or margarine
1 egg yolk
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar (approximately)
½ cup chocolate malted milk
3 tablespoons boiling water
⅛ teaspoon salt

Cream butter or margarine. Add egg yolk and beat until smooth and creamy. Add half the sugar gradually. Dissolve malted milk in boiling water. Add to creamed mixture. Add enough more sugar to give a good spreading consistency.

Sift flour, malted milk, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg yolks and water together. Stir into sifted dry ingredients. Add shortening; mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into batter. Bake in hot waffle iron 2 to 3 minutes, or until iron stops steaming.

LEMON ROLLS — From refrigerator to oven.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are lots of ways to treat packaged partly-baked rolls — now widely available and usually called "brown-and-serve" — so that they are different, delicious and interesting. Here are three suggestions, guaranteed to add glamor to a luncheon salad. They'll do their bit, too, for Sunday brunch.

These rolls can be kept on hand in the refrigerator, ready to help out when unexpected company comes or when you want to fancy things up for just the family. But when you serve them, be sure they're right out of the oven.

LEMON ROLLS

Ingredients: ⅓ cup sugar, 1½ teaspoons lemon rind, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ tablespoons butter or margarine (melted), 1 dozen brown-and-serve dinner rolls.

Method: Mix sugar, lemon rind, lemon juce and butter. Spread over botton of a shallow quart pan. Press rolls, with tops down, over lemon mixture. Bake in moderate (400 F.) oven 15 minutes. Let rolls stand in pan 1 minute after removing from oven. Invert pan to remove rolls so that lemon mixture is up. Serve at once.

WALNUT HONEY ROLLS

Ingredients: 2 tablespoons honey, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (melted), ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts, 6 brown-and-serve dinner rolls.

Method: Into each greased muffin cup, put 1 teaspoon honey, ½ teaspoon butter, a dash of nutmeg and 1 teaspoon walnuts. Place rolls, with tops down, in muffin cups. Bake in moderate (400 F.) oven 15 minutes. Let rolls stand in pan 1 minute after removing from oven. Invert pan to remove rolls so that walnut mixture is up. Serve at once.

PINEAPPLE GINGER ROLLS

Ingredients: ¼ cup drained crushed pineapple, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (melted), 1 tablespoon chopped candied ginger, 6 brown-and-serve rolls.

Method: Mix pineapple, brown sugar, butter and ginger. Spread over botton of 1 quart loaf pan. Place rolls with tops down, over fruit mixture. Bake in moderate (400 F.) oven 15 minutes. Letrolls stand in pan 1 minute after removing from oven. Invert pan to remove rolls so that fruit mixture is up.

Autumn Sandwich Time

School lunches to be packed, hungry homecomers to be fed at noon, friends to be entertained, all these call for sandwiches as the satisfying food. To help the homemaker provide an interesting variety of these to suit the time and type of eating, here are some sandwich filling suggestions.

Sandwich Fillings

Cream Cheese-Deviled Ham Filling

1 (3 ounce) can deviled ham
1 (3 ounce) package cream cheese

Combine ham and cream cheese. Yield: ¾ cup, or filling for 4 sandwiches.

Egg Salad-Olive Sandwich Filling

6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 tablespoons sliced, stuffed olives
⅓ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce

Combine chopped eggs, olives, mayonnaise, onion salt, pepper, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Yield: 1 pint, or filling for 10 sandwiches.

Fresh Vegetable Salad Filling

½ cup grated cabbage
¼ cup grated carrot
3 whole radishes, sliced
1 tablespoon sliced green onion
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped, peeled cucumber
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
3 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ teaspoon salt

Apple Spice Cake . . . Sugar Laced Trimmed

This cake provides any hostess with a real "conversation piece". On two counts—looks and taste. Tell guests how that glamorous sugar lace top is achieved, or keep them guessing . . . it's fun either way. Actually you just dust confectioner's sugar over the top through a lace paper doily! Couldn't be easier!

And the taste—apple and spice and all things nice! The apple comes from canned apple sauce. Apple sauce gives the cake a delicate moistness, too, and a three-day freshness. It's a small crumbed cake, not over-rich, not over-sweet . . . another reason guests will eat it happily.

Your family will enjoy it, too. Cut a big piece to satisfy Junior's mid-afternoon hunger . . . and pour him a glass of tangy apple juice to drink with it.

It's a cake you can turn into a dessert. For this, use it plain, without the sugar lace. Cut into individual squares and serve with lemon or custard sauce poured over . . . or slice it and top with ice cream. Takes kindly to icing, too . . . try mocha or vanilla icing or swirl it thickly with whipped cream.

Apple Spice Cake is a simple cake to make—one of the simplest, in fact, ever to pour into a cake pan. A can or jar of apple sauce, a package of white cake mix . . . it's that easy! (And don't forget the lace paper doily.)

Apple Spice Cake With Sugar-Lace Top

1 cup canned apple sauce
Milk
1 pkg. white cake mix
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons nutmeg
1 egg

Substitute apple sauce for 1 cup of the milk called for on the cake mix package directions. Combine cake mix, cinnamon and nutmeg; add apple sauce and milk, according to directions on package. Add egg with last quantity of liquid. Mix well. Pour into 9" x 9" x 2" pan. Bake in moderate oven 350°F., 45-50 minutes. When cool, place lace paper doily on top and sift confectioners' sugar through the doily. Pretty! And easy!

(This is an original recipe kitchen-tested by Gertrude Lynn, nationally known Home Economist).

Fall Is Apple Products Time

Right now the new fresh pack of apple products is beginning to flow into grocery stores. Canned apple sauce made from this year's crop of juicy, crisp apples offers a thousand-and-one opportunities for quick, delicious dishes for school lunches, for desserts, as a hot vegetable relish—or a cold one. Canned apple slices, plump, firm and full of juice save endless time in making pies and desserts—you don't have to do any peeling, coring and slicing.

And apple juice just naturally seems to belong to fall—as a between-meal beverage for the youngsters—as a dinner appetizer—to pass around when friends drop in. Or, to be served fragrantly hot, spiced if you wish, as a warmer-up after the football game.

Cottage cheese mixed with chopped chives makes a delicious luncheon salad for the youngsters. Top with a dressing of mayonnoise thinned with the juice from the canned apple slices.

Paper thin slices of unpeeled cucumbers, chilled in apple juice, are delicious as a relish accompaniment with lamb.

Dainty Apple Cakes For Coffee, Dessert

Apple cup cakes! Here's a tempting treat for dessert or for coffee time. Serve them plain or frosted, with coffee; with whipped cream or ice cream for dessert. An unexpected addition to this recipe is coffee. Combined with chopped apple, dates, nut meats and spices, it adds up to delightful eating.

Apple Cup Cakes

½ cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 cups sifted enriched flour
¼ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup chopped dates
1 cup chopped apples
½ cup cold coffee
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream lard, sugar, and salt. Add egg and beat well. Sift together flour, soda, baking powder and spices. Mix with nuts, dates and apples. Add dry ingredients alternately with coffee and vanilla. Fill greased small muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. 24 small cakes.

Let Apple Add Fall Touch To Pork Dishes

The attractiveness of a meat dish depends to a great extent upon its being cooked correctly. However, the serving of the dish must not be under emphasized. Seasonal fruits and vegetables can always add a cheery touch. And this time of year apples might be that addition.

Of course, apples combine well with pork. Let chopped apple be the stuffing for double thick pork chops. Also, apple added to a regular bread stuffing makes a fine filling for racks of spareribs. A pork shoulder boned and made into a cushion-style roast also may be tempting stuffed with an apple mixture.

Fried apple rings or wedges presented with pork sausage links or sausage patties make a serving you'll proudly present at breakfast time or at lunch time.

Pork roast platters might be garnished with apples in one of several forms. Mincemeat stuffed baked apples are a choice for a pork loin roast or a whole or half ham. Candied apple wedges make a colorful as well as flavorful addition to any pork roast platter.

POT SOME HERBS

A kitchen can look garden fresh with little flower pots placed on window sills or counters. These can contain herbs which not only look pretty but lend zestful goodness to a meal. Parsley, chives, thyme, rosemary, marjoram are just a few of the tasty additions which can be added to enhance everything from omelets to ragouts.

Baked Bacon With Hot Potato Salad

Putting extra stretch into the food dollar these days has become the number one job with most homemakers. Fortunately, some of the most economical meals contain the same important minerals and vitamins as the high cost ones.

We've selected a dinner menu that will help to keep the food budget in bounds. The meat is delicious, hickory-smoked bacon. It's a good choice both economically and nutritionally, and it's guaranteed to satisfy all appetites.

Menu

Tomato juice — Baked Bacon
Hot Potato Salad — Green Beans
Hot Cornbread — Butter
Stewed Apples
Beverage

We think bacon is much too delicious and versatile to restrict to that first meal of the day. Bacon served just once for lunch or dinner will prove to the entire family that this favorite meat can hold its own on any menu.

To be sure of purchasing bacon with a rich, fine, unforgettable flavor, buy by brand. The best bacon wears its name proudly for identification. Buy bacon only for immediate needs or select the flavor-protecting, vacuum-sealed package that comes in one-half pound or pound size. Keep it carefully refrigerated away from strong-flavored foods and keep it well wrapped in its original wrapper.

The method by which you cook bacon can match almost anything else you're cooking and use the same part of the range. Broiled, pan fried, or baked, it should be cooked slowly, watched carefully, and removed when it is just crisp, not brittle.

You'll want to save the drippings from fresh bacon to season vegetables, white sauces, casserole dishes, and hot breads. Good, too, added to soups, dressings, and for frying French toast, eggs, potatoes, and apple slices.

Here are the easy-to-follow directions for our meal that features baked bacon and hot potato salad.

Hot Potato Salad

4 slices bacon; ½ cup chopped onion; ½ cup chopped green pepper; ¼ cup vinegar; 1 teasoon salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 1 teaspoon sugar; 1 Cloverbloom Egg, beaten; 1 quart hot cubed, cooked potatoes.

Cut bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp. Remove to a warm place and lightly cook onions and green pepper in bacon drippings. Add vinegar, salt, pepper, and sugar When heated, add a little of the mixture to the beaten egg. Pour back into skillet and blend with ingredients. Add potatoes and bacon and blend lightly. 4 servings.

To Bake Bacon

(Bacon may be baked in oven with the cornbread in our suggested menu.) Lay strips of bacon with fat edges overlapping lean of next strip on a rack in a shallow pan. Bake on top shelf of oven for 12-15 minutes or until desired crispness is reached. No turning is necessary. This bacon needs no draining and browns easily from end to end with no curling.

Sandwiches For October Wedding Receptions

Reflecting the charm of the October bride are dainty heart-shaped sandwiches for serving at bridal showers and wedding receptions. They are made by cutting enriched bread into heart shapes with cookie cutters. Three eye-catching and delicious spreads can be prepared by varying a combination of softened cream cheese and maraschino cherries. One spread is made by using the cherry juice to tint the cheese a delicate pink. For another, the cheese is combined with chopped cherries. For the third, the softened cream cheese is spread on the bread hearts and each sandwich is decorated with a cherry slice. These colorful heart-shaped sandwiches make an attractive offering at both formal and informal wedding receptions when arranged on a platter or tray.

Treats And Tricks For Family With Meat Pies

Meat pies made up of tender beef cubes and vegetables and topped with happy, sad and laughing "pastry" faces make a delightful Hallowe'en serving.

Trick or treats—you can produce both for your family at dinner on the night of Hallowe'en, The Treat? It's the meat dish of your meal. The trick? The clever pumpkin faces you give your individual meat pies.

Here's what you do. Use your single-serving casserols dishes. Fill them with a meat stew combination following the recipe below suggested by Reba Staggs, home economist. Serve them topped with pastry faces. If you prefer use a biscuit topping. Be sure to make each face different. Cut the mouth upward for happy faces, downward for the sad ones. Make cut outs for eyes and nose, too. These individual servings are slated to be conversation pieces for your Hallowe'en table.

Individual Hallowe'en Meat Pies

1½ pounds beef for stew; ¼ cup flour; salt and pepper; 3 tablespoons lard or drippings; water; 3 medium potatoes, cubed; 6 medium carrots, diced; pastry.

Combine flour, salt and pepper and dredge meat in seasoned flour. Brown meat slowly in lard or drippings. Add enough water to cover. Cover closely and cook slowly for 1½ hours. Add potatoes and carrots and continue cooking until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Pour off cooking liquid and thicken for gravy. Place meat, vegetables and gravy in individual casseroles and top with pastry crust, cut to resemble a Hallowe'en face. Bake in a hot oven (450°F.) 8 to 10 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Pastry Recipe

1 cup sifted enriched flour; ¾ teaspoon salt; 4 to 6 tablespoons lard; 2 to 4 tablespoons cold water.

Add salt to flour. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add cold water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about ⅛ inch in thickness. Cut in circles to fit casseroles.

KITCHEN GLAMOR — This cozy breakfast nook is built for comfort and utility. Dinnerware of Melamine is made for a lifetime. Pillows on chairs are of Velon. Table has actual piece of the drapery material laminated into its surface for colorful effect without distortion or loss of color. Seat and back of window bench are of Strawtex.

Bacon Cheeseburgers Win Cheers

Bacon cheeseburgers are hearty, quick-to-fix sandwiches that will bring cheers from a hungry crowd. The meat mixture may be prepared beforehand and stored in the refrigerator, ready for Sunday night snacks, or quick lunches after a ball game. Combine grated cheese, finely chopped onion, cooked bacon, prepared mustard (if desired) and enough tomato catsup to make a smooth paste. Spread the mixture on the bottom half of split hamburger buns or on slices of enriched bread. Toast under a preheated broiler (400°F.) for five minutes, or until the cheese is melted.

Here's How To Barbecue Lamb Chops

Lamb chops are an ever-popular food. Barbecue sauce is also. Put these two foods together and you have an extra special treat.

Barbecued chops are prepared by braising. For economy's sake purchase shoulder chops for this serving. Have them cut about 1 inch thick. To prepare, brown the chops thoroughly on both sides in lard or drippings.

When browned, pour off the excess fat and season them with salt and pepper. For an exciting barbecue sauce, combine 2 tablespoons each of flour and prepared mustard with ¼ cup of chopped onion, ½ teaspoon cloves, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup each of catchup and juice drained from spiced peaches or crabapples. Pour this mixture over the chops, cover them closely and simmer slowly for 1 hour or until done.

Treats And Tricks For Family With Meat Pies

Meat pies made up of tender beef cubes and vegetables and topped with happy, sad and laughing "pastry" faces make a delightful Hallowe'en serving.

Trick or treats—you can produce both for your family at dinner on the night of Hallowe'en, The Treat? It's the meat dish of your meal. The trick? The clever pumpkin faces you give your individual meat pies.

Here's what you do. Use your single-serving casserols dishes. Fill them with a meat stew combination following the recipe below suggested by Reba Staggs, home economist. Serve them topped with pastry faces. If you prefer use a biscuit topping. Be sure to make each face different. Cut the mouth upward for happy faces, downward for the sad ones. Make cut outs for eyes and nose, too. These individual servings are slated to be conversation pieces for your Hallowe'en table.

Individual Hallowe'en Meat Pies

1½ pounds beef for stew; ¼ cup flour; salt and pepper; 3 tablespoons lard or drippings; water; 3 medium potatoes, cubed; 6 medium carrots, diced; pastry.

Combine flour, salt and pepper and dredge meat in seasoned flour. Brown meat slowly in lard or drippings. Add enough water to cover. Cover closely and cook slowly for 1½ hours. Add potatoes and carrots and continue cooking until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Pour off cooking liquid and thicken for gravy. Place meat, vegetables and gravy in individual casseroles and top with pastry crust, cut to resemble a Hallowe'en face. Bake in a hot oven (450°F.) 8 to 10 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Pastry Recipe

1 cup sifted enriched flour; ¾ teaspoon salt; 4 to 6 tablespoons lard; 2 to 4 tablespoons cold water.

Add salt to flour. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add cold water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about ⅛ inch in thickness. Cut in circles to fit casseroles.

KITCHEN GLAMOR — This cozy breakfast nook is built for comfort and utility. Dinnerware of Melamine is made for a lifetime. Pillows on chairs are of Velon. Table has actual piece of the drapery material laminated into its surface for colorful effect without distortion or loss of color. Seat and back of window bench are of Strawtex.

Bacon Cheeseburgers Win Cheers

Bacon cheeseburgers are hearty, quick-to-fix sandwiches that will bring cheers from a hungry crowd. The meat mixture may be prepared beforehand and stored in the refrigerator, ready for Sunday night snacks, or quick lunches after a ball game. Combine grated cheese, finely chopped onion, cooked bacon, prepared mustard (if desired) and enough tomato catsup to make a smooth paste. Spread the mixture on the bottom half of split hamburger buns or on slices of enriched bread. Toast under a preheated broiler (400°F.) for five minutes, or until the cheese is melted.

Here's How To Barbecue Lamb Chops

Lamb chops are an ever-popular food. Barbecue sauce is also. Put these two foods together and you have an extra special treat.

Barbecued chops are prepared by braising. For economy's sake purchase shoulder chops for this serving. Have them cut about 1 inch thick. To prepare, brown the chops thoroughly on both sides in lard or drippings.

When browned, pour off the excess fat and season them with salt and pepper. For an exciting barbecue sauce, combine 2 tablespoons each of flour and prepared mustard with ¼ cup of chopped onion, ½ teaspoon cloves, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup each of catchup and juice drained from spiced peaches or crabapples. Pour this mixture over the chops, cover them closely and simmer slowly for 1 hour or until done.

Starkey In Training

Chalglass Raced Here

Jockeys Dislike Rules

It Pays To Be Yankee

By C. V. BURNS

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford (W. Va.) light-heavyweight, idle since April, is now in training for a match in Pittsburgh in the near future.

"Skeets" reports he's in tiptop shape right now and scales about 170 pounds.

Starkey's last match was in April at Pittsburgh with Joe Robinson, of New York, whom he stopped in the third round. It was his second bout of the year. In February he lost a decision to Lou Sabotin, of Warren, Ohio, at Pittsburgh.

The former local amateur ace might draw Jackie Burke as his next opponent.

Starkey has engaged in a total of 71 bouts, winning 56 and losing 15. As a simon pure his record was 30-13. He won his first 24 bouts as a pro before Harold Sampson stopped him and his record now is 26-2.

Chalglass, the race horse whose owner and trainer are being sued by a jockey who claims he suffered serious injuries when the alleged "blind horse" bolted into another thoroughbred at Pimlico October 31, ran in two races at Fairgo in 1951.

Piloted by Willie Downs, Chalglass won the fourth race on opening day here last year and returned $17 for $2.

Maryland's rules of racing call for riders to be confined in the jockey's quarters from 12 o'clock noon until they have completed their engagements for the day's program.

The rule applies to all tracks including the half miler at Fairgo.

When the Washington International race was run at Laurel last Saturday, Manny Mercer and Charley Smirke, the British jockeys, who piloted the winner and third place finisher, broke the rule and got Allegany High School's twenty-eight gridiron engagements with the Bulldogs of Martinsburg High School gets the local spotlight tonight.

John Cobourn's West Virginians, the only team to defeat Fort Hill this season come to Cumberland with 4-1-1 record and they'll be out to make a clean sweep of their season series with Cumberland elevens.

Last week, Martinsburg battled Hagerstown High to a 14-14 tie in the Hub City, scoring the tying touchdown in the last 30 seconds of play. Hagerstown, which had been unbeaten and untied until this game, defeated Allegany High here several weeks ago by the score of 7-0.

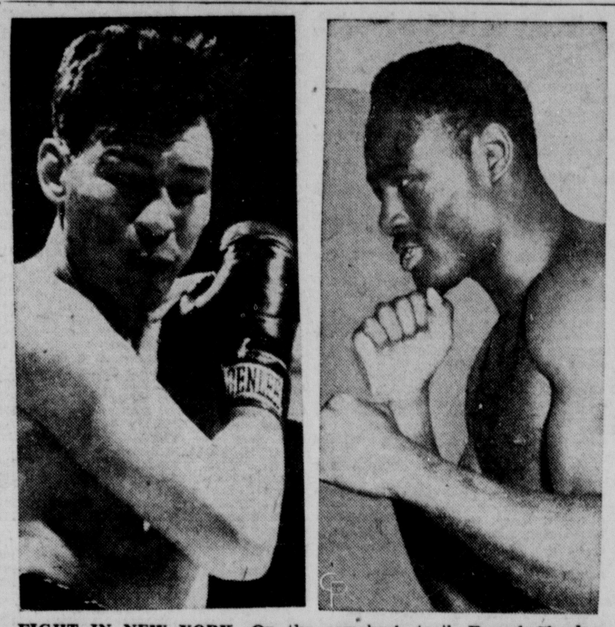

Martinsburg hasn't beaten Allegany since 1947 although last year's game ended in a 12-12 stalemate. In 27 meetings Allegany holds a 16-9 edge in victories while two games wound up in tie scores.

Tonight's game at 8 o'clock at the local stadium is the 7th on the Campers' 10-game card. Coach Roy Lester's warriors tackle LaSalle next week; Elkins, away, November 8 and Fort Hill on Thanksgiving Day.

Following the Allegany contest, Martinsburg plays University High of Morgantown at home, Bridgeport, home, and winds up with Handley at Winchester, Va., Nov. 27.

The fact that Martinsburg holds a decision over Fort Hill should make tonight's game a good drawing

Allegany High Junior Varsity Downs LaSalle

Rice's Touchdown Sews Up Game, 6-0

Allegany High School's Jayvees defeated LaSalle's junior varsity gridders yesterday at Campobello by the score of 6-0 for their third straight victory of the season and their ninth win against a single tie game in two seasons.

Both teams played stellar defensive football and the only score was registered in the second period when Donald "Bucky" Rice smashed over from the one-foot line.

Rice incidentally, set up the score when he received a punt, and aided by good blocking on the part of Ray Wharton, returned the ball from his own 47 to the LaSalle 33. Allen Haines passed to Jim Sisk who was brought down on the 3-yard line. Perdew moved the ball to the one from where Rice took it over. Haines' kick for the point was blocked.

Each team chalked up four first downs. Three of LaSalle's first downs were the result of passes.

Allegany's standouts were Lacy, Johnson, Rice, Wharton and Diggs while Norris, Keifer, Malamphy, Wilt and Shuck were LaSalle's best bets. Shuck excelled with his passing and punting and Rice did some nice punting for the Little Campers.

Coach Jim Hosack's eleven hosts Beall's Jayvees at Campobello Monday. Fort Hill will be met November 3. The lineups:

| Pos. | Allegany (6) | LaSalle (0) |
|---|---|---|

Touchdowns scored by D. Rice.

Langan Noses Out Bobby Muir For Home Run Title

Joe Langan, Frostburg Demons' catcher, is the home run king of the Bi-State Baseball League for the 1952 season.

Carl "Pete" Dicken, league secretary, last night announced that a recheck of the score sheets indicates that Langan hit seven four-baggers and Bobby Muir, of Westvaco, belted six round-trippers.

Langan and leaders in other departments will receive prizes at the annual Bi-State League dinner Saturday at 7 p. m. at Cas Taylor's. Patrick Creegan will be the toastmaster.

General Staff, One Hitter To Vie In Pimlico Special

Purse Is $50,000; Betting Ruled Out

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—A match race, fifth in the history of the famous Pimlico Special, was assured today when only General Staff and One Hitter were entered officially for Saturday's $25,000 winner-take-all classic.

The Special is by invitation only, and the mile and three sixteenths event is being raced for the sixteenth time at ancient Pimlico.

One Hitter is from the Greentree Stable of John Haycock Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, and the six-year-old son of Shut Out—Bold Anna will be seeking his second victory in the Special. One Hitter won it in 1950, and a triumph over General Staff will make him only the second horse to take the race twice.

Maryland's Challedon won the Special in 1939 and 1940, the latter also a two horse match race with Can't Wait.

The most famous two-horse Special was 1938, the notable meeting in which Seabiscuit defeated War Admiral. Other Specials with only two starters were Market Wise over Haltal, 1941, and Capot over Coaltown in 1949. There have been two walk-overs in the special, Whirlaway in 1942 and Citation in 1948.

This is the first crack at the Special for Larry MacPhail, one-time major league baseball magnate and now gentleman farmer and horse breeder and owner at Bel Air, Md.

Due to the small field, there will be no betting on the Special, but it was figured General Staff would have been a slight favorite had it been allowed.

General Staff and One Hitter have met once before, in the Narragansett Special Sept. 13, with General Staff the winner.

Fain Has Best Batting Mark Under Lights

A's Star Hit .369, Gordon Leads N. L.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) —Ferris Fain, the American League batting king, and Sid Gordon, who hit only .289 in National League competition, were the most productive night game batters in the major leagues during the 1952 campaign.

Associated Press statistics disclosed today that Fain, 30 years old Philadelphia As first baseman, pounded out 65 base hits in 176 trips in arc-light play to lead the AL with a .369 mark. His season's day and night average was .327.

Gordon, veteran Boston Braves' outfielder, topped the National League batsmen in after-dark affairs with .331. Sid collected 56 safeties in 169 appearances.

Mickey Mantle, with 54 hits in 153 tries, was right behind Fain in the American League at .353. The brilliant young outfielder, a .311 over-all hitter, played in 40 night games.

First Baseman Walt Dropo, who played with both Boston and Detroit, finished in third place with .340 followed by Bobby Avila, Cleveland, .332.

Gordon's closest competition came from Richie Ashburn, speedy Philadelphia Phillies' flychaser. Ashburn hit .324 in night game contests, 42 points higher than his final batting figure.

Eddie Waitkus, also of the Phillies, finished third with .320. Next in line came Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .314.

Stan Musial, National League batting leader, hit at only a .307 pace at night which gave him sixth place among the senior loop batters.

Southern Conference Boasts Best Quarterbacks In College Football

Brehany Is Among Six All-America Nominees

By ROBERT MOORE

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 23 (AP) — Anbody want to compare quarterbacks?

The Southern Conference area figures it has the best in college football today. Six of its quarterbacks have been nominated for All-American Southern Board of Nominators.

One is Jack Scarbath star of Marylands second-best team in the nation. Scarbath's coach Jim Tatum says there may be T-formation quarterbacks who are just as good as Jack-none better.

Jack In 8th Place

Scarbath is currently the eighth player in the nation for total offense having collected 771 yards on 112 plays. He's completed 28 of 54 passes for 593 yards and five touchdowns had three intercepted. Scarbath has crossed the goal line three times, twice picked the Terps up by the bootstrings when they were on the brink of defeat and pulled them through.

William and Mary's Ed Meadows Mioudszewski and Wake Forest's Charles "Sonny" George aren't quarterbacks at heart. A year ago Mioduszewski was a halfback and George played fullback.

When W&M Coach Jackie Freeman needed a quarterback he lost no time putting the finger on Meadows. The result: 682 yards in 113 plays for Mioduszewski who has made four touchdowns. He's not a great passer but Freeman insists he's the best running quarterback in the country.

George Leads Deacons

George is Wake Forest's leading scorer with 28 points. He has com-

Starkey In Training

Chalglass Raced Here

Jockeys Dislike Rules

It Pays To Be Yankee

By C. V. BURNS

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford (W. Va.) light-heavyweight, idle since April, is now in training for a match in Pittsburgh in the near future.

"Skeets" reports he's in tiptop shape right now and scales about 170 pounds.

Starkey's last match was in April at Pittsburgh with Joe Robinson, of New York, whom he stopped in the third round. It was his second bout of the year. In February he lost a decision to Lou Sabotin, of Warren, Ohio, at Pittsburgh.

The former local amateur ace might draw Jackie Burke as his next opponent.

Starkey has engaged in a total of 71 bouts, winning 56 and losing 15. As a simon pure his record was 30-13. He won his first 24 bouts as a pro before Harold Sampson stopped him and his record now is 26-2.

Chalglass, the race horse whose owner and trainer are being sued by a jockey who claims he suffered serious injuries when the alleged "blind horse" bolted into another thoroughbred at Pimlico October 31, ran in two races at Fairgo in 1951.

Piloted by Willie Downs, Chalglass won the fourth race on opening day here last year and returned $17 for $2.

Maryland's rules of racing call for riders to be confined in the jockey's quarters from 12 o'clock noon until they have completed their engagements for the day's program.

The rule applies to all tracks including the half miler at Fairgo.

When the Washington International race was run at Laurel last Saturday, Manny Mercer and Charley Smirke, the British jockeys, who piloted the winner and third place finisher, broke the rule and got Allegany High School's twenty-eight gridiron engagements with the Bulldogs of Martinsburg High School gets the local spotlight tonight.

John Cobourn's West Virginians, the only team to defeat Fort Hill this season come to Cumberland with 4-1-1 record and they'll be out to make a clean sweep of their season series with Cumberland elevens.

Last week, Martinsburg battled Hagerstown High to a 14-14 tie in the Hub City, scoring the tying touchdown in the last 30 seconds of play. Hagerstown, which had been unbeaten and untied until this game, defeated Allegany High here several weeks ago by the score of 7-0.

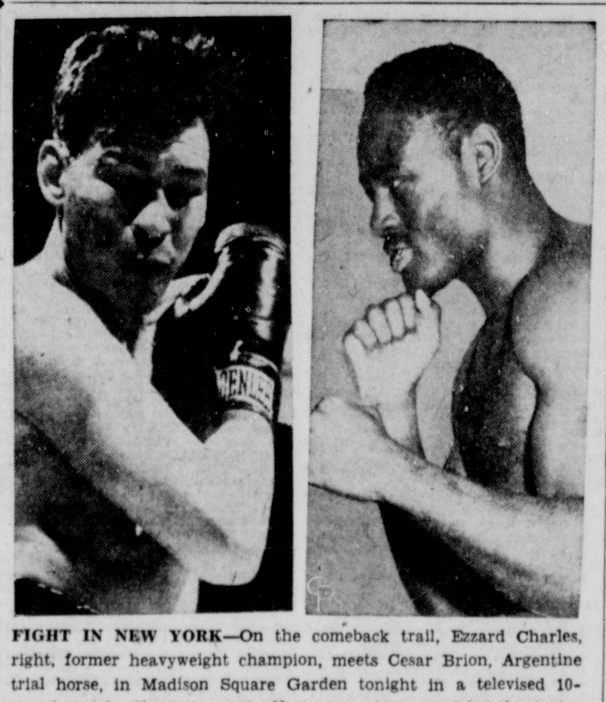

Martinsburg hasn't beaten Allegany since 1947 although last year's game ended in a 12-12 stalemate. In 27 meetings Allegany holds a 16-9 edge in victories while two games wound up in tie scores.

Tonight's game at 8 o'clock at the local stadium is the 7th on the Campers' 10-game card. Coach Roy Lester's warriors tackle LaSalle next week; Elkins, away, November 8 and Fort Hill on Thanksgiving Day.

Following the Allegany contest, Martinsburg plays University High of Morgantown at home, Bridgeport, home, and winds up with Handley at Winchester, Va., Nov. 27.

The fact that Martinsburg holds a decision over Fort Hill should make tonight's game a good drawing

Brehany Is Among Six All-America Nominees

By ROBERT MOORE

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 23 (AP) — Anbody want to compare quarterbacks?

The Southern Conference area figures it has the best in college football today. Six of its quarterbacks have been nominated for All-American Southern Board of Nominators.

One is Jack Scarbath star of Marylands second-best team in the nation. Scarbath's coach Jim Tatum says there may be T-formation quarterbacks who are just as good as Jack-none better.

Jack In 8th Place

Scarbath is currently the eighth player in the nation for total offense having collected 771 yards on 112 plays. He's completed 28 of 54 passes for 593 yards and five touchdowns had three intercepted. Scarbath has crossed the goal line three times, twice picked the Terps up by the bootstrings when they were on the brink of defeat and pulled them through.

William and Mary's Ed Meadows Mioudszewski and Wake Forest's Charles "Sonny" George aren't quarterbacks at heart. A year ago. Mioduszewski was a halfback and George played fullback.

When W&M Coach Jackie Freeman needed a quarterback he lost no time putting the finger on Meadows. The result: 682 yards in 113 plays for Mioduszewski who has made four touchdowns. He's not a great passer but Freeman insists he's the best running quarterback in the country.

Allegany High Junior Varsity Downs LaSalle

Rice's Touchdown Sews Up Game, 6-0

Allegany High School's Jayvees defeated LaSalle's junior varsity gridders yesterday at Campobello by the score of 6-0 for their third straight victory of the season and their ninth win against a single tie game in two seasons.

Both teams played stellar defensive football and the only score was registered in the second period when Donald "Bucky" Rice smashed over from the one-foot line.

Rice incidentally, set up the score when he received a punt, and aided by good blocking on the part of Ray Wharton, returned the ball from his own 47 to the LaSalle 33. Allen Haines passed to Jim Sisk who was brought down on the 3-yard line. Perdew moved the ball to the one from where Rice took it over. Haines' kick for the point was blocked.

Each team chalked up four first downs. Three of LaSalle's first downs were the result of passes.

Allegany's standouts were Lacy, Johnson, Rice, Wharton and Diggs while Norris, Keifer, Malamphy, Wilt and Shuck were LaSalle's best bets. Shuck excelled with his passing and punting and Rice did some nice punting for the Little Campers.

Coach Jim Hosack's eleven hosts Beall's Jayvees at Campobello Monday. Fort Hill will be met November 3. The lineups:

Fain Has Best Batting Mark Under Lights

A's Star Hit .369, Gordon Leads N. L.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) —Ferris Fain, the American League batting king, and Sid Gordon, who hit only .289 in National League competition, were the most productive night game batters in the major leagues during the 1952 campaign.

Associated Press statistics disclosed today that Fain, 30 years old Philadelphia As first baseman, pounded out 65 base hits in 176 trips in arc-light play to lead the AL with a .369 mark. His season's day and night average was .327.

Gordon, veteran Boston Braves' outfielder, topped the National League batsmen in after-dark affairs with .331. Sid collected 56 safeties in 169 appearances.

Mickey Mantle, with 54 hits in 153 tries, was right behind Fain in the American League at .353. The brilliant young outfielder, a .311 over-all hitter, played in 40 night games.

First Baseman Walt Dropo, who played with both Boston and Detroit, finished in third place with .340 followed by Bobby Avila, Cleveland, .332.

Gordon's closest competition came from Richie Ashburn, speedy Philadelphia Phillies' flychaser. Ashburn hit .324 in night game contests, 42 points higher than his final batting figure.

Eddie Waitkus, also of the Phillies, finished third with .320. Next in line came Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .314.

General Staff, One Hitter To Vie In Pimlico Special

Purse Is $50,000; Betting Ruled Out

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—A match race, fifth in the history of the famous Pimlico Special, was assured today when only General Staff and One Hitter were entered officially for Saturday's $25,000 winner-take-all classic.

The Special is by invitation only, and the mile and three sixteenths event is being raced for the sixteenth time at ancient Pimlico.

One Hitter is from the Greentree Stable of John Haycock Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, and the six-year-old son of Shut Out—Bold Anna will be seeking his second victory in the Special. One Hitter won it in 1950, and a triumph over General Staff will make him only the second horse to take the race twice.

Maryland's Challedon won the Special in 1939 and 1940, the latter also a two horse match race with Can't Wait.

The most famous two-horse Special was 1938, the notable meeting in which Seabiscuit defeated War Admiral. Other Specials with only two starters were Market Wise over Haltal, 1941, and Capot over Coaltown in 1949. There have been two walk-overs in the special, Whirlaway in 1942 and Citation in 1948.

This is the first crack at the Special for Larry MacPhail, one-time major league baseball magnate and now gentleman farmer and horse breeder and owner at Bel Air, Md.

Due to the small field, there will be no betting on the Special, but it was figured General Staff would have been a slight favorite had it been allowed.

General Staff and One Hitter have met once before, in the Narragansett Special Sept. 13, with General Staff the winner.

All-Stars Play Lakers Tonight

18,000 To See Cage Teams In Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP)—Coach Phog Allen's hand-picked campus squad and the Minneapolis Lakers clash before a capacity 18,000 at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night trying to smash a six-all pro-college deadlock in the 13th annual All-Star basketball classic.

The contest will find the champion Lakers of the National Basketball Association seeking their fourth straight victory over the Collegians.

The All-Star crew assembled by Kansas University Coach Allen is one of the hardest-working collegiate groups in the history of the series.

Allen hopes to counteract the rebounding effectiveness of the George Mikan-sparked pros with a towering trio of his own.

Allen will use in his front line, 6-9 Mark Workman of West Virginia and 6-7 Don Meineke of Dayton at forwards, and 6-10 Ray Felix of Long Island University at center.

Armstrong Resigns

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics announced today the resignation of Publicity Director Dick Armstrong.

He has held the post since the end of the 1949 season. Armstrong came into the A's operation as a player at Martinsville, Va., and Lancaster, Pa. in the 1946-7 seasons and served as business manager of the A's farm team at Portsmouth, O. in 1948 and 1949 before transferring to Philadelphia.

Armstrong said he has accepted a position with W. Wallis Orr, Inc., Philadelphia advertising agency.

RACING IS BIG MONEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Spencer Drayton, executive secretary of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations, has announced some startling figures to show that racing is one of the big industries in the country.

The former FBI man says racing has assets of more than $600,500,000 and points to an annual payroll of $235,000,000 for 65,000 employees. During 1951, he says, states collected $117,250,564 in taxes from racing.

South Carolina Beats Clemson Before 35,000

Gramling's Aerial Decides Game, 6-0

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 23 (AP) — Quarterback Johnny Gramling passed South Carolina to a touchdown on the opening series of plays for a 6-0 football victory against Clemson before 35,000 here today.

Gramling watched most of the game from the bench as he suffered a head injury soon after steering his teammates to the lone touchdown.

South Carolina took the opening kickoff but soon was forced to punt from its 32. The bounding ball brushed Defensive Halfback Archie Baker of Clemson as it came down on the Clemson 32. South Carolina Back Gene Wilson fell on the ball. A pass failed and a running play picked up three. Then Gramling hit end Clyde Bennett on the 19, for a first down. The next play found his pass reaching Wilson on the goal line for the score. Jim Jarrett's conversion kick was wide.

That was the ball game—the one the South Carolina General Assembly ordered by law so that the teams could meet here in their 50th State Fair game, despite a Southern Conference suspension of Clemson for playing in a forbidden bowl game last January.

The closest that the Clemson team got to the South Carolina goal was late in the first period, when Wilson fumbled to Clemson Tackle Earl Wrightenbury on the South Carolina 23. Clemson worked down to the 14 only to lose the ball on downs. Score by periods:

| | | | | | |
| CLEMSON | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| SOUTH CAROLINA | 6 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 6 |

South Carolina scoring: Touchdown — Wilson.

Sentinels Play Hubs

Fort Hill's Sentinels also have an important engagement tonight in Hagerstown when Coach William P. Hahn's Sentinels will collide with Mel Henry's Hagerstown eleven.

Like Martinsburg, the Hub City gridders will be angling for a sweep over Cumberland teams.

Fort Hill has turned back Hagerstown five straight times and the Maroon and Gray hasn't whipped the Hilltoppers since 1946. Tonight marks their 17th meeting and the Scarlet and White holds a 13-2 advantage in victories. Two contests ended in ties.

Unbeaten and once tied Hagerstown will be gunning for win No. 5 while Fort Hill will be seeking triumph No. 6.

Opponents on Fort Hill's schedule after the Hagerstown game are Westminster, here, Franklin High at Johnstown, Pa., and Allegany on Turkey Day. Hagerstown plays Montgomery Blair away, Frederick at home Nov. 14 and closes at home Thanksgiving with Waynesboro.

FROM SMU TO GIANTS

NEW YORK (AP)—Southern Methodist football players will be watching the New York Giants with keen interest this season. Two former Mustang stars, Fred Benners and Kyle Rote, will be in the Giants' regular offensive backfield with Frank Gifford of Southern California and Eddie Price of Tulane. Benners is the new quarterback.

Another rookie from SMU is Pat Knight, a 200-pound fullback.

Native Dancer Is Retired As Two-Year-Old

Will Seek Racing's Triple Crown In '53

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Native Dancer is retiring as undefeated two - year - old champion to rest for an assault on racing's triple crown next year, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt announced today through the Maryland Jockey Club.

A. G. Vanderbilt

He said Native Dancer was finished racing this year.

Pimlico had hoped the outstanding colt would race in its Futurity Nov. 1.

"I would love to run him in the Pimlico Futurity," Vanderbilt said, "but we feel Native Dancer has done everything we need to know. He has established a money winning record for two-year-olds and shown he can run a distance.

Native Dancer accomplished these two objectives yesterday by winning the mile and one-sixteenth Eastview Stakes at Jamiaca. The victory, his ninth straight, hiked his earnings to $230,495.

The previous record for a first-runner was Top Flight's $219,000 in 1931.

Vanderbilt said his horse will be shipped with his stable to California Nov. 7 but will do no racing.

Native Dancer likely will be voted horse of the year, despite his early retirement.

3 p. m., Penn Avenue: Clowns vs. Hot Shots.

4 p. m., Penn Avenue: Red Raiders vs. Terrapins.

away with it, declaring they didn't think much of the restrictions put on race-riders in this country.

When told they must remain at jockeys' quarters, they turned their back and walked out. They enjoyed the freedom of the club house and paddock during the early races and returned about a half hour before time to go to the paddock for the race.

Smirke and Mercer also refused to wear skull caps as a precaution against head injury, stating that the hard protectors would give them headaches.

In England jockeys have the freedom of the course and only steeplechase riders are required to wear skull caps.

The Martinsburg - Allegany football series dates back to 1919 when Page Young was the grid mentor at the Greene Street school. Allegany won by the score of 32-0.

Moorefield and Keyser will meet on the gridiron for the 23rd time today.

The series started in 1927 and Keyser holds a 13-9 edge in victories.

High scoring games were Keyser's 50-6 win in 1928 and Moorefield's 60-0 triumph in 1942.

KHS won last year's game, 6-0.

Beall High's gridders will be meeting Charles Town today for the sixth consecutive year.

Charles Town has won five straight by scores of 13-0, 13-0, 12-6, 12-6 and 13-6.

"It pays to be a Yankee."

That's a baseball slogan and the figures are available to prove it.

Since 1921, a period that produced 31 first division finishes, including 19 pennants and fifteen world series, exactly $3,525,809 extra have been pocketed by the American Leaguers. No other major club can match that.

Except for 1925, when the New Yorkers wound up 7th, the Yankees have been "in the money" 31 out of 32 times. Broken down into individual shares, the average is $3,148 for each Yankee per season.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with 26 first division finishes, are second and the Giants with 21 are third. The Dodgers, Tigers and Cubs trail the leaders.

Football teams of the Maryland Scholastic Association of Baltimore are credited with 30 points for a win, 22½ for a tie and 15 for a loss. Total points are divided by the number of games to get the point average.

Patterson Park High's Clippers lead with two wins, no losses and 30 points.

Chris Charuhas, who is in charge of collecting uniforms of the Dapper Dan Baseball League, reports that only five of the twelve teams have responded.

Special delivery and registered letters have been sent to the managers and still there is no response, Charuhas reports.

Two unbeaten West Virginia high schools tangle in an important game tonight at Morgantown.

Morgantown High (7-0) battles Grafton (7-0).

Coach Clyde's eleven had rolled over Keyser, Martinsburg, East Fairmont, Elkins, Weston, Washington-Irving of Clarksburg and UHS of Morgantown. Grafton has knocked off Lumberport, Belington, Washington-Irving, Bridgeport, Buckhannon, Weston and East Fairmont.

One of the big stars in Western Pennsylvania high school football this season is Fred Chicado, of Shade Township's (Cairnbrook, Pa.) undefeated eleven.

He's scored 18 touchdowns and eleven conversions for a total of 119 points and the papers have been carrying rave notices about his playing.

Shade Township played LaSalle in 1933 and the teams battled to a scoreless tie.

Eddie Crowder

SUCCESS gained by Head Coach Bud Wilkinson at the University of Oklahoma may be predicated on the excellent quarterbacking he has had during his five seasons as head man at Norman. Back in 1948 it was Jack Mitchell. Then came Darrell Royal, followed by Claude Arnold. Now it's Eddie Crowder, who also handled the chores last season. Crowder has turned out to be the best runner-passer of them all. (International)

College Regatta Goes To Syracuse

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — The 1953 intercollegiate rowing championships will be held at Syracuse's Onandaga Lake on Saturday, June 20.

It will be the second straight year that the regatta, once known as the "Poughkeepsie Regatta," will be raced over Onondaga.

Secretary Asa Bushnell today announced the decision of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association to return to the normally tranquil course.

The regatta a Hudson River fixture at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for many years, was shifted to Marietta, O., in 1950 and 1951. Flash floods, however, marred the events in both years.

Southern Conference

pleted 30 of his 70 passes for 363 yards. The 185-pound Georgian went out last Saturday and won his own game-scoring Wake Forest's only touchdown and then kicking a 22-yard field goal with seconds left to beat North Carolina 9-7. He's missed only one extra point in eight attempts.

Duke University has an ace in Worth Lutz. The guy's so good his teammates have nicknamed him 'Worth A Million." He punts, runs and passes. Lutz has completed 19 out of 33 passes for the sixth-ranking Dukes, unbeaten and untied like Maryland. His passes have produced eight touchdowns Not a single one has been intercepted.

Brehany Stands Out

Bill Brehany is the fellow who makes Virginia Military Institute's I-formation go. His 24 completions in 64 attempted passes have brought 456 yards.

Virginia's undefeated and untied Cavaliers boast not one but two top-notch quarterbacks in Charlie Harding and Mel Roach. Roach, who displayed poise in abundance as a freshman a year ago, is beginning to sparkle after being bothered by early season injuries. So far, his passing has been good for five completions in 15 throws and two touchdowns. He's kicked 18 points-after-touchdowns in 22 attempts.

Harding hasn't been nominated for All-America, but he'll have his big chance Saturday. Ninth-rated Virginia, the nation's best defensive team, will get a look at Lutz and his Duke teammates in the South's No. 1 game before more than 33,000 at Charlottesville, Va.

South Carolina Beats Clemson Before 35,000

Gramling's Aerial Decides Game, 6-0

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 23 (AP) — Quarterback Johnny Gramling passed South Carolina to a touchdown on the opening series of plays for a 6-0 football victory against Clemson before 35,000 here today.

Gramling watched most of the game from the bench as he suffered a head injury soon after steering his teammates to the lone touchdown.

South Carolina took the opening kickoff but soon was forced to punt from its 32. The bounding ball brushed Defensive Halfback Archie Baker of Clemson as it came down on the Clemson 32. South Carolina Back Gene Wilson fell on the ball. A pass failed and a running play picked up three. Then Gramling hit end Clyde Bennett on the 19, for a first down. The next play found his pass reaching Wilson on the goal line for the score. Jim Jarrett's conversion kick was wide.

That was the ball game—the one the South Carolina General Assembly ordered by law so that the teams could meet here in their 50th State Fair game, despite a Southern Conference suspension of Clemson for playing in a forbidden bowl game last January.

The closest that the Clemson team got to the South Carolina goal was late in the first period, when Wilson fumbled to Clemson Tackle Earl Wrightenbury on the South Carolina 23. Clemson worked down to the 14 only to lose the ball on downs. Score by periods:

| | | | | | |
| SOUTH CAROLINA | 6 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 6 |

South Carolina scoring: Touchdown — Wilson.

Sentinels Play Hubs

Fort Hill's Sentinels also have an important engagement tonight in Hagerstown when Coach William P. Hahn's Sentinels will collide with Mel Henry's Hagerstown eleven.

Like Martinsburg, the Hub City gridders will be angling for a sweep over Cumberland teams.

Fort Hill has turned back Hagerstown five straight times and the Maroon and Gray hasn't whipped the Hilltoppers since 1946. Tonight marks their 17th meeting and the Scarlet and White holds a 13-2 advantage in victories. Two contests ended in ties.

Unbeaten and once tied Hagerstown will be gunning for win No. 5 while Fort Hill will be seeking triumph No. 6.

Opponents on Fort Hill's schedule after the Hagerstown game are Westminster, here, Franklin High at Johnstown, Pa., and Allegany on Turkey Day. Hagerstown plays Montgomery Blair away, Frederick at home Nov. 14 and closes at home Thanksgiving with Waynesboro.

Native Dancer Is Retired As Two-Year-Old

Will Seek Racing's Triple Crown In '53

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Native Dancer is retiring as undefeated two - year - old champion to rest for an assault on racing's triple crown next year, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt announced today through the Maryland Jockey Club.

A. G. Vanderbilt

He said Native Dancer was finished racing this year.

Pimlico had hoped the outstanding colt would race in its Futurity Nov. 1.

"I would love to run him in the Pimlico Futurity," Vanderbilt said, "but we feel Native Dancer has done everything we need to know. He has established a money winning record for two-year-olds and shown he can run a distance.

Native Dancer accomplished these two objectives yesterday by winning the mile and one-sixteenth Eastview Stakes at Jamaica. The victory, his ninth straight, hiked his earnings to $230,495.

The previous record for a first-runner was Top Flight's $219,000 in 1931.

Vanderbilt said his horse will be shipped with his stable to California Nov. 7 but will do no racing.

Native Dancer likely will be voted horse of the year, despite his early retirement.

away with it, declaring they didn't think much of the restrictions put on race-riders in this country.

When told they must remain at jockeys' quarters, they turned their back and walked out. They enjoyed the freedom of the club house and paddock during the early races and returned about a half hour before time to go to the paddock for the race.

Smirke and Mercer also refused to wear skull caps as a precaution against head injury, stating that the hard protectors would give them headaches.

In England jockeys have the freedom of the course and only steeplechase riders are required to wear skull caps.

The Martinsburg - Allegany football series dates back to 1919 when Page Young was the grid mentor at the Greene Street school. Allegany won by the score of 32-0.

Moorefield and Keyser will meet on the gridiron for the 23rd time today.

The series started in 1927 and Keyser holds a 13-9 edge in victories.

High scoring games were Keyser's 50-6 win in 1928 and Moorefield's 60-0 triumph in 1942.

KHS won last year's game, 6-0.

Beall High's gridders will be meeting Charles Town today for the sixth consecutive year.

Charles Town has won five straight by scores of 13-0, 13-0, 12-6, 12-6 and 13-6.

"It pays to be a Yankee."

That's a baseball slogan and the figures are available to prove it.

Since 1921, a period that produced 31 first division finishes, including 19 pennants and fifteen world series, exactly $3,525,809 extra have been pocketed by the American Leaguers. No other major club can match that.

Except for 1925, when the New Yorkers wound up 7th, the Yankees have been "in the money" 31 out of 32 times. Broken down into individual shares, the average is $3,148 for each Yankee per season.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with 26 first division finishes, are second and the Giants with 21 are third. The Dodgers, Tigers and Cubs trail the leaders.

Football teams of the Maryland Scholastic Association of Baltimore are credited with 30 points for a win, 22½ for a tie and 15 for a loss. Total points are divided by the number of games to get the point average.

Patterson Park High's Clippers lead with two wins, no losses and 30 points.

Chris Charuhas, who is in charge of collecting uniforms of the Dapper Dan Baseball League, reports that only five of the twelve teams have responded.

Special delivery and registered letters have been sent to the managers and still there is no response, Charuhas reports.

Two unbeaten West Virginia high schools tangle in an important game tonight at Morgantown.

Morgantown High (7-0) battles Grafton (7-0).

Coach Clyde's eleven had rolled over Keyser, Martinsburg, East Fairmont, Elkins, Weston, Washington-Irving of Clarksburg and UHS of Morgantown. Grafton has knocked off Lumberport, Belington, Washington-Irving, Bridgeport, Buckhannon, Weston and East Fairmont.

One of the big stars in Western Pennsylvania high school football this season is Fred Chicado, of Shade Township's (Cairnbrook, Pa.) undefeated eleven.

He's scored 18 touchdowns and eleven conversions for a total of 119 points and the papers have been carrying rave notices about his playing.

Shade Township played LaSalle in 1933 and the teams battled to a scoreless tie.

Eddie Crowder

SUCCESS gained by Head Coach Bud Wilkinson at the University of Oklahoma may be predicated on the excellent quarterbacking he has had during his five seasons as head man at Norman. Back in 1948 it was Jack Mitchell. Then came Darrell Royal, followed by Claude Arnold. Now it's Eddie Crowder, who also handled the chores last season. Crowder has turned out to be the best runner-passer of them all. (International)

College Regatta Goes To Syracuse

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — The 1953 intercollegiate rowing championships will be held at Syracuse's Onandaga Lake on Saturday, June 20.

It will be the second straight year that the regatta, once known as the "Poughkeepsie Regatta," will be raced over Onondaga.

Secretary Asa Bushnell today announced the decision of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association to return to the normally tranquil course.

The regatta a Hudson River fixture at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for many years, was shifted to Marietta, O., in 1950 and 1951. Flash floods, however, marred the events in both years.

Southern Conference

pleted 30 of his 70 passes for 363 yards. The 185-pound Georgian went out last Saturday and won his own game-scoring Wake Forest's only touchdown and then kicking a 22-yard field goal with seconds left to beat North Carolina 9-7. He's missed only one extra point in eight attempts.

Duke University has an ace in Worth Lutz. The guy's so good his teammates have nicknamed him 'Worth A Million." He punts, runs and passes. Lutz has completed 19 out of 33 passes for the sixth-ranking Dukes, unbeaten and untied like Maryland. His passes have produced eight touchdowns Not a single one has been intercepted.

Brehany Stands Out

Bill Brehany is the fellow who makes Virginia Military Institute's I-formation go. His 24 completions in 64 attempted passes have brought 456 yards.

Virginia's undefeated and untied Cavaliers boast not one but two top-notch quarterbacks in Charlie Harding and Mel Roach. Roach, who displayed poise in abundance as a freshman a year ago, is beginning to sparkle after being bothered by early season injuries. So far, his passing has been good for five completions in 15 throws and two touchdowns. He's kicked 18 points-after-touchdowns in 22 attempts.

Harding hasn't been nominated for All-America, but he'll have his big chance Saturday. Ninth-rated Virginia, the nation's best defensive team, will get a look at Lutz and his Duke teammates in the South's No. 1 game before more than 33,000 at Charlottesville, Va.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK—(INS)—Any reasonable person, Mr. Truman protested, would recognize that he had not called Gen. Ike anti-Semetic and anti-Catholic. Just go back over the record, the President urged, and get it straight.

Some will, and will be reassured. Others—and we suspect that they will be in a majority—will not.

Something of a similar nature comes up in every election. There is so much wind dispensed by both sides, so many brief and transcient illuminations of nuances, so many half-said things, semi-charges, backings, eddings, flowings that somewhere along the line a speaker will put his foot in his mouth and often never extricate it completely.

Tom Dewey's "lunatic engineer," for instance.

The New York governor was going along real well, according to the polls and those who wanted to bet, at least, when he stepped out on the back of his train to say a few words one day—and as the crowd huddled around the platform to cup an ear at what the candidate said, the train suddenly lurched backward, almost running over some votes.

Alarmed and angered, Dewey muttered "lunatic engineer," then—when things settled down again—went on with his speech and forgot all about it. But the opposition didn't.

"Lunatic engineer," came to stand for what was called Dewey's anti-union sentiments and his determination to suppress labor's New Deal and Fair Deal gains if he ever reached the White House. The instinctive remark snowballed into a very real obstacle to Dewey, one which the candidate impatiently dismissed until it—and other things, of course—had got too big to overcome.

What the President said originally, to send this now semi-violent campaign off on its newest tack, was:

"Among those who voted for the McCarran (displaced persons) bill and to override my veto, was the Republican candidate for vice president.

"Among the other Republicans were Sens Jenner and McCarthy, together with ex-Sen. Revercomb, the champion of the anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish provisions of the original bill.

"These men have been embraced by the candidate for president."

That is open to several interpretations. The President actually did not call Eisenhower anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic. He didn't call Jenner or McCarthy that, either, as I read it. It was directed at Revercomb apparently—and Revercomb and Eisenhower, as far as I know, are hardly pals, if they knew each other at all.

But, as suggested earlier, some people are not going to dip back that far into what Mr. Truman said or—like the case of Dewey in 1948—carefully examine the reason why he said it. These people are going to start with the premise that he said it about Ike in the first place, and that Bernard Baruch and other civic and religious leaders have come to Eisenhower's defense because they, too, resent the charge.

There may be some, too, who carefully read what the President actually said and still feel deeply that he was wrong. In many congressional hearings and departmental trials over the past four or five years, involving loyalty, the administration has been an articulate foe of all efforts to condemn a person because of his associations—"guilty by association." But that is precisely the device the President has seen fit to use in this bombshell incident.

This is not the article of a pundit, and isn't likely ever to be. What I'm saying is that this is a period in the campaign when the principals must have not only principle but the strongest hold on their tongues. For if they kick one at this late date, there just ain't time left to unkick it.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK—(INS)—Any reasonable person, Mr. Truman protested, would recognize that he had not called Gen. Ike anti-Semetic and anti-Catholic. Just go back over the record, the President urged, and get it straight.

Some will, and will be reassured. Others—and we suspect that they will be in a majority—will not.

Something of a similar nature comes up in every election. There is so much wind dispensed by both sides, so many brief and transcient illuminations of nuances, so many half-said things, semi-charges, backings, eddings, flowings that somewhere along the line a speaker will put his foot in his mouth and often never extricate it completely.

Tom Dewey's "lunatic engineer," for instance.

The New York governor was going along real well, according to the polls and those who wanted to bet, at least, when he stepped out on the back of his train to say a few words one day—and as the crowd huddled around the platform to cup an ear at what the candidate said, the train suddenly lurched backward, almost running over some votes.

Alarmed and angered, Dewey muttered "lunatic engineer," then—when things settled down again—went on with his speech and forgot all about it. But the opposition didn't.

"Lunatic engineer," came to stand for what was called Dewey's anti-union sentiments and his determination to suppress labor's New Deal and Fair Deal gains if he ever reached the White House. The instinctive remark snowballed into a very real obstacle to Dewey, one which the candidate impatiently dismissed until it—and other things, of course—had got too big to overcome.

What the President said originally, to send this now semi-violent campaign off on its newest tack, was:

"Among those who voted for the McCarran (displaced persons) bill and to override my veto, was the Republican candidate for vice president.

"Among the other Republicans were Sens Jenner and McCarthy, together with ex-Sen. Revercomb, the champion of the anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish provisions of the original bill.

"These men have been embraced by the candidate for president."

That is open to several interpretations. The President actually did not call Eisenhower anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic. He didn't call Jenner or McCarthy that, either, as I read it. It was directed at Revercomb apparently—and Revercomb and Eisenhower, as far as I know, are hardly pals, if they knew each other at all.

But, as suggested earlier, some people are not going to dip back that far into what Mr. Truman said or—like the case of Dewey in 1948—carefully examine the reason why he said it. These people are going to start with the premise that he said it about Ike in the first place, and that Bernard Baruch and other civic and religious leaders have come to Eisenhower's defense because they, too, resent the charge.

There may be some, too, who carefully read what the President actually said and still feel deeply that he was wrong. In many congressional hearings and departmental trials over the past four or five years, involving loyalty, the administration has been an articulate foe of all efforts to condemn a person because of his associations—"guilty by association." But that is precisely the device the President has seen fit to use in this bombshell incident.

This is not the article of a pundit, and isn't likely ever to be. What I'm saying is that this is a period in the campaign when the principals must have not only principle but the strongest hold on their tongues. For if they kick one at this late date, there just ain't time left to unkick it.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

The Washington Whirligig

Continuing the memoirs of a traveling salesman, I visited all the newspapers in Washington to try to peddle features, but most of the editors wanted to ask me what I thought about the outcome of the election. Talk about carrying coals to Newcastle when these experts seek the opinion of a bystander like me. Everybody believed it was going to be very close with the general a little ahead at this time. Between forecasts, I managed to sell some of my wares and sign a few contracts.

John Wheeler

Mr. and Mrs. Cord Meyer invited me to dinner in their home in Virginia, and he agreed to pick me up at the National Press Building at six. I stood on the curb waiting, and it struck me the traffic was about as heavy and confused as some of the official thinking in this capital. He now works for the Central Intelligence Agency and made a remarkable record in the war being very badly wounded in the Pacific. His twin brother, Quentin, was killed. His wife was Mary Pinchot, the daughter of Amos, and half sister of Rosamond.

"If it is a fair question, what sort of work do you do now?" I asked him as we were riding along.

"I am sorry I can't tell you," he answered, so that closed the matter.

It was a pleasant evening getting the views of youth on the political and world situations. I found myself frequently in disagreement with them, but they seemed to face the future with confidence and unafraid which is more than a lot of us old-timers do.

When I arrived in Atlanta, I was shocked to read Bobby Jones had had a heart attack. He is an old friend who, in my opinion, wrote the most intelligent series of instructive golf articles for the Bell Syndicate ever published. He insisted on doing it all himself, turning them out in long hand and not leaning on a ghost.

"How did it happen?" I asked George Biggers, president of the Atlanta Journal.

"He was on his way to the hospital for a check-up to see what was causing new pains. He has been suffering from old ones for years since the disc operation. I hear he's pretty sick."

Later I called Mrs. Jones, and she was worried but encouraging.

"He can't see anybody," she said in reply to a question, "but he is better today."

That night some friends of mine invited me to go to the opera, but I declined politely, and I am sure Emily Post would have approved my manners. This reminds me of the wife of a pal of mine who cannot refuse when someone calls to ask her to attend a function, although she knows at the time she doesn't want to go. She always accepts and then sends a telegram explaining she has been taken sick or slipped and fallen down an open manhole or something which helps Western Union out. It reminds me of years ago, Ring Lardner, who was then living in Chicago, was visiting New York, and my wife and I asked him to have dinner with us.

"I can't," he said. "I have an engagement to meet the artist who illustrates my stories for the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Lorimer thinks he would do better work if he got acqainted with me."

We had another cocktail or two and I began to suggest conventional excuses. Mr. Lardner shook his head no sadly and silently. Finally he jumped up and started for the telephone.

"What did you do?" I asked when he returned.

"Oh, I called and said I had already met an artist today and didn't need to see him until tomorrow."

The trip home by Eastern Airlines was pleasant, although I spilled some sauce on my blue trousers when the plane gave a lurch. Maybe I'll sue. I sat next to C. E. Woolman, president of Delta Airlines, a nice guy and an old-time pilot.

"How much do these meals cost the companies?" I asked him.

"About two dollars each—some as much as two-forty," he answered.

"Why do you give away so many?"

"Competition and to please the passengers. With these fast ships we fly now, our stewardesses practically have to run to serve them between Atlanta and Tampa."

We pulled up at Idlewild Airport on time, and now I am back in the same old rut.

Brothers Draft Trial Postponed By Court

The trial of two former Cumberland brothers charged with refusing to be inducted into the armed forces July 29 has been postponed.

Walter Durane Robey, 25, and Otto Robey, 21, who lived at 240 Massachusetts Avenue before leaving here, were scheduled to be given a hearing today in Baltimore Federal Court.

Due to numerous cases on the docket of Judge William C. Coleman, the Robey trial was "set back indefinitely," according to U. S. District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn.

Two weeks ago, both brothers pleaded not guilty to the charge, claiming to be conscientious objectors as members of the Jehovah Witnesses sect. They are free under $2,500 bond each.

Schools Plan Tribute To United Nations

Schools in Allegany County will observe United Nations Day today on the seventh anniversary of the world organization.

Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools for the Allegany County Board of Education, is chairman of the county observance of UN Day.

He has called upon each principal and teacher to take time today to discuss and explain the significance of the organization.

Where possible, Davis urged assembly programs dedicated to an understanding of what the United Nations is, what it has accomplished and what it hopes to accomplish in the future.

The trial of two former Cumberland brothers charged with refusing to be inducted into the armed forces July 29 has been postponed.

Walter Durane Robey, 25, and Otto Robey, 21, who lived at 240 Massachusetts Avenue before leaving here, were scheduled to be given a hearing today in Baltimore Federal Court.

Due to numerous cases on the docket of Judge William C. Coleman, the Robey trial was "set back indefinitely," according to U. S. District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn.

Two weeks ago, both brothers pleaded not guilty to the charge, claiming to be conscientious objectors as members of the Jehovah Witnesses sect. They are free under $2,500 bond each.

Moorefield PTA Stages Back-To-School Night

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Monday night was Back-to-School night for members of the Moorefield PTA when they visited Moorefield High School and made a brief run-through of the daily schedule.

After a short "Assembly period," when Rev. Milton Austin talked on voting, the parents went to the home rooms of their children and followed them through the six periods of the day, many ending up in "football" where Coach Paugh found his football team looking frailer than usual.

Rev. Austin, in his talk, urged the parents to "bring their citizenship down to earth" and be sure and vote. But before they voted, he requested them to think. To find out what the candidates stood for and decide if that was what was wanted for our country. He also showed how one vote had been decisive in many elections: one vote had admitted California to the union; one vote had elected Oliver Cromwell to the Long Parliament and thus changed the history of England; in 1876 one vote in the electorial college had decided the presidency.

After the six period "day" had been brought to a close by the ringing of the fire alarm, the members went to the Library where a business meeting was held, with Mrs. Woodrow Brill, president, in the chair.

The Finance committee presented a report, setting up a $200 budget for the year and suggesting a Hallowe'en Carnival for the first money making project of the year. When the group agreed to put on the Carnival, Mrs. David Hahn, chairman of the committee, presented her committees for the event. Food tables to be handled by Mrs. M. I. Williams, Mrs. Guy Funkhouser, Mrs. G. B. Stalnaker and Mrs. Aleck Welton and Mrs. Ervin Bowman; Publicity, Mrs. R. E. Fisher; Posters, Miss Lucy Fisher and the Art Class; String Band, Ted Burns; Fortune Telling, Mrs. C. B. Hiett; Decorating, Vo-Ag class; Fancy Work, Miss Mary Martin and the Home Ec department; Penny pitch, Raymond Sindy; Prizes, Mrs. J. W. Kuykendall; Cake-Walk, Ted Burns; and other entertainments to be worked out later.

Mrs. R. M. Gamble's room, at the graded school, won the prize for most members in attendance and after the meeting adjourned, the seventh grade teachers served ice-cream cones to the "students."

President Says

attacked by the planned and deliberate use of lies, slanders, and fear. A little group of people are using these weapons, on a wide scale, in an attempt to attain public office. They want to make it dangerous for anyone to express opinions different from theirs. They try to destroy the reputation of any man in public or private life who dares to stand up and oppose them. These methods endanger our freedom and our personal lives as citizens.

"You've had a good example right here in your own State of how these political gangsters operate.

Cites "Underworld" Tactics

"In 1950, they tried out their methods in your State.

"Today, these same methods have been adopted by one of our major political parties as its campaign strategy.

"Let us look at what happened here in Maryland two years ago. Some carpetbag politicians, who had nothing but contempt for our democratic traditions, came into the State.

"They were led by elements from the political underworld, including an unscrupulous and power hungry Chicago newspaper publisher. They had plenty of money from the special interest lobbies.

"They violated your State laws. Their deliberate purpose was to pervert your free election by the sheer weight of money and false propaganda. Their tools were misrepresentation, defamation, and outright fakery.

"I know that many thousands of good people in Maryland were shocked and indignant when they learned the full story of that campaign. You convicted one of the members of that conspiracy for violating your State election laws. It's too bad that you weren't able to do anything about some of the others, who operated from Washington and Chicago.

"After the 1950 elections, the nature of this Republican campaign was thoroughly exposed, and I hope that people everywhere in the country are now on their guard.

"Five members of the United States Senate—three Democrats and two Republicans—conducted a careful and painstaking investigation of the 1950 Republican Senate campaign in this State.

"I'm not going to take the time to recount all of the details of that investigation and what it revealed about the concealment of funds that came in from outside the State, the use of that fake photograph and all the rest. But I do want to remind you that the whole Republican campaign was based on an attempt to smear their opposition with false charges of communism.

"And I do want to read you just a few things from the unanimous report of that committee — and remember that two Republicans joined three Democrats in this report.

Front Street And Back Street

"They said that there were really two parts to that Republican campaign, and here's how they described them. I am quoting from the report.

"One was the dignified 'front street' campaign conducted by the Republican candidate in his speaking tours.

"The other was the despicable 'back street' type of campaign, which usually, if exposed in time, backfires. The 'back street' campaign conducted by non-Maryland outsiders was of a form and pattern designed to undermine and destroy the public faith and confidence in the basic American loyalty of a well-known figure."

"This was the Senate committee talking about the Republican campaign in Maryland in 1950.

"The investigating committee of five Senaters, including two Republicans, also said that this 'back street' campaign involved publicity efforts aimed at damaging the reputation and creating and exploiting doubts about the loyalty to his country of the opposing candidate.

"They said the Republican campaign "disregarded simple decency and common honesty."

"And then the committee added this:

Threat To Freedom

"'Such campaign methods and tactics are destroying our system of free elections and undermine the very foundations of our government.'

"Now, my friends, that is a bipartisan statement describing what was done in this State in 1950.

"The national leadership of the Republican Party never repudiated what was done in that campaign. On the contrary, they adopted it for use on a national scale this year.

"But with a difference. This year the back street campaign is being put on in the front street.

"Senator McCarthy, who was the ring-leader in the dirty back street campaign in Maryland in 1950, has been welcomed as a colleague on the campaign train of the Republican candidate for President. He is openly campaigning around the country, on radio and television for the Republican ticket.

The "Big Doubt"

"And his special tactics of the big lie and the big doubt are also being used by other, more eminent men.

"In speech after speech, the Republican candidate for President has been using a fancy version of the big doubt technique the Republicans used here in Maryland in 1950. And the Republican candidate for Vice President—the second highest office in the land—is engaged in nothing less than a false campaign of personal slander and innuendo against the honored and respected public servant who heads the Democratic ticket.

"That's how desperate the Republican Party is, and that's how unprincipled its leadership has become from taking its own poison.

"Now, I hope and I believe that you people here in Maryland—and the people everywhere in the country—will see what this Republican campaign is, before the election, and not afterwards, when it would be too late.

"We are moving into the closing days of the campaign. I don't know what sort of composite pictures or other frauds they're going to try to put off on you this year. But I'm sure they will try something of the sort, because the same kind of people are helping to run the Republican campaign this year that ran the 'back street' campaign in Maryland in 1950. So look out, and don't be fooled by it.

"The decision that the American people have to make when they go to the polls twelve days from now may be the most important decision they will make in their lifetime.

Urges Repudiation

"Think carefully about that. The future of your children and of future generations depends on your making a decision that will preserve for them the freedoms and liberties that we ourselves have inherited.

"Don't you entrust our Bill of Rights to the 'back street' campaigners, or to the party that welcomes and solicits that sort of support.

"The Republican Party should be so thoroughly repudiated that the un-American tactics they are using this year will never again re-appear in an election in these free United States of ours.

"The way to do that, my friends, is to roll up an overwhelming majority for the Democratic ticket. Vote for men and women with the character and the courage to stand up for your basic liberties.

"Governor Stevenson has had a great deal of experience in civilian government. He understands that our Government is not a military organization, but a cooperative effort of free men.

"Adlai Stevenson is a men you can trust with the future of America. In this election campaign, he has shown his unswerving adherence to principle and his deep devotion to our form of Government. My friends, we need Adlai Stevenson in the White House, and it's up to you to put him there on November fourth."

Moorefield PTA Stages Back-To-School Night

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Monday night was Back-to-School night for members of the Moorefield PTA when they visited Moorefield High School and made a brief run-through of the daily schedule.

After a short "Assembly period," when Rev. Milton Austin talked on voting, the parents went to the home rooms of their children and followed them through the six periods of the day, many ending up in "football" where Coach Paugh found his football team looking frailer than usual.

Rev. Austin, in his talk, urged the parents to "bring their citizenship down to earth" and be sure and vote. But before they voted, he requested them to think. To find out what the candidates stood for and decide if that was what was wanted for our country. He also showed how one vote had been decisive in many elections: one vote had admitted California to the union; one vote had elected Oliver Cromwell to the Long Parliament and thus changed the history of England; in 1876 one vote in the electorial college had decided the presidency.

After the six period "day" had been brought to a close by the ringing of the fire alarm, the members went to the Library where a business meeting was held, with Mrs. Woodrow Brill, president, in the chair.

The Finance committee presented a report, setting up a $200 budget for the year and suggesting a Hallowe'en Carnival for the first money making project of the year. When the group agreed to put on the Carnival, Mrs. David Hahn, chairman of the committee, presented her committees for the event. Food tables to be handled by Mrs. M. I. Williams, Mrs. Guy Funkhouser, Mrs. G. B. Stalnaker and Mrs. Aleck Welton and Mrs. Ervin Bowman; Publicity, Mrs. R. E. Fisher; Posters, Miss Lucy Fisher and the Art Class; String Band, Ted Burns; Fortune Telling, Mrs. C. B. Hiett; Decorating, Vo-Ag class; Fancy Work, Miss Mary Martin and the Home Ec department; Penny pitch, Raymond Sindy; Prizes, Mrs. J. W. Kuykendall; Cake-Walk, Ted Burns; and other entertainments to be worked out later.

Mrs. R. M. Gamble's room, at the graded school, won the prize for most members in attendance and after the meeting adjourned, the seventh grade teachers served ice-cream cones to the "students."

President Says

attacked by the planned and deliberate use of lies, slanders, and fear. A little group of people are using these weapons, on a wide scale, in an attempt to attain public office. They want to make it dangerous for anyone to express opinions different from theirs. They try to destroy the reputation of any man in public or private life who dares to stand up and oppose them. These methods endanger our freedom and our personal lives as citizens.

"You've had a good example right here in your own State of how these political gangsters operate.

Cites "Underworld" Tactics

"In 1950, they tried out their methods in your State.

"Today, these same methods have been adopted by one of our major political parties as its campaign strategy.

"Let us look at what happened here in Maryland two years ago. Some carpetbag politicians, who had nothing but contempt for our democratic traditions, came into the State.

"They were led by elements from the political underworld, including an unscrupulous and power hungry Chicago newspaper publisher. They had plenty of money from the special interest lobbies.

"They violated your State laws. Their deliberate purpose was to pervert your free election by the sheer weight of money and false propaganda. Their tools were misrepresentation, defamation, and outright fakery.

"I know that many thousands of good people in Maryland were shocked and indignant when they learned the full story of that campaign. You convicted one of the members of that conspiracy for violating your State election laws. It's too bad that you weren't able to do anything about some of the others, who operated from Washington and Chicago.

"After the 1950 elections, the nature of this Republican campaign was thoroughly exposed, and I hope that people everywhere in the country are now on their guard.

"Five members of the United States Senate—three Democrats and two Republicans—conducted a careful and painstaking investigation of the 1950 Republican Senate campaign in this State.

"I'm not going to take the time to recount all of the details of that investigation and what it revealed about the concealment of funds that came in from outside the State, the use of that fake photograph and all the rest. But I do want to remind you that the whole Republican campaign was based on an attempt to smear their opposition with false charges of communism.

"And I do want to read you just a few things from the unanimous report of that committee — and remember that two Republicans joined three Democrats in this report.

Front Street And Back Street

"They said that there were really two parts to that Republican campaign, and here's how they described them. I am quoting from the report.

"One was the dignified 'front street' campaign conducted by the Republican candidate in his speaking tours.

"The other was the despicable 'back street' type of campaign, which usually, if exposed in time, backfires. The 'back street' campaign conducted by non-Maryland outsiders was of a form and pattern designed to undermine and destroy the public faith and confidence in the basic American loyalty of a well-known figure."

"This was the Senate committee talking about the Republican campaign in Maryland in 1950.

"The investigating committee of five Senaters, including two Republicans, also said that this 'back street' campaign involved publicity efforts aimed at damaging the reputation and creating and exploiting doubts about the loyalty to his country of the opposing candidate.

"They said the Republican campaign "disregarded simple decency and common honesty."

"And then the committee added this:

Threat To Freedom

"'Such campaign methods and tactics are destroying our system of free elections and undermine the very foundations of our government.'

"Now, my friends, that is a bipartisan statement describing what was done in this State in 1950.

"The national leadership of the Republican Party never repudiated what was done in that campaign. On the contrary, they adopted it for use on a national scale this year.

"But with a difference. This year the back street campaign is being put on in the front street.

"Senator McCarthy, who was the ring-leader in the dirty back street campaign in Maryland in 1950, has been welcomed as a colleague on the campaign train of the Republican candidate for President. He is openly campaigning around the country, on radio and television for the Republican ticket.

The "Big Doubt"

"And his special tactics of the big lie and the big doubt are also being used by other, more eminent men.

"In speech after speech, the Republican candidate for President has been using a fancy version of the big doubt technique the Republicans used here in Maryland in 1950. And the Republican candidate for Vice President—the second highest office in the land—is engaged in nothing less than a false campaign of personal slander and innuendo against the honored and respected public servant who heads the Democratic ticket.

"That's how desperate the Republican Party is, and that's how unprincipled its leadership has become from taking its own poison.

"Now, I hope and I believe that you people here in Maryland—and the people everywhere in the country—will see what this Republican campaign is, before the election, and not afterwards, when it would be too late.

"We are moving into the closing days of the campaign. I don't know what sort of composite pictures or other frauds they're going to try to put off on you this year. But I'm sure they will try something of the sort, because the same kind of people are helping to run the Republican campaign this year that ran the 'back street' campaign in Maryland in 1950. So look out, and don't be fooled by it.

"The decision that the American people have to make when they go to the polls twelve days from now may be the most important decision they will make in their lifetime.

Urges Repudiation

"Think carefully about that. The future of your children and of future generations depends on your making a decision that will preserve for them the freedoms and liberties that we ourselves have inherited.

"Don't you entrust our Bill of Rights to the 'back street' campaigners, or to the party that welcomes and solicits that sort of support.

"The Republican Party should be so thoroughly repudiated that the un-American tactics they are using this year will never again re-appear in an election in these free United States of ours.

"The way to do that, my friends, is to roll up an overwhelming majority for the Democratic ticket. Vote for men and women with the character and the courage to stand up for your basic liberties.

"Governor Stevenson has had a great deal of experience in civilian government. He understands that our Government is not a military organization, but a cooperative effort of free men.

"Adlai Stevenson is a men you can trust with the future of America. In this election campaign, he has shown his unswerving adherence to principle and his deep devotion to our form of Government. My friends, we need Adlai Stevenson in the White House, and it's up to you to put him there on November fourth."

Witt Appointed Forest Warden

A commission designating Ralph T. Witt of Eckhart as a new forest warden in Allegany County has been received at the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court.

The commission, for two years beginning October 14, was signed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and Secretary of State John R. Reeves.

Witt has been acting forest superintendent at Green Ridge State Forest for several months, according to District Forester William H. Johnson. His appointment as forest warden gives him authority to enforce burning law violations.

the occasion, but no musical unit showed up. Democratic officials said plans had been made to have music by the Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, Drum and Bugle Corps, but the unit was unable to attend. As a result, records were played over a loud speaker before the ceremony.

Wilson said yesterday the committee is planning to serve coffee and donuts to the crowd for Gov. Adlai Stevenson's visit here at 7:30 a. m. Friday.

A commission designating Ralph T. Witt of Eckhart as a new forest warden in Allegany County has been received at the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court.

The commission, for two years beginning October 14, was signed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and Secretary of State John R. Reeves.

Witt has been acting forest superintendent at Green Ridge State Forest for several months, according to District Forester William H. Johnson. His appointment as forest warden gives him authority to enforce burning law violations.

The President's train left about 10 minutes after the talk and the Chief Executive waved back at the crowd as it pulled out of the station. Several persons ran along with the train until it came to the end of the concrete platform in front of the station.

Wilson said yesterday the committee is planning to serve coffee and donuts to the crowd for Gov. Adlai Stevenson's visit here at 7:30 a. m. Friday.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23 (INS)—Louis B. Mayer and his attractive Lorena are back from New York. While there, L. B. arranged to convert a theatre for Cinerama in the big town. It will cost $100,000 to rebuild the theatre, add the three projection machines and change every other seat so that the screen can be seen to advantage. (In other words, there will be no bad seats.)

Now the Cinerama company will look for a theatre or build one in Los Angeles. The plan is to take over four theatres in four key cities to show this amazing new development in motion pictures.

Cinerama will be, it's believed, as big a shot in the arm for motion pictures as was sound to the ailing silent films.

The most constant escort of Peggy Lee these evenings is good looking Brad Dexter, who yesterday parted company with RKO. Brad told me that he left because he did not want to play the role in "Split Second," which he felt was not right for him.

Brad, who was brought here from the New York stage, made his film debut in "Asphalt Jungle," the movie that made the world Marilyn Monroe-conscious. He was then signed by Howard Hughes but so far has appeared in only two films, "Macao" and "Las Vegas Story."

Yesterday, Jan Sterling was signed for the lead in "Split Second" and Alexis Smith for the second feminine lead.

Mindy Carson, the singer who looks so much like Ingrid Bergman that it's startling, came close to remaining in Hollywood after her appearance at Ciro's, but apparently nothing happened.

Now, after a five week engagement at the Plaza Hotel in New York, Mindy comes to Hollywood to talk about a deal with MGM. She had a tentative deal with 20th when she was at Ciro's, but it didn't go through because she wanted her TV rights, and a little later she had to take time out because of the birth of her baby.

But, apparently she's worked out her TV clause to everyone's satisfaction with MGM.

Charlie Chaplin is in dutch with the royal family, and consequently with his friend Hannen Swaffer, well known British critic. For the second time, the comedian turned down an invitation to appear at the royal command performance.

Charlie was asked to present Claire Bloom in the balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet" in which she is now appearing at the Old Vic Theatre, then come on himself and make a bow to the queen. He was told his wife might be presented to the queen. He was reminded that his refusal to appear for the music-hall charities in 1931 led to much criticism. But, still Charlie said a big "no."

Chatter in Hollywood:

Ava Gardner says those two interviews in the East which quoted her are not true. She has talked to no one and she will not talk to anyone about her troubles with Frank Sinatra. She did say yesterday that she will not consult an attorney. Says Ava, "I can settle my own troubles."

Meanwhile, as of today, Frankie is in town, but not with Ava. However, she has taken him back before, and my guess is that she will do so again. She leaves Tuesday for Africa, and I'll be surprised if they don't make up before that time.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Isn't Leslie Caron in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital under her married name of Mrs. George Hormel?

Mario Lanza has bought several expensive wristwatches and sent them to friends hoping to make up.

Kati Jurado, Mexican actress, who played opposite Gary Cooper in "High Noon," is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, suffering from acute gastro-enteritis.

On Sunday, once again I am going to be on Jack Benny's radio show. This is always a wonderful experience because I am so fond of Jack and Mary Benny, and it's always fun.

Dorothy Kirsten told me after the opening of the opera that she expects her husband here from San Antonio next week.

Dorothy has never looked as beautiful as she did in "L'Amore Del Tre Re." Backstage to see her after her glorious triumph was the widow of Composer Italo Montemezzi. It was a sad evening, in a way, for her because she and her husband were very close.

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Lana Turner's Electric Something Stirs Male Pulse

This is the fifth article in famed Movie Columnist Louella O. Parsons' series naming "Hollywood's ten most exciting women." Watch the News and Sunday Times for the names and stories of the other stars selected by Miss Parsons.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
(Copyright 1952 by International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Lana Turner, unlike some of our other glamour girls, leaves no doubt in my mind, nor in the minds of other writers, that she will always have that electric something that stirs the pulse of the opposite sex.

I know every mood and whim of Lana like a book. Every time she has had troubles romantically and otherwise I have been her confidant.

Ever since I met her, shortly after Mervyn Le Roy discovered her in a drugstore having a soda, and signed her for "They Won't Forget" at Warner Brothers Studios, she has poured out her troubles to me.

The first time I saw her was when Mervyn asked me to come to the studio and take a look at his discovery. I thought then, and I think now, that there are few women blessed with the beauty of Julia Jean Turner, who changed her name to Lana after she made that first picture.

Lana Frankness Itself

That Lana's love life has never been very successful, and that she has been hurt almost more than anyone I know, is because she feels so intensely each time she falls in love that this is it — the real thing. And each time she falls out of love it is a tragedy to her.

But Lana has always been frankness itself, and even when she is hurt the most she will take her share of the blame, or she will say to herself that she was responsible for the quarrel.

I think the best example of her frankness is the story she wrote for one of the current magazines, in which she told all about her father, who, she said, had been murdered in San Francisco — a startling slaying that has never been solved.

This story Metro Goldwyn Mayer had taken great pains never to publish. It created havoc in the studio, for Missy Turner called a spade a spade, as had been her wont throughout the years.

I can remember when she used to come out to Marsons Farm with Attorney Gregson Bautzer. She couldn't have been more than seventeen, pretty as a picture and even then showing evidence of becoming the glamour queen that she is today.

Impulsive Nature

Lana's great fault has always been her impulsive nature. One of the best examples of this was one evening in 1940 when she was having dinner with Artie Shaw and he suggested they motor to Las Vegas and get married, which they promptly did.

I don't suppose over a dozen people knew she even had a speaking acquaintance with the clarinet player other than the fact that he was in her current picture.

Her mother, Mrs. Muriel Turner, who has always helped Lana unravel her tangled romances and put her feet squarely on the ground, was shocked at this marriage and it took mother weeks to get over it.

You couldn't say Lana's marriage to Shaw was made in heaven. It was one of those flash-in-the-pan affairs that lasted only briefly. She was intrigued by his music, as other beauties have been during his much-married life time.

Lana's next step in the matrimonial field was in 1942 when she married Stephen Crane, a handsome young man about town.

Then, to Lana's horror and surprise, she found that Steve had not been legally free to marry her. This news came to her when she was expecting their baby.

Their marriage was annulled, but she remarried him just before the baby was born. However, this was another one of those marriages that just could not last, and they were divorced.

There were not enough mutual interests to hold them together, and Lana had been too deeply hurt at all the publicity Steve's other marriage had received.

Part Without Too Much Regret

So they parted without too much regret on either side, but they have kept up their friendship for the sake of their little daughter, Cheryl Crane, whom Lana adores.

Lana has always wistfully hoped to have a home in which she could live like any other housewife. At least that's what she thinks she wants. Whether she would be happy if it actually happened, I very much doubt.

No one could possibly know the hurt in Lana's heart when she and Tyrone Power parted. I, who was close to her at the time, knew what it meant to her.

Everyone thought they would marry, and when Ty had to leave to make a picture in Italy, she gave a big farewell party for him, with every important star and producer in town present.

Lana and Ty seemed so happy that night none of us could have possibly guessed that the party was really Ty's farewell to Lana.

A few weeks later he met Linda Christian and in this case absence failed to make his heart grow fonder for Lana; in fact it grew colder. In vain Lana long distanced Ty and wrote letters, but he was in love with Linda.

For a time Lana was through with men. But she could not stay bitter long, even though she felt she could no longer trust anyone.

Married Topping In 1948

I know when she met Bob Topping and married him in 1948 that she hoped to have children and really settle down. She lost two babies, and Topping, who had been married four times, was too much of a playboy to want any part of family life.

At that their marriage lasted longer than anyone thought possible, what with Topping's love of the night spots and his predeliction for gay society life.

When Lana finally came to me and told me that she could not take it any longer and that she had honestly tried, I knew she was telling the truth. She had honestly tried, and took much more than any woman should be made to endure.

Lana's pictures have always spelled money at the boxoffice, both because of her radiant beauty and her talent as an actress.

It seemed to me when I saw her recently that she must do something to keep that beauty. She had cut her hair very short like a boy's, and on Lana it was not becoming. She is essentially feminine and the close cropped hair did nothing for her. Moreover, she had put on too much weight.

But when I saw her again she had allowed her hair to grow out and had slimmed down for a picture she was about to start. Again she looked her glamorous self.

There is something very winning about Lana; something very sweet and natural. And that's the reason she will always be one of the most exciting women on the screen.

It was this exciting quality that attracted Fernando Lamas, the South American actor, who for over a year was her constant companion.

Lana went into this romance in her usual wholehearted, enthusiastic manner.

No Marriage To Lamas

In their picture, "The Merry Widow," she allowed the Latin lover from the Argentine to have many of the close-ups and practically threw the picture at him to help his career.

But after he was on his way to fame and Mrs. Lamas had obtained a divorce he decided he did not want to marry after all.

There is great indignation in Hollywood against Lamas' reported statements following the breaking of their engagement. But the sad part is that once more Lana is sick and disillusioned.

She won't be for long, however, for I know Lana. She will fall in love again, and this time it will be just as much the "real thing" with her, as far as she is concerned.

Some day maybe this girl who seeks happiness will really find someone who will share her eagerness to have a home, children and happiness. I personally am so fond of Lana that I hope she will find the security that she wants.

But I also hope she will be careful to select the right person this time. I don't believe the Mexican bullfighter, Luis Sollano, who so intrigued her a few weeks ago, is the answer. However, when Lana is hurt she will do anything to forget her heartache.

Now the Cinerama company will look for a theatre or build one in Los Angeles. The plan is to take over four theatres in four key cities to show this amazing new development in motion pictures.

Cinerama will be, it's believed, as big a shot in the arm for motion pictures as was sound to the ailing silent films.

The most constant escort of Peggy Lee these evenings is good looking Brad Dexter, who yesterday parted company with RKO. Brad told me that he left because he did not want to play the role in "Split Second," which he felt was not right for him.

Brad, who was brought here from the New York stage, made his film debut in "Asphalt Jungle," the movie that made the world Marilyn Monroe-conscious. He was then signed by Howard Hughes but so far has appeared in only two films, "Macao" and "Las Vegas Story."

Yesterday, Jan Sterling was signed for the lead in "Split Second" and Alexis Smith for the second feminine lead.

Mindy Carson, the singer who looks so much like Ingrid Bergman that it's startling, came close to remaining in Hollywood after her appearance at Ciro's, but apparently nothing happened.

Now, after a five week engagement at the Plaza Hotel in New York, Mindy comes to Hollywood to talk about a deal with MGM. She had a tentative deal with 20th when she was at Ciro's, but it didn't go through because she wanted her TV rights, and a little later she had to take time out because of the birth of her baby.

But, apparently she's worked out her TV clause to everyone's satisfaction with MGM.

Charlie Chaplin is in dutch with the royal family, and consequently with his friend Hannen Swaffer, well known British critic. For the second time, the comedian turned down an invitation to appear at the royal command performance.

Charlie was asked to present Claire Bloom in the balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet" in which she is now appearing at the Old Vic Theatre, then come on himself and make a bow to the queen. He was told his wife might be presented to the queen. He was reminded that his refusal to appear for the music-hall charities in 1931 led to much criticism. But, still Charlie said a big "no."

Chatter in Hollywood:

Ava Gardner says those two interviews in the East which quoted her are not true. She has talked to no one and she will not talk to anyone about her troubles with Frank Sinatra. She did say yesterday that she will not consult an attorney. Says Ava, "I can settle my own troubles."

Meanwhile, as of today, Frankie is in town, but not with Ava. However, she has taken him back before, and my guess is that she will do so again. She leaves Tuesday for Africa, and I'll be surprised if they don't make up before that time.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Isn't Leslie Caron in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital under her married name of Mrs. George Hormel?

Mario Lanza has bought several expensive wristwatches and sent them to friends hoping to make up.

Kati Jurado, Mexican actress, who played opposite Gary Cooper in "High Noon," is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, suffering from acute gastro-enteritis.

On Sunday, once again I am going to be on Jack Benny's radio show. This is always a wonderful experience because I am so fond of Jack and Mary Benny, and it's always fun.

Dorothy Kirsten told me after the opening of the opera that she expects her husband here from San Antonio next week.

Dorothy has never looked as beautiful as she did in "L'Amore Dei Tre Re." Backstage to see her after her glorious triumph was the widow of Composer Italo Montemezzi. It was a sad evening, in a way, for her because she and her husband were very close.

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Lana Turner's Electric Something Stirs Male Pulse

This is the fifth article in famed Movie Columnist Louella O. Parsons' series naming "Hollywood's ten most exciting women." Watch the News and Sunday Times for the names and stories of the other stars selected by Miss Parsons.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
(Copyright 1952 by International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Lana Turner, unlike some of our other glamour girls, leaves no doubt in my mind, nor in the minds of other writers, that she will always have that electric something that stirs the pulse of the opposite sex.

I know every mood and whim of Lana like a book. Every time she has had troubles romantically and otherwise I have been her confidant.

Ever since I met her, shortly after Mervyn Le Roy discovered her in a drugstore having a soda, and signed her for "They Won't Forget" at Warner Brothers Studios, she has poured out her troubles to me.

The first time I saw her was when Mervyn asked me to come to the studio and take a look at his discovery. I thought then, and I think now, that there are few women blessed with the beauty of Julia Jean Turner, who changed her name to Lana after she made that first picture.

Lana Frankness Itself

That Lana's love life has never been very successful, and that she has been hurt almost more than anyone I know, is because she feels so intensely each time she falls in love that this is it — the real thing. And each time she falls out of love it is a tragedy to her.

But Lana has always been frankness itself, and even when she is hurt the most she will take her share of the blame, or she will say to herself that she was responsible for the quarrel.

I think the best example of her frankness is the story she wrote for one of the current magazines, in which she told all about her father, who, she said, had been murdered in San Francisco — a startling slaying that has never been solved.

This story Metro-Goldwyn Mayer had taken great pains never to publish. It created havoc in the studio, for Missy Turner called a spade a spade, as had been her wont throughout the years.

I can remember when she used to come out to Marsons Farm with Attorney Gregson Bautzer. She couldn't have been more than seventeen, pretty as a picture and even then showing evidence of becoming the glamour queen that she is today.

Impulsive Nature

Lana's great fault has always been her impulsive nature. One of the best examples of this was one evening in 1940 when she was having dinner with Artie Shaw and he suggested they motor to Las Vegas and get married, which they promptly did.

I don't suppose over a dozen people knew she even had a speaking acquaintance with the clarinet player other than the fact that he was in her current picture.

Her mother, Mrs. Muriel Turner, who has always helped Lana unravel her tangled romances and put her feet squarely on the ground, was shocked at this marriage and it took mother weeks to get over it.

You couldn't say Lana's marriage to Shaw was made in heaven. It was one of those flash-in-the-pan affairs that lasted only briefly. She was intrigued by his music, as other beauties have been during his much-married life time.

Lana's next step in the matrimonial field was in 1942 when she married Stephen Crane, a handsome young man about town.

Then, to Lana's horror and surprise, she found that Steve had not been legally free to marry her. This news came to her when she was expecting their baby.

Their marriage was annulled, but she remarried him just before the baby was born. However, this was another one of those marriages that just could not last, and they were divorced.

There were not enough mutual interests to hold them together, and Lana had been too deeply hurt at all the publicity Steve's other marriage had received.

Part Without Too Much Regret

So they parted without too much regret on either side, but they have kept up their friendship for the sake of their little daughter, Cheryl Crane, whom Lana adores.

Lana has always wistfully hoped to have a home in which she could live like any other housewife. At least that's what she thinks she wants. Whether she would be happy if it actually happened, I very much doubt.

No one could possibly know the hurt in Lana's heart when she and Tyrone Power parted. I, who was close to her at the time, knew what it meant to her.

Everyone thought they would marry, and when Ty had to leave to make a picture in Italy, she gave a big farewell party for him, with every important star and producer in town present.

Lana and Ty seemed so happy that night none of us could have possibly guessed that the party was really Ty's farewell to Lana.

A few weeks later he met Linda Christian and in this case absence failed to make his heart grow fonder for Lana; in fact it grew colder. In vain Lana long distanced Ty and wrote letters, but he was in love with Linda.

For a time Lana was through with men. But she could not stay bitter long, even though she felt she could no longer trust anyone.

Married Topping In 1948

I know when she met Bob Topping and married him in 1948 that she hoped to have children and really settle down. She lost two babies, and Topping, who had been married four times, was too much of a playboy to want any part of family life.

At that their marriage lasted longer than anyone thought possible, what with Topping's love of the night spots and his predelection for gay society life.

When Lana finally came to me and told me that she could not take it any longer and that she had honestly tried, I knew she was telling the truth. She had honestly tried, and took much more than any woman should be made to endure.

Lana's pictures have always spelled money at the boxoffice, both because of her radiant beauty and her talent as an actress.

It seemed to me when I saw her recently that she must do something to keep that beauty. She had cut her hair very short like a boy's, and on Lana it was not becoming. She is essentially feminine and the close cropped hair did nothing for her. Moreover, she had put on too much weight.

But when I saw her again she had allowed her hair to grow out and had slimmed down for a picture she was about to start. Again she looked her glamorous self.

There is something very winning about Lana; something very sweet and natural. And that's the reason she will always be one of the most exciting women on the screen.

It was this exciting quality that attracted Fernando Lamas, the South American actor, who for over a year was her constant companion.

Lana went into this romance in her usual wholehearted, enthusiastic manner.

No Marriage To Lamas

In their picture, "The Merry Widow," she allowed the Latin lover from the Argentine to have many of the close-ups and practically threw the picture at him to help his career.

But after he was on his way to fame and Mrs. Lamas had obtained a divorce he decided he did not want to marry after all.

There is great indignation in Hollywood against Lamas' reported statements following the breaking of their engagement. But the sad part is that once more Lana is sick and disillusioned.

She won't be for long, however, for I know Lana. She will fall in love again, and this time it will be just as much the "real thing" with her, as far as she is concerned.

Some day maybe this girl who seeks happiness will really find someone who will share her eagerness to have a home, children and happiness. I personally am so fond of Lana that I hope she will find the security that she wants.

But I also hope she will be careful to select the right person this time. I don't believe the Mexican bullfighter, Luis Sollano, who so intrigued her a few weeks ago, is the answer. However, when Lana is hurt she will do anything to forget her heartache.

Moon Over Abe Burrows

The popular song dodge is certainly being exploited in all directions. Every time you turn around, there is a movie at your elbow celebrating the life and hard times of some obscure character who wrote — they're scraping the bottom of the barrel now — "Put a Candle in the Window, Mother. We're Riding Late Tonight."

John Crosby

I've been waiting for them to get around to Abe Burrows, the celebrated author of "If You Were the Only Girl in the World, All Right, But Right Now Leave Me Alone." That one I'm waiting to see. I was sitting in a little sidewalk cafe on the Champs Elysees when Burrows wrote—on the back of the menu—his masterpiese "The Girl with the Three Blue Eyes" which contains those immortal lines "What makes her different? It's the way she walks, the way she talks." His heart was breaking, as is customary in these matters The girl with the three blue eyes had just left him for a four-toed sloth who drew sidewalk pictures in Montmartre. Lousy pictures, too.

Gads, the drama of Burrows' life! I recall vividly another great occasion in his career. We were at another sidewalk cafe farther north where our credit was better—me on one side taking notes, Toulouse-Lautrec on the other sketching the great scene—when Burrows reached for another menu and penned that song that went around the world—"I'm Dancing with Tears in My Eyes Cause the Girl in My Arms Stole My Watch." You can imagine what Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will do with that one. The way they'll do it, technicolor and all, it'll be the watch his mother gave him. Actually, he won it from her legitimately in a crap game.

We'll just have to wait for Burrows' life and it can't be much longer. Hollywood has done Mozart and Cole Porter. Ed Sullivan has done Rodgers and Hammerstein. Who else is left?

Just how bare the cupboard is was illustrated by Ed Sullivan who last week and this Sunday is doing the story of the American Society of Authors, Composers and publishers or, as it is known, ASCAP. That gives Sullivan a whole grab-bag of composers—thousands of them—and about a million songs to play with. It was a fine sentimental show last week, and I for one had a tear in one eye throughout. No, just one eye. The other one was working.

Sullivan's short history of ASCAP, comprising virtually every composer since Victor Herbert, in which he lymned the greatness of the organization took me back to the mid '30s. Then CBS (which broadcast the Sullivan show) was leading the fight against ASCAP which wanted a little more money for its songs. Ah me! How well I remember! Then ASCAP was depicted by some very skillful CBS publicists as a dirty capitalistic monopoly preying on the poor little networks who were barely eking out an existence on their miserable four or five hundred million dollar a year income. And here was Sullivan lavishing large praise over CBS for ASCAP's great public service. Well, times change.

It was a fine show. Sullivan satrted by displaying the wallet found on Stephen Foster when he died. The wallet contained Foster's fortune—38 cents. No, they didn't have the original 38 cents. Someone slipped up there. The bulk of the show consisted of composers—a good many of whom you thought were dead—singing their own songs. There was Jack Norworth, who now looks a little like Harry Truman, singing those great old songs he wrote, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and "Shine on Harvest Moon."

Harry Tierney sang "Alice Blue Gown" Maude Jerome, who is getting on in years, sang "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and did a little soft shoe dance, too; Geoffrey O'Hara, the white-thatched composer of "K-K-Katy," who claims to be the only man alive who knows the verse to that song, sang both verse and chorus; Ernie Burnett sang "Melancholy Baby" and so on. All of them confirmed an old theory of mine—that composers shouldn't sing except privately—a conclusion I reached watching Irving Berlin wrestle with "Oh How I Hate To Get Up in the Morning."

The only composer I ever saw who could sing passably was Harold Arlen. Well, Arlen was one of the feature attractions and he ran through bits of his great hits, "I've Got the World by a String," "I Love a Parade," "Let's Fall in Love," "It's Ony a Paper Moon," "Devil and the Deep Blue Sea," "My Mamma Done Tole Me," "Stormy Weather," "Over The Rainbow" and "Old Black Magic." But even Arlen wasn't in good voice that night.

Still, they're all great songs and fun to hear even in the cracked tones of their ancient composers. CBS unveiled some pretty fancy camera tricks — showing dancers about the size of dolls dancing on the grand pianos while the composers played and sang. But it was the composers' show, and I'm especially happy that CBS has got around to saying nice things about them. At least, until the next ASC AP contract comes up for renewal. Then the composers again will be referred to as thieves, swindlers and robbers of orphans.

Moon Over Abe Burrows

The popular song dodge is certainly being exploited in all directions. Every time you turn around, there is a movie at your elbow celebrating the life and hard times of some obscure character who wrote — they're scraping the bottom of the barrel now — "Put a Candle in the Window, Mother. We're Riding Late Tonight."

John Crosby

I've been waiting for them to get around to Abe Burrows, the celebrated author of "If You Were the Only Girl in the World, All Right, But Right Now Leave Me Alone." That one I'm waiting to see. I was sitting in a little sidewalk cafe on the Champs Elysees when Burrows wrote—on the back of the menu—his masterpiese "The Girl with the Three Blue Eyes" which contains those immortal lines "What makes her different? It's the way she walks, the way she talks." His heart was breaking, as is customary in these matters The girl with the three blue eyes had just left him for a four-toed sloth who drew sidewalk pictures in Montmartre. Lousy pictures, too.

Gads, the drama of Burrows' life! I recall vividly another great occasion in his career. We were at another sidewalk cafe farther north where our credit was better—me on one side taking notes, Toulouse-Lautrec on the other sketching the great scene—when Burrows reached for another menu and penned that song that went around the world—"I'm Dancing with Tears in My Eyes Cause the Girl in My Arms Stole My Watch." You can imagine what Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will do with that one. The way they'll do it, technicolor and all, it'll be the watch his mother gave him. Actually, he won it from her legitimately in a crap game.

We'll just have to wait for Burrows' life and it can't be much longer. Hollywood has done Mozart and Cole Porter. Ed Sullivan has done Rodgers and Hammerstein. Who else is left?

Just how bare the cupboard is was illustrated by Ed Sullivan who last week and this Sunday is doing the story of the American Society of Authors, Composers and publishers or, as it is known, ASCAP. That gives Sullivan a whole grab-bag of composers—thousands of them—and about a million songs to play with. It was a fine sentimental show last week, and I for one had a tear in one eye throughout. No, just one eye. The other one was working.

Sullivan's short history of ASCAP, comprising virtually every composer since Victor Herbert, in which he lymned the greatness of the organization took me back to the mid '30s. Then CBS (which broadcast the Sullivan show) was leading the fight against ASCAP which wanted a little more money for its songs. Ah me! How well I remember! Then ASCAP was depicted by some very skillful CBS publicists as a dirty capitalistic monopoly preying on the poor little networks who were barely eking out an existence on their miserable four or five hundred million dollar a year income. And here was Sullivan lavishing large praise over CBS for ASCAP's great public service. Well, times change.

It was a fine show. Sullivan satrted by displaying the wallet found on Stephen Foster when he died. The wallet contained Foster's fortune—38 cents. No, they didn't have the original 38 cents. Someone slipped up there. The bulk of the show consisted of composers—a good many of whom you thought were dead—singing their own songs. There was Jack Norworth, who now looks a little like Harry Truman, singing those great old songs he wrote, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and "Shine on Harvest Moon."

Harry Tierney sang "Alice Blue Gown" Maude Jerome, who is getting on in years, sang "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and did a little soft shoe dance, too; Geoffrey O'Hara, the white-thatched composer of "K-K-Katy," who claims to be the only man alive who knows the verse to that song, sang both verse and chorus; Ernie Burnett sang "Melancholy Baby" and so on. All of them confirmed an old theory of mine—that composers shouldn't sing except privately—a conclusion I reached watching Irving Berlin wrestle with "Oh How I Hate To Get Up in the Morning."

The only composer I ever saw who could sing passably was Harold Arlen. Well, Arlen was one of the feature attractions and he ran through bits of his great hits, "I've Got the World by a String," "I Love a Parade," "Let's Fall in Love," "It's Ony a Paper Moon," "Devil and the Deep Blue Sea," "My Mamma Done Tole Me," "Stormy Weather," "Over The Rainbow" and "Old Black Magic." But even Arlen wasn't in good voice that night.

Still, they're all great songs and fun to hear even in the cracked tones of their ancient composers. CBS unveiled some pretty fancy camera tricks — showing dancers about the size of dolls dancing on the grand pianos while the composers played and sang. But it was the composers' show, and I'm especially happy that CBS has got around to saying nice things about them. At least, until the next ASCAP contract comes up for renewal. Then the composers again will be referred to as thieves, swindlers and robbers of orphans.

TAKES RESPONSIBILITY

WHENEVER your partner bids a new suit at a high level—most especially if he is vulnerable—he takes full responsibility for your going to the next higher level if it is necessary to show a sounder fit for a lower-ranking suit which he had bid previously. In case you happen to have three cards of each suit, your duty is to put the contract into the longer one, especially since the "reverse" bidding with such a strong hand indicates not only great strength but the fact that the lower suit is longer.

|---|---|---|
| | ♠ Q 10 7 ♥ A 8 6 ♦ Q J 8 ♣ 10 8 6 5 | |
| ♠ 8 2 ♥ Q 5 4 ♦ A 6 3 ♣ A K Q J 2 | N W E S | ♠ J 5 4 3 ♥ 7 3 2 ♦ 4 2 ♣ 9 7 4 3 |
| | ♠ A K 9 6 ♥ K J 10 9 ♦ K 10 9 7 5 ♣ None | |

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | 2 ♣ | Pass | Pass |
| 3 ♣ | Dble. | 3 N T | Pass |
| 4 ♠ | | | |

That last bid of South, showing such a good hand that he was sure to be bidding his suit-lengths accurately instead of merely using a short-suit bid for convenience in opening, iimposed a bounden duty on North. In view of his own cue-bid of clubs and North's showing of a few dregs in other suits with his 3-No Trumps, South had proclaimed his ability to play in a contract of at least five in one of his suits.

North, with three cards in diamonds and three in spades, should have taken it to 5-Diamonds. That would have been easy to make, and an extra trick would have been found if South decided to finesse against West for the heart Q.

But North decided to pass and leave his partner in 4-Spades, since that required one trick less than the diamonds, even though he knew the suit was dangerous when the side had only seven trumps. Leaving your partner in with only two cards of his suit, when there is some chance he holds five, is not nearly so dangerous as having three opposite four.

West led his club K, which was ruffed by South's spade 6. The diamond 5 to the A brought back the club Q, ruffed by South's second trump. He laid down the A and K of spades, led to the diamond Q and sought a trump split with the Q. When this left East with the spade J, he drove it out with the diamond J, but three club tricks ensued, to put him down two.

What bidding would you recommend on this rubber deal after South's 2-Hearts and North's 3-Clubs?

TIMING THE YOUNG CHATTERBOX
by Garry C. Meyers, Ph.D.

In a family of several children, one child may talk, as at the dinner table, more than all the rest together. This same child may want to talk most of the time during "recitation" at school, or in Sunday school, or at the meeting of Cubs, Brownies, Campfire Girls, Scouts and the like.

If you will visit in a classroom of the elementary grades where pupils are encouraged to talk, you may find several children doing far more talking than all the rest of the class together. Even in a college classroom just a few students may consume most of the time of class discussion. Whereas the loquacious youths may be average in ability, even in facility, of oral expression, they are not always so. A recent published study of college students indicates that the students who talk most in class don't gain most thereby in subject mastery.

Loss To Other Children

Whether the over-talkative pupil or student gains mentally or in ease of expression, he loses something through his practice at selfishness. See, too, how much his classmates and quiet brothers and sisters may lose, especially the more timid ones. Of course, some of the over-talkative persons in the classroom may be only children, yet they probably were chatterboxes with their parents.

Suppose you have an only child who, you are sure, talks too much in the family group. You are glad, of course to have him talk. You merely want him to learn to let others talk as much. If there are brothers and sisters, you wish to bring out expression also from them.

Timed Talking

Instead of telling the chatterer, "You drive me crazy," or nagging at him for talking so much, quietly explain to him that others should also have a chance to be heard. In an extreme case put a clock on the table. Let him have the first opportunity to speak, but only for a stated number of minutes, after which he must be silent till after a total period giving all the rest an equal proportion of time. Otherwise, he must leave the group. Be sure to listen raptly and courteously while he speaks.

If you are a teacher, explain that nobody will have an opportunity to speak too long or often. State that while you are glad a few of your students generously participate in the discussion, you will expect each child after speaking once or so, to keep quiet until after every other child has had an opportunity to speak.

Selfish Feelings

In most classrooms, especially in the grades, those pupils wishing to speak raise their hands to indicate this wish. So eager may they be as to wave the hands, even getting out of their seats and standing as they do, with the attitude, "Me! Call on me!" Usually the hand-waving child has very selfish feelings. How can a child think clearly and speak with ease and force in the face of such distraction!

Children allowed to talk too much at home or school practice in selfishness. They not only deprive other children of an opportunity of adequate expression, but also render themselves less likable.

Matter Of Fact

partment has been taking millions of words of testimony in order to prove that the Communist party is a subversive "action group" within the meaning of the law. But there was one fact McCarthy failed to mention. The words he quoted came from the testimony of one Paul Crouch, who left the Communist party years ago. And the incident about which Crouch testified occurred in 1928, when Calvin Coolidge was President and the impeccable Frank B. Kellogg was secretary of State.

"What's wrong with McCarthy" then, is simply that he does not play the American political game according to the rules. He cheats. He proceeds on the assumption that the voters are too stupid to prefer the complicated truth to the simple, dramatic lie. So far, moreover, McCarthy has gotten away with playing the American voters for boobs. Despite attempts by papers like the "Milwaukee Journal' and the "Madison, Capital Times" to expose such cheating as that described above, McCarthy was triumphantly renominated in the Wisconsin primary.

Even so, certain wise advisers of Eisenhower are urging him to expose and denounce the cheating, if McCarthy cheats again in his forthcoming rendering of "The Stevenson Story." Quite aside from the fact that this would be a natural reaction for a man of Eisenhower's character, to do so might turn out to be sensible politics. For, although they can be played for boobs for a time, the American voters have a way of catching up with the fraud and liars in the end.

Stock Market Regains Half Of Yesterday's Heavy Loss

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—In a comfortable comeback, the Stock Market today regained a shade more than half of its rather heavy loss of yesterday.

Railroads were prime movers in the rise, and they got a lot of assistance from oils, motors, coppers, utilities, aircrafts, radio-televisions, air lines, and many miscellaneous manufacturers, including the tobacco companies.

The chemical division was backward throughout the session, while the steels were barely able to hold steady. U. S. Steel for example closed unchanged at 37¼, and touched a low for the year of 37⅛.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained 60 cents at $104.20. It was down $1.10 yesterday.

The industrial component of the average was up 50 cents, the rails were up 90 cents, and the utilities up 30 cents.

Tobacco shares did well in a reflection of good earnings. Ligget & Myers gained 1½ at 68¼, American Tobacco was up 1 at 57½ and Philip Morris ½ at 46½ on 700 shares.

Late in the day a block of 14,500 shares of Lehigh Valley Coal changed hands at 1½ unchanged from the previous close. It was the day's most active issue at 1½ with 20,600 shares traded.

It was followed by New York Central up ⅛ at 17½, Texas Co. up ⅝ at 51½, General Motors unchanged at 58¼, and Socony-Vacuum up ⅝ at 33⅝. Not a single one of the ten most active issues lost ground.

Higher stocks included Seaboard Railroad up 1 at 108, Southern Railway 1 at 67¼, Northern Pacific 1½ at 68¼, Gulf Oil ⅝ at 47⅛, Amerada Petroleum 2 at 192, United Air Lines 1⅛ at 28⅜, American Telephone ⅝ at 153⅜, Eastman Kodak ¾ at 44, Chrysler ¾ at 81¼, Montgomery Ward 1⅛ at 56⅝, Douglas Aircraft ⅞ at 62½, and Radio Corp. ¼ at 26⅝.

Among lower stocks were Chesapeake & Ohio, the nation's biggest coal carrier, off ⅛ at 35½, U. S. Gypsum 2 at 108½, American Can ¼ at 31⅜, and Goodyear ½ at 41¼.

TAKES RESPONSIBILITY

WHENEVER your partner bids a new suit at a high level—most especially if he is vulnerable—he takes full responsibility for your going to the next higher level if it is necessary to show a sounder fit for a lower-ranking suit which he had bid previously. In case you happen to have three cards of each suit, your duty is to put the contract into the longer one, especially since the "reverse" bidding with such a strong hand indicates not only great strength but the fact that the lower suit is longer!

That last bid of South, showing such a good hand that he was sure to be bidding his suit-lengths accurately instead of merely using a short-suit bid for convenience in opening, iimposed a bounden duty on North. In view of his own cue-bid of clubs and North's showing of a few dregs in other suits with his 3-No Trumps, South had proclaimed his ability to play in a contract of at least five in one of his suits.

North, with three cards in diamonds and three in spades, should have taken it to 5-Diamonds. That would have been easy to make, and an extra trick would have been found if South decided to finesse against West for the heart Q.

But North decided to pass and leave his partner in 4-Spades, since that required one trick less than the diamonds, even though he knew the suit was dangerous when the side had only seven trumps. Leaving your partner in with only two cards of his suit, when there is some chance he holds five, is not nearly so dangerous as having three opposite four.

West led his club K, which was ruffed by South's spade 6. The diamond 5 to the A brought back the club Q, ruffed by South's second trump. He laid down the A and K of spades, led to the diamond Q and sought a trump split with the Q. When this left East with the spade J, he drove it out with the diamond J, but three club tricks ensued, to put him down two.

TIMING THE YOUNG CHATTERBOX
by Garry C. Meyers, Ph.D.

In a family of several children, one child may talk, as at the dinner table, more than all the rest together. This same child may want to talk most of the time during "recitation" at school, or in Sunday school, or at the meeting of Cubs, Brownies, Campfire Girls, Scouts and the like.

If you will visit in a classroom of the elementary grades where pupils are encouraged to talk, you may find several children doing far more talking than all the rest of the class together. Even in a college classroom just a few students may consume most of the time of class discussion. Whereas the loquacious youths may be average in ability, even in facility, of oral expression, they are not always so. A recent published study of college students indicates that the students who talk most in class don't gain most thereby in subject mastery.

Loss To Other Children

Whether the over-talkative pupil or student gains mentally or in ease of expression, he loses something through his practice at selfishness. See, too, how much his classmates and quiet brothers and sisters may lose, especially the more timid ones. Of course, some of the over-talkative persons in the classroom may be only children, yet they probably were chatterboxes with their parents.

Suppose you have an only child who, you are sure, talks too much in the family group. You are glad, of course to have him talk. You merely want him to learn to let others talk as much. If there are brothers and sisters, you wish to bring out expression also from them.

Timed Talking

Instead of telling the chatterer, "You drive me crazy," or nagging at him for talking so much, quietly explain to him that others should also have a chance to be heard. In an extreme case put a clock on the table. Let him have the first opportunity to speak, but only for a stated number of minutes, after which he must be silent till after a total period giving all the rest an equal proportion of time. Otherwise, he must leave the group. Be sure to listen raptly and courteously while he speaks.

If you are a teacher, explain that nobody will have an opportunity to speak too long or often. State that while you are glad a few of your students generously participate in the discussion, you will expect each child after speaking once or so, to keep quiet until after every other child has had an opportunity to speak.

Selfish Feelings

In most classrooms, especially in the grades, those pupils wishing to speak raise their hands to indicate this wish. So eager may they be as to wave the hands, even getting out of their seats and standing as they do, with the attitude, "Me! Call on me!" Usually the hand-waving child has very selfish feelings. How can a child think clearly and speak with ease and force in the face of such distraction!

Children allowed to talk too much at home or school practice in selfishness. They not only deprive other children of an opportunity of adequate expression, but also render themselves less likable.

Matter Of Fact

partment has been taking millions of words of testimony in order to prove that the Communist party is a subversive "action group" within the meaning of the law. But there was one fact McCarthy failed to mention. The words he quoted came from the testimony of one Paul Crouch, who left the Communist party years ago. And the incident about which Crouch testified occurred in 1928, when Calvin Coolidge was President and the impeccable Frank B. Kellogg was secretary of State.

"What's wrong with McCarthy" then, is simply that he does not play the American political game according to the rules. He cheats. He proceeds on the assumption that the voters are too stupid to prefer the complicated truth to the simple, dramatic lie. So far, moreover, McCarthy has gotten away with playing the American voters for boobs. Despite attempts by papers like the "Milwaukee Journal' and the "Madison, Capital Times" to expose such cheating as that described above, McCarthy was triumphantly renominated in the Wisconsin primary.

Even so, certain wise advisers of Eisenhower are urging him to expose and denounce the cheating, if McCarthy cheats again in his forthcoming rendering of "The Stevenson Story." Quite aside from the fact that this would be a natural reaction for a man of Eisenhower's character, to do so might turn out to be sensible politics. For, although they can be played for boobs for a time, the American voters have a way of catching up with the fraud and liars in the end.

Stock Market Regains Half Of Yesterday's Heavy Loss

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—In a comfortable comeback, the Stock Market today regained a shade more than half of its rather heavy loss of yesterday.

Railroads were prime movers in the rise, and they got a lot of assistance from oils, motors, coppers, utilities, aircrafts, radio-televisions, air lines, and many miscellaneous manufacturers, including the tobacco companies.

The chemical division was backward throughout the session, while the steels were barely able to hold steady. U. S. Steel for example closed unchanged at 37¼, and touched a low for the year of 37⅛.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained 60 cents at $104.20. It was down $1.10 yesterday.

The industrial component of the average was up 50 cents, the rails were up 90 cents, and the utilities up 30 cents.

Tobacco shares did well in a reflection of good earnings. Ligget & Myers gained 1½ at 68¼, American Tobacco was up 1 at 57½ and Philip Morris ½ at 46½ on 700 shares.

Late in the day a block of 14,500 shares of Lehigh Valley Coal changed hands at 1½ unchanged from the previous close. It was the day's most active issue at 1½ with 20,600 shares traded.

It was followed by New York Central up ⅛ at 17½, Texas Co. up ⅝ at 51½, General Motors unchanged at 58¼, and Socony-Vacuum up ⅝ at 33⅝. Not a single one of the ten most active issues lost ground.

Higher stocks included Seaboard Railroad up 1 at 108, Southern Railway 1 at 67¼, Northern Pacific 1½ at 68¼, Gulf Oil ⅝ at 47⅛, Amerada Petroleum 2 at 192, United Air Lines 1⅛ at 28⅝, American Telephone ⅝ at 153⅜, Eastman Kodak ⅝ at 44, Chrysler ⅝ at 81¼, Montgomery Ward 1⅛ at 56⅝, Douglas Aircraft ⅞ at 62½, and Radio Corp. ¼ at 26⅝.

Among lower stocks were Chesapeake & Ohio, the nation's biggest coal carrier, off ⅛ at 35½, U. S. Gypsum 2 at 108½, American Can ¼ at 31⅝, and Goodyear ½ at 41¼.

Truman Special Visits Cumberland

President Says GOP Uses Back Street Tactics

Ike Termed Ignorant In Political Matters

President Truman charged here yesterday that the Republicans have adopted on a national scale the "back street" campaign waged in Maryland two years ago.

The President made his remarks yesterday afternoon as he neared the end of his fourth whistle-stop tour for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

At the end of his prepared speech, the President vigorously attacked General Eisenhower, the Republican Presidential candidate.

"I have nothing personally against him," Truman remarked.

"He is a great general. I made him chief of staff. I put him in command of the Allied forces in Europe . . .

"He doesn't know the first principles of politics, and politics is government."

A moment before he had said we "need a man who has the same policy in Michigan as in Louisiana."

Eisenhower, he said, has a different policy in every state.

He urged the audience, warmed up by his "off-the-cuff" remarks to "think of issues," saying the Bill of Rights is at stake in the coming election.

Early in the prepared address Ike rooters in the crowd interrupted to yell, "We want Ike!"

The text of the President's speech follows:

"I'm very glad to be here today. I'm glad to have this opportunity to say some things which I think will be of special interest to the people of Maryland.

"The Free State of Maryland belongs in the Democratic column in this election, and it's up to you folks to put it there.

"The Democratic candidate for President this year is one of the best qualified men ever nominated by either party for that office. I hope that all of you are planning to vote, and to get your friends to vote, for Adlai Stevenson."

"When you vote for Governor Stevenson for President you ought to vote to give him a Congress that will support him and work with him. The way to do that is to send George Mahoney to the United States Senate, and Mrs. Stella Werner to the House of Representatives.

Slaps "Special Privilege"

"You can be sure that they will work for your interest and welfare—and not for the special privilege groups that control the Republican Party.

"Maryland has a great tradition of tolerance and of freedom—freedom of religion, freedom of conscience, freedom of thought, freedom of speech, and freedom of elections. All these basic guarantees add up to a free government of free men.

"Today, freedom of thought and freedom of speech are under attack in our country. They are being

4,000 Turn Out To Hear Truman In Local Speech

Quiet Crowd Hears Attack On GOP

A crowd estimated by police at 4,000 was on hand yesterday afternoon to greet President Truman at his Democratic whistle-stop talk at Queen City Station.

Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn estimated the crowd at about 4,000, the same figure police gave for the turnout for General Dwight D. Eisenhower when the Republican Presidential candidate came here last month. But newsmen and others who had attended both talks thought the President outdrew the general by a margin of about 500.

Democratic leaders, somewhat disappointed last Saturday when only 1,500 turned out to hear Sen. John J. Sparkman, the party's Vice Presidential candidate, were enthusiastic over the size of yesterday's crowd.

The President's 15-car train pulled into Cumberland about 20 minutes late and a waiting crowd packed itself around the speaker's car, some with cameras of both the still and motion picture types.

Police rope barriers along the track were temporarily knocked down as people crowded around the rear car of the train. Five state troopers headed by Lt. W. E. O'Hara and a number of city officers under Chief R. Emmett Flynn were on hand to direct the crowd made up of citizens, school children and many workers in working clothes.

Remains In Car

William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the county Democratic State Central Committee, presented the President, who remained in his car until after the train had stopped.

The President greeted his audience with reference to his past visits here. This made the seventh time President Truman has visited Cumberland.

As he appeared on the platform of the rear car, the crowd, swelled by many persons who displayed "I Like Ike" buttons, cheered.

Several loud voices near the platform could be heard shouting, "We want Ike." The President turning toward them replied, "You are welcome to him, but you'll be sorry if you get him." This off-the-cuff retort brought laughs from the crowd.

Before the President's short talk, Republicans were busy passing out Eisenhower and Nixon literature.

Reading from his prepared text, the President referred to George P. Mahoney, the Democratic candidate as "Maloney."

When Eisenhower visited here Sept. 25, he lauded Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Republican candidate for the Senate, but mispronounced his name as "Beale."

Yesterday's crowd, although slightly larger than the one which greeted General Eisenhower recently, was not so enthusiastic and burst into applause only three times. At the same time, many comments were heard, especially by the women, on "how nice the President looks."

Greeted By Mayor

Mayor Roy W. Eves was present to extend greetings to the Chief Executive and welcomed him to the Queen City of the Alleghenies. As an official of the Baltimore and Ohia Railroad, Mayor Eves wished him a pleasant journey.

After the President finished his talk, Mrs. James McQuown and Mrs. Edward J. Ryan handed him a bouquet for his daughter Margaret, from the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Allegany County.

The Chief Executive thanked the women for the bouquet, but said, apologetically, that "Margie" was unable to be here because of an engagement in New York.

Democrats here had announced that a band was to be present for

State Political Pot Boils; New Disputes Arise

Glass Demands That Lee Leave Committee

HAGERSTOWN Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—A second report of anonymous campaign literature and a call for the resignation of a Frederick County Democrat Party official stirred the turbulent political waters of Western Maryland.

A new literature controversy was fired by a pamphlet directed against Mrs. Stella Werner, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Sixth District.

It developed along with an announcement by State's Attorney John S. Hollyday that the next move was up to the Republicans in a similar case of a tabloid gunning for the GOP.

Distributed at a Hagerstown rally earlier this month, the tabloid illustrated breadlines and an apple-seller reminiscent of the Depression. The unsigned literature warned that a Republican victory on November 4 would result in another economic collapse.

Warrants Are Needed

Hollyday wrote D. Eldred Rinehart, who as chairman of the GOP State Central Committee had asked for an investigation, that the Republicans would have to obtain a warrant against the persons responsible for the anonymous tabloid or present evidence to the Washington County grand jury. A grand jury handling would delay any trial resulting from the investigating until November 20, Hollyday said, because the jury is not scheduled to meet until late next month.

State law prohibits the distribution campaign literature without the signature of an official agent of a party or candidate.

The call for J. Tyson Lee to resign as secretary of the Frederick County Democratic State Central Committee came from Thomas Glass, the partys county campaign manager.

Called Mahoney "Fraud"

Noting that Lee had called George P. Mahoney, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate, a "complete fraud" and had announced he will support Republican Rep. J. Glenn Beall for the office, Glass said:

"It seems to me that Mr. Lee should resign immediately as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee of Frederick County.

"I am sure that the public will recall that Mr. Lee was one of the earliest supporters of Mr. Mahoney when Mr. Mahoney ran for governor in 1950. I am also sure that the public will recall that Mr. Lee repudiated Mr. Mahoney's candidacy early in that campaign".

Glass said Lee had not contributed to Democratic efforts in the current campaign and therefore should step down so his position could be filled "by a loyal Democrat who believes in the Party platform and is willing to support the party's candidates."

Propaganda Used Here

Glass emphasized that he personally would not be a candidate for Lee's job in the event that Lee quit.

The anonymous campaign missives against Mrs. Werner were received by several reigstered Republican voters in Allegany County, delivered by second class mail.

Paul M. Fletcher, chairman of the Allegany County Republican Campaign Committee, denounced them. No official Republican organization has anything to do with them, he said.

"Because of its underhanded nature this form of campaigning has proved to be a dud," he declared.

William L Wilson Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee, said the anonymous campaign letters show "the desperate efforts by which our opponents seek to distort the situation to the voters."

Wilson said Mrs. Werner already has refuted the charges in the letter.

Explosion On Browning St. Causes Fire

South End Firemen Extinguish Blaze

An explosion, which resulted in a fire, occurred at 39-41 Browning Street yesterday evening, causing some damage to the cellar of the double frame dwelling.

South End firemen answered the call at 6:15 p. m. at a double house occupied by Wilson Couter and Joseph Freno.

A gas line was being renewed, firemen said, when gas fumes apparently escaped and were ignited by a hot water heater located nearby.

Both of the homes, firemen said, were filled with smoke as a result of the blaze. Joists of the cellar were scorched, as well as wiring and other miscellaneous matter in the basement.

When the firemen arrived they were told the fire was out but as they opened the cellar door flames were still visible in the cellar and were extinguished.

South End firemen also checked a grass fire in the rear of 21 Offutt Street at the home of Clarence Fansler. No damage was reported during the blaze, which occurred at 12:14 p.m.

Truck Driver Is Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

Jury Convicts Martinsburg Man

After deliberating two-and-a-half hours last night a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court found Norman Lee Western, 51-year-old Martinsburg, W. Va., truck driver guilty of manslaughter by motor vehicle in the traffic death of a Fort Hill High School athlete.

Emory A. Thompson of McCoole, foreman of the jury, announced the verdict about 8 o'clock last night. The jurors had been considering the case ever since about 5:30, with no time out for dinner.

Sentence Saturday

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the long trial, allowed the Martinsburg man to continue his freedom under bond. He is scheduled to be sentenced Saturday. Maximum penalty is three years in the penitentiary.

The death which resulted in yesterday's trial and conviction was that of James J. Turner, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Turner, 801 Kentucky Avenue. Young Turner had played baseball at Fort Hill.

Turner was killed instantly the afternoon of July 1 on Route 51, about five-and-one-half miles east of Oldtown, when the automobile in which he was a passenger collided with the left rear wheels of the trailer on the back of the tractor which Western was driving. George McGregor, 17, 511 Louisiana Avenue, was driving the car, toward Cumberland.

Western, a driver for the Harris Express Company, was headed toward Martinsburg with a load of Kelly-Springfield tires when the crash occurred. The accident happened shortly after Western passed another Harris Express Company tractor-trailer being operated by Max P. Landis, also of Martinsburg.

Passed On Hill

The defendant began to pass the other truck as they both drove down Crabtree's Hill. He still had not passed the other truck when they reached the foot of the hill and a no-passing zone, he admitted while on the stand yesterday. He did complete passing Landis' truck on the upgrade and was swinging back into the right lane when the accident happened. He said that all of the truck except the left rear wheels of the trailer were in the proper lane at the time of the collision. He contended that young McGregor at first swung to the right and then back to the left before the crash. He thought the car was going to hit his truck head on.

Rival attorneys argued for about an hour after some 10 witnesses had testified in the trial. William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney, began the closing argument by citing law applicable in the case. He argued that Western had caused the accident after violating two traffic laws. He passed on a hill and at the intersection where Gorman Road runs into Route 51, Geppert asserted.

Defense Argument

Both defense attorneys, W. Earle Cobey and Edward J. Ryan, stressed in their arguments that to be guilty of manslaughter a driver has to have shown a "wanton and reckless disregard for human life." They contended that the accident never would have happened had McGregor not been traveling at excessive speed toward Cumberland or had Landis slowed his truck slightly so that Western could get around and into the proper lane promptly. Ryan stressed that McGregor's car had skidded some 212 feet before the impact.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, in the final argument, argued that Western, despite 24 years experience as a truck driver, had not learned "elementary safety precautions". He told the jurors that they must inform Western that he must pay the consequences for his reckless driving.

In another case earlier yesterday, Judge Henderson gave Charles Elmer Smith and Eugene Vernon Harris 18-month suspended sentences after they pleaded guilty to larceny in the theft of auto tires.

Mahoney Calls Beall "Failure" As Congressman

Candidates Continue Foreign Aid Squabble

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP) — Democrat George P. Mahoney took up the verbal cudgel tonight where his opponent in the Senate race laid it down and replied to charges that he was a "fraud" by accusing J. Glenn Beall of being "an absolute failure as a congressman."

The Senate contest first attained its present high temperature Tuesday night in a televised debate over WMAR in Baltimore which ended in a shouting argument.

After the television show, Beall complained that Mahoney hurled questions at him and then didn't give him a chance to answer. He called his Democratic opponent a "fraud" and charged that he had different political theories to fit into what he believed to be the pattern of thinking in the various sections of Maryland.

Each has accused the other of failing to support bills providing foreign aid to friendly allies.

Beall earlier denied Mahoney's accusations and pointed out that he had voted for the Mutual Assistance Act, though he did cast a vote to reduce the appropriation.

Mahoney tonight charged that Beall "sought to leave the impression that I opposed all such aid." The Democratic candidate said that was not true, that he does approve foreign aid programs but insists "that the recipient nations be required to fulfill their obligations as to the use of such aid."

Then of Beall, Mahoney said: "He has been an absolute failure as a congressman supposed to represent the people of Western Maryland. If he has ever had an original idea for a positive program of any kind, either to help the people of his area or of the entire country, a thorough search of the record fails to reveal it."

Mahoney also denied that he was holding out a program of "isolationism" in the counties and another designed to attract Baltimore City voters as Beall had charged.

PMA Will Offer 15 Conservation Plans Next Year

Two New Practices Included On List

Fifteen agricultural conservation practices will be promoted by the Allegany County PMA Committee during 1953.

A form letter, signed by Albert O'Neal, committee chairman, announcing the 15 practices is being sent out today to the approximately 1,000 farmers of Allegany County.

Two new practices are included on the list for the first time. They are planting orchards, vineyards and bush fruits on contours and constructing permanent fences to obtain better distribution of grazing.

Other practices, which are being repeated, include permanent open drainage ditches, tile drainage, contour strip cropping, terracing, establishing of waterways, forest tree planting, thinning forest stands, constructing permanent fences to protect woods, winter cover crops, permanent pasture, liming material, superphosphate or potash and subsoiling.

"This program is entirely voluntary," O'Neal writes. "Any farmer who believes he will not need the limited assistance available to do the pressing conservation job on his farm must feel free to tell his community committeeman so when he visits the farm.

"Each farm operator in the county will be visited by a Production and Marketing Administration committeeman and will be given the opportunity to request assistance to bear a part of the cost on the practices most needed on his farm in 1953. Assistance is to be concentrated on the practices which will be most useful in sustaining high production of farm products needed in our present national defense effort."

The closing date for requesting assistance under this program is January 1, 1953.

Police Learn Theft Witness Is Escapee

Local authorities said yesterday a material witness being held here in connection with a $700 burglary of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company in The Narrows is wanted in Virginia for escaping from a state prison in Loudoun County, Va.

County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya listed him as John Bell Hoover, 35, of Harrisonburg, Va. Lilya added the escapee has also gone by the name of John Bell and Jackie or Jakie Hoover.

According to Lilya, Virginia state authorities have sent detainers and a warrent here for Hoover. In a letter to Lilya, Virginia police said Hoover was sentenced to the state prison for a three-year term on a grand larceny charge. He escaped August 31, 1950.

Lilya noted that Hoover had been at large, traveling all over the country, and was picked up here in connection with the lumber firm burglary last month.

Three men, charged with the burglary, were indicted two weeks ago by the Grand Jury. They are Samuel Steven Crawford, his brother Charles Edward Crawford, both of LaVale, and Douglas Lurty Smith, 24, of Harrisonburg.

Also being held in the case is Elbert Sandy, 16, also of Harrisonburg. The youth is being held as a material witness in the burglary case.

Truman Special Visits Cumberland

Ike Termed Ignorant In Political Matters

President Truman charged here yesterday that the Republicans have adopted on a national scale the "back street" campaign waged in Maryland two years ago.

The President made his remarks yesterday afternoon as he neared the end of his fourth whistle-stop tour for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

At the end of his prepared speech, the President vigorously attacked General Eisenhower, the Republican Presidential candidate.

"I have nothing personally against him," Truman remarked.

"He is a great general. I made him chief of staff. I put him in command of the Allied forces in Europe . . .

"He doesn't know the first principles of politics, and politics is government."

A moment before he had said we "need a man who has the same policy in Michigan as in Louisiana."

Eisenhower, he said, has a different policy in every state.

He urged the audience, warmed up by his "off-the-cuff" remarks to "think of issues," saying the Bill of Rights is at stake in the coming election.

Early in the prepared address Ike rooters in the crowd interrupted to yell, "We want Ike!"

"You're welcome to him," the President declared, "and if you get him, you'll be sorry."

The text of the President's speech follows:

"I'm very glad to be here today. I'm glad to have this opportunity to say some things which I think will be of special interest to the people of Maryland.

"The Free State of Maryland belongs in the Democratic column in this election, and it's up to you folks to put it there.

"The Democratic candidate for President this year is one of the best qualified men ever nominated by either party for that office. I hope that all of you are planning to vote, and to get your friends to vote, for Adlai Stevenson."

"When you vote for Governor Stevenson for President you ought to vote to give him a Congress that will support him and work with him. The way to do that is to send George Mahoney to the United States Senate, and Mrs. Stella Werner to the House of Representatives.

Slaps "Special Privilege"

"You can be sure that they will work for your interest and welfare—and not for the special privilege groups that control the Republican Party.

"Maryland has a great tradition of tolerance and of freedom—freedom of religion, freedom of conscience, freedom of thought, freedom of speech, and freedom of elections. All these basic guarantees add up to a free government of free men.

"Today, freedom of thought and freedom of speech are under attack in our country. They are being

4,000 Turn Out To Hear Truman In Local Speech

Quiet Crowd Hears Attack On GOP

A crowd estimated by police at 4,000 was on hand yesterday afternoon to greet President Truman at his Democratic whistle-stop talk at Queen City Station.

Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn estimated the crowd at about 4,000, the same figure police gave for the turnout for General Dwight D. Eisenhower when the Republican Presidential candidate came here last month. But newsmen and others who had attended both talks thought the President outdrew the general by a margin of about 500.

Democratic leaders, somewhat disappointed last Saturday when only 1,500 turned out to hear Sen. John J. Sparkman, the party's Vice Presidential candidate, were enthusiastic over the size of yesterday's crowd.

The President's 15-car train pulled into Cumberland about 20 minutes late and a waiting crowd packed itself around the speaker's car, some with cameras of both the still and motion picture types.

Police rope barriers along the track were temporarily knocked down as people crowded around the rear car of the train. Five state troopers headed by Lt. W. E. O'Hara and a number of city officers under Chief R. Emmett Flynn were on hand to direct the crowd made up of citizens, school children and many workers in working clothes.

Remains In Car

William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the county Democratic State Central Committee, presented the President, who remained in his car until after the train had stopped.

The President greeted his audience with reference to his past visits here. This made the seventh time President Truman has visited Cumberland.

As he appeared on the platform of the rear car, the crowd, swelled by many persons who displayed "I Like Ike" buttons, cheered.

Several loud voices near the platform could be heard shouting, "We want Ike." The President turning toward them replied, "You are welcome to him, but you'll be sorry if you get him." This off-the-cuff retort brought laughs from the crowd.

Before the President's short talk, Republicans were busy passing out Eisenhower and Nixon literature.

Shortly after his talk got underway, Truman inadvertently evened the score with General Ike on the pronounciation of the name of his party's Senatorial candidate.

Reading from his prepared text, the President referred to George P. Mahoney, the Democratic candidate as "Maloney."

When Eisenhower visited here Sept. 25, he lauded Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Republican candidate for the Senate, but mispronounced his name as "Beale."

Yesterday's crowd, although slightly larger than the one which greeted General Eisenhower recently, was not so enthusiastic and burst into applause only three times. At the same time, many comments were heard, especially by the women, on "how nice the President looks."

Greeted By Mayor

Mayor Roy W. Eves was present to extend greetings to the Chief Executive and welcomed him to the Queen City of the Alleghenies. As an official of the Baltimore and Ohia Railroad, Mayor Eves wished him a pleasant journey.

After the President finished his talk, Mrs. James McQuown and Mrs. Edward J. Ryan handed him a bouquet for his daughter Margaret, from the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Allegany County.

The Chief Executive thanked the women for the bouquet, but said, apologetically, that "Margie" was unable to be here because of an engagement in New York.

Democrats here had announced that a band was to be present for

State Political Pot Boils; New Disputes Arise

Glass Demands That Lee Leave Committee

HAGERSTOWN Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—A second report of anonymous campaign literature and a call for the resignation of a Frederick County Democrat Party official stirred the turbulent political waters of Western Maryland.

A new literature controversy was fired by a pamphlet directed against Mrs. Stella Werner, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Sixth District.

It developed along with an announcement by State's Attorney John S. Hollyday that the next move was up to the Republicans in a similar case of a tabloid gunning for the GOP.

Distributed at a Hagerstown rally earlier this month, the tabloid illustrated breadlines and an apple-seller reminiscent of the Depression. The unsigned literature warned that a Republican victory on November 4 would result in another economic collapse.

Warrants Are Needed

Hollyday wrote D. Eldred Rinehart, who as chairman of the GOP State Central Committee had asked for an investigation, that the Republicans would have to obtain a warrant against the persons responsible for the anonymous tabloid or present evidence to the Washington County grand jury. A grand jury handling would delay any trial resulting from the investigating until November 20, Hollyday said, because the jury is not scheduled to meet until late next month.

State law prohibits the distribution campaign literature without the signature of an official agent of a party or candidate.

The call for J. Tyson Lee to resign as secretary of the Frederick County Democratic State Central Committee came from Thomas Glass, the partys county campaign manager.

Called Mahoney "Fraud"

Noting that Lee had called George P. Mahoney, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate, a "complete fraud" and had announced he will support Republican Rep. J. Glenn Beall for the office, Glass said:

"It seems to me that Mr. Lee should resign immediately as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee of Frederick County.

"I am sure that the public will recall that Mr. Lee was one of the earliest supporters of Mr. Mahoney when Mr. Mahoney ran for governor in 1950. I am also sure that the public will recall that Mr. Lee repudiated Mr. Mahoney's candidacy early in that campaign".

Glass said Lee had not contributed to Democratic efforts in the current campaign and therefore should step down so his position could be filled "by a loyal Democrat who believes in the Party platform and is willing to support the party's candidates."

Propaganda Used Here

Glass emphasized that he personally would not be a candidate for Lee's job in the event that Lee quit.

The anonymous campaign missives against Mrs. Werner were received by several reigstered Republican voters in Allegany County, delivered by second class mail.

Paul M. Fletcher, chairman of the Allegany County Republican Campaign Committee, denounced them. No official Republican organization has anything to do with them, he said.

"Because of its underhanded nature this form of campaigning has proved to be a dud," he declared.

William L Wilson Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee, said the anonymous campaign letters show "the desperate efforts by which our opponents seek to distort the situation to the voters."

Wilson said Mrs. Werner already has refuted the charges in the letter.

Explosion On Browning St. Causes Fire

South End Firemen Extinguish Blaze

An explosion, which resulted in a fire, occurred at 39-41 Browning Street yesterday evening, causing some damage to the cellar of the double frame dwelling.

South End firemen answered the call at 6:15 p. m. at a double house occupied by Wilson Couter and Joseph Freno.

A gas line was being renewed, firemen said, when gas fumes apparently escaped and were ignited by a hot water heater located nearby.

Both of the homes, firemen said, were filled with smoke as a result of the blaze. Joists of the cellar were scorched, as well as wiring and other miscellaneous matter in the basement.

When the firemen arrived they were told the fire was out but as they opened the cellar door flames were still visible in the cellar and were extinguished.

South End firemen also checked a grass fire in the rear of 21 Offutt Street at the home of Clarence Fansler. No damage was reported during the blaze, which occurred at 12:14 p.m.

Truck Driver Is Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

Jury Convicts Martinsburg Man

After deliberating two-and-a-half hours last night a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court found Norman Lee Western, 51-year-old Martinsburg, W. Va., truck driver guilty of manslaughter by motor vehicle in the traffic death of a Fort Hill High School athlete.

Emory A. Thompson of McCoole, foreman of the jury, announced the verdict about 8 o'clock last night. The jurors had been considering the case ever since about 5:30, with no time out for dinner.

Sentence Saturday

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the long trial, allowed the Martinsburg man to continue his freedom under bond. He is scheduled to be sentenced Saturday. Maximum penalty is three years in the penitentiary.

The death which resulted in yesterday's trial and conviction was that of James J. Turner, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Turner, 801 Kentucky Avenue. Young Turner had played baseball at Fort Hill.

Turner was killed instantly the afternoon of July 1 on Route 51, about five-and-one-half miles east of Oldtown, when the automobile in which he was a passenger collided with the left rear wheels of the trailer on the back of the tractor which Western was driving. George McGregor, 17, 511 Louisiana Avenue, was driving the car, toward Cumberland.

Western, a driver for the Harris Express Company, was headed toward Martinsburg with a load of Kelly-Springfield tires when the crash occurred. The accident happened shortly after Western passed another Harris Express Company tractor-trailer being operated by Max P. Landis, also of Martinsburg.

Passed On Hill

The defendant began to pass the other truck as they both drove down Crabtree's Hill. He still had not passed the other truck when they reached the foot of the hill and a no-passing zone, he admitted while on the stand yesterday. He did complete passing Landis' truck on the upgrade and was swinging back into the right lane when the accident happened. He said that all of the truck except the left rear wheels of the trailer were in the proper lane at the time of the collision. He contended that young McGregor at first swung to the right and then back to the left before the crash. He thought the car was going to hit his truck head on.

Rival attorneys argued for about an hour after some 10 witnesses had testified in the trial. William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney, began the closing argument by citing law applicable in the case. He argued that Western had caused the accident after violating two traffic laws. He passed on a hill and at the intersection where Gorman Road runs into Route 51, Geppert asserted.

Defense Argument

Both defense attorneys, W. Earle Cobey and Edward J. Ryan, stressed in their arguments that to be guilty of manslaughter a driver has to have shown a "wanton and reckless disregard for human life." They contended that the accident never would have happened had McGregor not been traveling at excessive speed toward Cumberland or had Landis slowed his truck slightly so that Western could get around and into the proper lane promptly. Ryan stressed that McGregor's car had skidded some 212 feet before the impact.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, in the final argument, argued that Western, despite 24 years experience as a truck driver, had not learned "elementary safety precautions". He told the jurors that they must inform Western that he must pay the consequences for his reckless driving.

In another case earlier yesterday, Judge Henderson gave Charles Elmer Smith and Eugene Vernon Harris 18-month suspended sentences after they pleaded guilty to larceny in the theft of auto tires.

Mahoney Calls Beall "Failure" As Congressman

Candidates Continue Foreign Aid Squabble

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP) — Democrat George P. Mahoney took up the verbal cudgel tonight where his opponent in the Senate race laid it down and replied to charges that he was a "fraud" by accusing J. Glenn Beall of being "an absolute failure as a congressman."

The Senate contest first attained its present high temperature Tuesday night in a televised debate over WMAR in Baltimore which ended in a shouting argument.

After the television show, Beall complained that Mahoney hurled questions at him and then didn't give him a chance to answer. He called his Democratic opponent a "fraud" and charged that he had different political theories to fit into what he believed to be the pattern of thinking in the various sections of Maryland.

Each has accused the other of failing to support bills providing foreign aid to friendly allies.

Beall earlier denied Mahoney's accusations and pointed out that he had voted for the Mutual Assistance Act, though he did cast a vote to reduce the appropriation.

Mahoney tonight charged that Beall "sought to leave the impression that I opposed all such aid." The Democratic candidate said that was not true, that he does approve foreign aid programs but insists "that the recipient nations be required to fulfill their obligations as to the use of such aid."

Then of Beall, Mahoney said: "He has been an absolute failure as a congressman supposed to represent the people of Western Maryland. If he has ever had an original idea for a positive program of any kind, either to help the people of his area or of the entire country, a thorough search of the record fails to reveal it."

Mahoney also denied that he was holding out a program of "isolationism" in the counties and another designed to attract Baltimore City voters as Beall had charged.

PMA Will Offer 15 Conservation Plans Next Year

Two New Practices Included On List

Fifteen agricultural conservation practices will be promoted by the Allegany County PMA Committee during 1953.

A form letter, signed by Albert O'Neal, committee chairman, announcing the 15 practices is being sent out today to the approximately 1,000 farmers of Allegany County.

Two new practices are included on the list for the first time. They are planting orchards, vineyards and bush fruits on contours and constructing permanent fences to obtain better distribution of grazing.

Other practices, which are being repeated, include permanent open drainage ditches, tile drainage, contour strip cropping, terracing, establishing of waterways, forest tree planting, thinning forest stands, constructing permanent fences to protect woods, winter cover crops, permanent pasture, liming material, superphosphate or potash and subsoiling.

"This program is entirely voluntary," O'Neal writes. "Any farmer who believes he will not need the limited assistance available to do the pressing conservation job on his farm must feel free to tell his community committeeman so when he visits the farm.

"Each farm operator in the county will be visited by a Production and Marketing Administration committeeman and will be given the opportunity to request assistance to bear a part of the cost on the practices most needed on his farm in 1953. Assistance is to be concentrated on the practices which will be most useful in sustaining high production of farm products needed in our present national defense effort."

The closing date for requesting assistance under this program is January 1, 1953.

Police Learn Theft Witness Is Escapee

Local authorities said yesterday a material witness being held here in connection with a $700 burglary of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company in The Narrows is wanted in Virginia for escaping from a state prison in Loudoun County, Va.

County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya listed him as John Bell Hoover, 35, of Harrisonburg, Va. Lilya added the escapee has also gone by the name of John Bell and Jackie or Jakie Hoover.

According to Lilya, Virginia state authorities have sent detainers and a warrent here for Hoover. In a letter to Lilya, Virginia police said Hoover was sentenced to the state prison for a three-year term on a grand larceny charge. He escaped August 31, 1950.

Lilya noted that Hoover had been at large, traveling all over the country, and was picked up here in connection with the lumber firm burglary last month.

Three men, charged with the burglary, were indicted two weeks ago by the Grand Jury. They are Samuel Steven Crawford, his brother Charles Edward Crawford, both of La-Vale, and Douglas Lurty Smith, 24, of Harrisonburg.

Also being held in the case is Elbert Sandy, 16, also of Harrisonburg. The youth is being held as a material witness in the burglary case.
